The Illinois militia have a bicycle corps.
There were 17 fatal sun strokes at Chicago last Thursday.
Fifty-six people were prostrated by heat in Philadelphia last Thursday.
Samuel Cartlow, a striker who was seen with a gun firing at the Pinkertons at Homestead, is in jail on a charge of murder in the first degree and cannot be bailed out.
Rain fell at Lincoln, Neb., on the 28th of July and D. S. Seneher, a "rainmaker," who signed a contract to produce it in four days, got $500 for it.
Manager Frick who assassins Bergman attempted to murder in Pittsburgh is getting along a great deal better than it was expected he could. The murderer will be sent to prison for a long term.
A state of war existed in Homestead when private Iams put his mouth into an insurrectionary attitude and uttered language that gave encouragement to the enemy for which he was tied up by the thumbs and dragged out of camp. It is difficult to understand how a Civil Court can take action in the case.
Democratic leaders who thought of making capital out of the Homestead trouble find that it will not do. If they could force it into politics it would not help their side for the democratic policy of free trade prevents the wages of the Homestead men will of necessity go much lower, for free trade will lower the wages of iron workers to the wages paid to iron workers in England.
If the iron workers and other factory workers are discontented with the present high wages that are kept up by tariff laws so that the country cannot be flooded by goods from the old countries where labor and material is one half less, how will they like it when the Democracy get into power and repeal the protective tariff laws which repeal will bring prices and wages down to the level of European prices and wages.
How Other People Live.
There is a saying, "one-half the people don't know how the other half live," and the truth of the saying is verified through an article in the Philadelphia Times of a recent date, from the pen of Thomas E. Hecand, of Philadelphia, who traveled extensively in Asia, when he represented this country as consul to Odessa, Russia. He regards his visit to BOKARA, the strangest of his Asiatic experiences, and says of it:
"The old city of Bokara is situated about ten miles from the railway, and is, in my estimation, the most wonderful of Asiatic cities. I spent some days there as the guest of the Amer and saw everything. The bazaars run for miles and in all directions and the streets through which they run are covered with people, and with strutting, through which the sun does not penetrate. The streets are usually crowded with merchants and natives, but not a European is to be seen anywhere. As a rule, men are seen carrying merchandise and human freight; horsemen, camels laden with goods from India, Persia and Afghanistan; dervishes and dancing boys; Hin-does with the circular marks on their foreheads, and Bokhariots, and of course, Jews.

"THEY HAVE A HARD TIME THERE."
"The Jews are allowed to ride on asses, but not on horses. They are prohibited from wearing silk robes, of which they are very fond, and must wear a rope girdle. This girdle has a two fold purpose. If it is desired to hang the Jew it is convenient, and if, as frequently occurs, he only to be hanged, then it is equally convenient for the authorities. The Jew is much looked down upon in Bokara, but he manages to get very rich, nevertheless, and the Amer finds in him his greatest source of income, because a hint that his rope girdle would look well hanging from a roof beam always produces golden results.
"The prejudice against the Jews is very great indeed, going so far as to prohibit him from leaving his throat cut, a method of execution much in vogue among Bokhariots, and very popular, hanging being considered a disgrace. I could not help contrasting these Orientals with ourselves, and it struck me that if a Jew from Bokara were to visit Philadelphia and walk down Chestnut street, he must think us a very good specimen of the human race.
"The reason that he would run the risk of being mobbed by the crowd following him, even if he escaped bodily injury, is not that he would not escape death. I walked through the Bokara streets and barely alone day after day, and even at night during Ramadan, and not the slightest notice was taken of me, nor was any curiosity displayed.
"NO FEETED OF CRIMINALS."
There is no sentiment wasted on criminals in Bokara. A criminal is executed and the punishment is according to the crime. In conversation with a very intelligent English official on this question, he told me that he was informed that severe punishments, such as cutting off the hands of thieves and cutting the throats of murderers, were modes of punishment which gave universal satisfaction to the Amer's subjects, and that any attempt to change this would be almost certainly cost the Amer his throne. Long terms of imprisonment are not popular with these people because they complain that they are punished who are innocent, by being taxed to support criminals.
"ALL WAITING TO DIE."
I visited the prison and found forty men in a room about fifteen feet square, seated on the floor with their backs to the wall. They were chained by the wrists to small iron bolts and fetters to the surface making a very ugly and painful cage as large as a half dollar. These appear usually on the face. The native doctors and barbers are very skillful in removing this worm which is sometimes six or eight feet in length. The head is carefully sought and slowly drawn out about half an inch, and then to the surface, and finally, after which the skull is turned once a day until the worm is all withdrawn. An ugly sore remains for some time, but eventually it heals, leaving a scar. Was to the unfortunate wretch if the worm should break during the operation, as it is very difficult to catch him the second time.
"Good Advice."
There is nothing so freely given in this world as advice. Everyone has a stock on hand that they are willing to dispose of to everyone who comes within the sound of their voice, and it is of course, a very valuable commodity, yet how often it is sold cheaply. Young people are bound to go their own way. The son and daughter will never realize that the advice given them by their parents has been gleaned from long years of experience and that if they would follow the teachings laid down by those dear ones most interested in their welfare they would be spared much sorrow and trouble in the future. Their education may be better and their notions higher, but girls and boys do not know it all.
The older heads are wiser—they have gained their knowledge from actual buffing with the high winds of the sea of life. Therefore do not say little books have only called the currents and tides of the vast ocean are revealed to you. It is the most fearful thing to see a child set up his views at variance with its father or mother. They may be right, yet there is a difference that is to be feared. A general invitation is extended to all candidates to speak. There will be a free exhibition on the grounds to commence at 4 o'clock, P. M. This Harvest Home is intended for a social gathering. No soliciting of money on the ground for any purpose.

