A storm that was bred in Shade Mountain, north of Oakland, on the afternoon of the 18th, moved south and southwest, across the valley. In places it did considerable damage. The barn of David Bashor, formerly of the Puffenburg bar, was split and considerably damaged. Here and there fences were leveled and trees uprooted.

the hunt of huckleberries last week saw two bears near the top of the mountain. * * * It has been discovered that a lump of bread-dough cleans discolored wall paper much better than the old rubbing with stale bread, which was apt to scratch the paper and always left so many crumbs about. * * * Friday evening while William Hawk was up the river fishing near Shannon's on the grass near the shore, which he troved after and caught with his hands. Upon taking it home he found it weighed six pounds.

The attendance of men, women, and children at the celebration of Indian Harvest Home, last Saturday, was largely beyond expectation. The day was uncommonly fine and the rain of Friday had so damped the work on most of the farms that people could attend without neglecting their affairs, hence the turn out. It was a meeting of social enjoyment and good cheer. It was a meeting of typical Pennsylvania highland valley people, and a better looking assembly of two thousand people from straggling children to aged grand parents cannot be assembled anywhere else.

The coronation part of the occasion was well managed. Veterans who had passed through the late civil war were there in considerable number, and about fifty of them were gotten into line by Colonel Robison and Lieutenant Burchfield and marched in front of the platform where they were addressed by comrade L. P. Atkinson after which they broke ranks and mingled among the people. The program was well managed. Veterans, Neely, Patterson, Lyons and Messers Gro and Maben were obliged to foot it about fifteen miles before they reached a point where a rig could be hired to bring them to Lewistown, not reaching here until about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. After taking a short nap and breakfast they returned to the scene where the deceptions had been committed, and after considerable search found the horses, his feet being tied together with straps, merely allowing space for short steps, which was evidently done to prevent the animal from getting far away. Whether Alexander is guilty of this contemptible act or not it will likely be charged up to him, and if arrested again will be sent up on general principles, if nothing else.

Bloomfield Democrat: George B. Ritter had a frightful experience on Monday, while hauling in oats. He had just come out of the field on to the road with a load and was at the top of a pretty steep hill; his son drew the load just as the wheels struck a breaker that was across the road. The two together so suddenly checked the speed of the wagon that the horses jerked the tongue clean out, the rubber-bar breaking and one of the stay-chains unhooking all in a moment's time. The wagon then started down the hill, with no means of guiding it or checking its speed—all connection between horses and wagon being one stay-chain. The horses became entangled in the chains, the off-wheel one getting into the spreaders of the front ones, and was thrown and dragged down the hill over a dirty road. Mr. Ritter saw that something must be speedily done to check the speed of the wagon or the fallen horse would be run over and in all probability killed, so he managed by that one stay-chain to turn the wagon to the side of the road into the drain, which was deep, upsetting the wagon. The horses then made short work of the other stay-chain. They had become so excited that they ran some distance after they were free before Mr. Ritter got control of them, still dragging the fallen horse, which was considerably skinned and bruised, but without, not dangerously injured. It was an experience that no person would wish to pass through the second time. * * * Patatoes are rotting in the ground in this county.

About six o'clock last Saturday evening, driver Creswell and a friend were journeying up Tuscarora Valley in a buggy. Opposite Dr. Hendricks' near Academics the horse stumbled and fell with such force that the bridge was torn off his head. The horse was frightened and ran. The man sprang out of the buggy. Down at Squire Brown's place, L. E. Atkinson and officer Lapp in a buggy and Jeremiah Lyons and George Wilson in a buggy following were jogging along on their homeward way from the barn-vest home nearby. There is a road in the road there, and all of a sudden Creswell's runaway horse at railroad speed came around the curve. The four Mifflintown men took in the situation at a glance and instinctively in a great hurry pulled to the right to give the runaway a clear track. Atkinson did not quite get out of the way, and Creswell's left front wheel struck Atkinson's left front wheel, rolled over and dropped down between the front and hind wheels with such force that the hind axle of the Doctor's buggy was broken about the middle, and the hind wheel pulled out straight behind. The Doctor's buggy was knocked entirely out of shape. Lyons had succeeded in getting his horse and buggy far enough out of the way to escape injury. When Creswell's horse was coming around the curve like a rocket, Wilson stampeled, sprang from the vehicle and started on a run across the road on the left side. He just cleared the fence when Creswell's buggy landed upside down on the fence where he crossed it, and his wheel of the broken wagon rolled off him quite a distance. He made a narrow escape. It was the collision of the two buggies that tossed the Drover's vehicle on the fence that Wilson crossed. Matthew Rodgers caught the runaway horse not far from the harvest home ground.

Lewistown Free Press, Aug. 19.—During the heavy thunder storm on Friday night last the barn of Abram Zook, about five miles west of Bellefonte, was struck by lightning and burned to the ground. The contents, including the crop from 65 to 70 acres, were entirely consumed. The horses were got out in safety. We cannot learn of any insurance on the buildings or crop, and the loss will fall heavily on Mr. Zook, who has the sympathy of all in his misfortune. * * * On Monday evening, as the family of W. G. Roper were comfortably seated on the porch at their home in Upper Ferguson Valley, a man entered the yard, passed around to the other side of the house, not heeding the friendly words of greeting the folks gave him. Hearing a big ruck in the rear they quickly moved in that direction and found the man overturning the bee boxes, the angry insects swarming about by thousands and stinging him severely. In reply to a question he said he was "fixing up things round here." Concluding he must be demented, two of the men took him in charge, brought him to town in a buggy and placed him in the custody of the sheriff, who looked him up. Since then he was driven wild by irritation from the bee stings and attempted to clean out his cell fixtures. It was thought by some that his description corresponded with the person of young Cragin, who left Brewster, N. Y., in May, whose whereabouts up to this time is unknown, but a careful comparison with the written description in the hands of officer Gro does not confirm the supposition. * * * A bench warrant having been issued for the arrest of John Alexander, who was taken into custody last spring after the robbery of Graff's and McNitt's stores at Milroy but escaped from the constable, officers J. P. Gro and James Maben proceeded on last Saturday to the lower end of Treaster valley, where Alexander was supposed to be working, to make the arrest. When near the cabin they secreted the horse and buggy in the woods in order to quietly approach the quarters of the workmen and get their "bird." However, the plan of the officers was frustrated by the barking of a dog, and when they arrived at the cabin Mr. Alexander was not among the guests. Then started for their rig, but imagine their amazement to find the horse missing and the top of the buggy and harness cart out to pieces. All efforts to find the animal proved fruitless, and Messers Gro and Maben were obliged to foot it about fifteen miles before they reached a point where a rig could be hired to bring them to Lewistown, not reaching here until about 4 o'clock Sunday morning. After taking a short nap and breakfast they returned to the scene where the deceptions had been committed, and after considerable search found the horses, his feet being tied together with straps, merely allowing space for short steps, which was evidently done to prevent the animal from getting far away. Whether Alexander is guilty of this contemptible act or not it will likely be charged up to him, and if arrested again will be sent up on general principles, if nothing else.

Drunkennes or the Liquor Habit positively Cured by Administering Dr. Haines' Golden Specific. It has been given in thousands of cases, and in every instance a perfect cure has followed. It saves pain.
