Another Farmer Swindled.

From the Philadeiphia Inquirer. John Appleman, of Bighorn, Col umbia county, Ps., a retired farmer, is the latest victim of the old trick of selling bars of dross metal for for $3,500, away below market rates, and took the bars to the Mint yester day to realize a large profit. He was shocked to learn that brass of the commonest sort was the compound of the ingots and he subsequently poured the story of his deception into the ears of Chief of Detectives Wood.

Appleman carried the supposed gold bricks very tenderly into the Mint and was ushered into Superintendent Bosbyshell's office. The bricks looked like gold on the outside and were handed to an attache of the assayers' department for tes ting.