A Cure for Constipation and Sick Headache.
Dr. Silas Lane while in the Rocky Mountains, discovered a root that when combined with other herbs, makes an easy and certain cure for constipation. It is in the form of dry roots and leaves, and is known as Lane's Family Medicine. It will cure sick headache in one night. For the blood, liver and kidneys, and for the clearing up of the complexion it is a wonder. Druggists sell it at 50cts a package.
Profanity.
There is a law punishing profanity at 25c in an out. The other day two persons were arrested at New Castle, charged with using profane language. One paid $1.40 and the other $15.70. The law might be enforced in this place with good effect.

The Philadelphia Times takes a common sense and therefore a just side of the case which we take pleasure in reproducing thus—The severe punishment of private Iams by the commander of his regiment for having cheered the would-be assassin of Mr. Frick and refusing to retract his statement, has provoked considerable criticism, and much of it is of the sentimental character that over-looks the supreme necessities which often dictate severe punishment.
The man who would cheer the assassin in his cowardly work is quite as much an assassin at heart as he who fires the pistol or drives the deadly knife into his victim. He differs only in the cowardice that prevents him from executing his evil wish, and when he is a soldier wearing the uniform of the government, employed and paid to suppress the assassin and the lawless he puts himself beyond the pale of sympathy, and there is no punishment known in military authority that can be regarded as too severe.
We dissent all quietude of sympathy that would have him excused, entitled to none. Granted that his cheer of the assassin may have been the impetus of a by, but when he was brought into line with his brother soldiers, a diminished his serious breach of discipline, and requested to recall it, he defiantly proclaimed his sympathy with the assassin and there by made it impossible for him to command any other consideration whatever, and exposed himself to the severest punishment known to military authority short of death.
Many soldiers have been tried and shot for a much less grave offense than private Iams committed, and the punishment although brutally severe, is none of the recognized methods of punishment by military authority. It is to be regretted that the commander of the regiment and the chief of the staff, and various other methods of severe punishment are recognized as military law, and the only question to consider in the case of private Iams is whether the punishment inflicted upon him will be promotive or subversive of discipline in the military command. Beyond that there is no question involved in it worthy of consideration.
Some one who claims the ability to calculate it says that a twelve thousand horse power engine would be necessary to resist the power of a single bolt of lightning.

The Case of Private Iams.
A soldier named W. L. Iams of Company K, Tenth Infantry at Homestead on Saturday, July 23rd, heard of the attempt to kill Frick, proposed "Three cheers for the man who shot Frick!" It was a stunning surprise to his comrades. Iams was ordered to advance, as many paces forward, the time accorded him to apologize, he refused. He was tied up by the thumbs 20 minutes. He became unconscious. When he came to, his head was shaved, one side of his mustache was shaved off. His military clothes were taken off of him and another suit was given him and then he was drummed out of camp. The punishment meted out to the young man has awakened sentimental expressions in favor of the young man and expressions against the military for the manner in which the young anarchist was dismissed from military service.

Call to School Children.
OCTOBER 21 IS TO BE OBSERVED AS GENERAL HOLIDAY.
President Harrison, complying with the Act of Congress of June 23rd, has issued his proclamation making Friday, October 21, a general holiday. This is the recognition of the movement to put the celebration of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America into the hands of all the people by giving it to the institution closest to the people—the public school.
The movement undertaken by the National Education Association, through an executive committee, which has so presented it as to gain the endorsement of the press and popular acceptance in advance of the actual day, is to be commended. It is a noble effort.
Whereas, by a joint resolution approved June 23, 1892, it was resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, "That the President of the United States be authorized and directed to issue a proclamation recommending the people the observance of all their localities of the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America, on October 21, 1892, by public demonstration and by suitable exercises in their schools and other places of assembly."
Now therefore, I, Benjamin Harrison, President of the United States of America, in pursuance of the aforesaid joint resolution, do hereby appoint Friday, October 21, 1892, the 400th anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, as a general holiday for the public schools of the United States. On that day let the children, so far as possible, cease from toil and devote themselves to such exercises as may best express honor to the discoverer and their appreciation of the great achievements of the four complete centuries of American life.
Columbus stood in his age as the pioneer of progress and enlightenment, the system of universal education is in our age the most prominent and salutary feature of the spirit of enlightenment, and is peculiarly appropriate to the people of the day's demonstration. Let the national flag fly over every school house in the country and let the exercises be such as shall inspire upon our youth the patriotic duties of American citizenship.
In the churches and in the other places of assembly of the people let there be expressions of gratitude to Divine Providence for the devout faith of the discoverer and for the Divine aid and guidance which has directed our history and so abundantly blessed our people.
In testimony whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.
Done at the city of Washington this 21st day of July, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two, and in the independence of the United States the one hundred and seventieth.
By the President,
BENJ. HARRISON.
JOHN W. FORTZ, Secretary of State.
