The Maine Election.

The election in Maine held last Monday resulted in favor of the republicans by about 12,000 majority. The voting was under the Australian Ballot law, a law akin to the new law of this state. The prohibition vote was a small one.

Not Allowed To Land.

The people from far and near flocked to Fire Island on Monday to resist the landing of passengers from the cholera ships that were not allowed to enter new York. Fire Island is in New Jersey and the New Jersey people could not be induced to permit the ships people to come on her shore from New York harbor.

A Prediction.

Rev. Dr. McChesney, a Methodist preacher in Cincinnati, delivered a prediction last Sabbath. He said God will scourge New Orleans for permitting the fight between the brutes Corbett and Sullivan. He said if the gates of the World's Fair are opened on Sunday the Lord will close its gates every day with cholera Precaution Against Cholera.

Dr. Benjamin Lee, M. D., in his circular recently issued on the subject of "precautions Against Cholera" says:—The cholera poison, whatever it be is taken into the system through the mouth—that is in food and drink. Simply being near a cholera patient cannot give you the disease. Therefore have no fear of visiting a cholera infected house on an errand of necessity or of mercy, or even of nursing a cholera stricken relative or friend. Still further there is strong ground for believing that the natural juices of a healthy stomach will destroy the vitality of this poison. In Europe during the last epidemic, the greatest number of new cases were usually reported on Monday mornings. Sunday being the day for dissipation among the working classes, and thus leaving them with disordered stomachs incapable of destroying the activity of the virus before it reached the bowels, where alone it has the power to do injury. It is therefore of the utmost importance to preserve a vigorous digestion, of observing a few simple personal precautions.

Free Rags and Cholera.

In his speech on the Springer free wool bill the Hon. Julius C. Burrows drew the following picture of the source of the supply the Democrats were inviting to our shore. This speech was delivered before the outbreak of the cholera epidemic, but is of added interest in view of the advances made by that dread disease. Said Mr. Burrows:

But having presented a measure which, if enacted into law, would result in destroying sheep husbandry in the United States, with the consequent annual loss to the world's supply of wool of 300,000,000 pounds the question naturally arises, where withal then shall we be clothed? How considerate of the majority of the committee to anticipate this inquiry and promptly allay all apprehension by the assuring and comforting answer, rags, mungo and shoddy. Yes, rags are to be free. The chaffonier with stick and nail and bag, scouring the gutters of foreign cities for woolen rags, or gathering the cast off clothing and blankets which have wrapped putrid carcasses in the lazar and pest houses of Europe and Asia, will ply his vocation with increased zeal and take fresh courage at the prospect of this new market for his free raw material. The present duty of 10 cents a pound practically excludes foreign rags from our market while free trade England adds annually to her domestic supply 75,000,000 pounds of foreign rags which she converts into shoddy for the clothing of her people."

GOVERNOR PATTISON made a speech at the Crawford county fair on Saturday in which among other things he spoke of the Homestead and other riots. His remarks as reported in the papers have the true ring of an American citizen. He called the affair at Homestead, rebellion against government. It was not a question of capital or labor but one of government. There can not be successful capital or labor without government, both capital and labor were thrown in a state of idleness at Homestead by rebellion against government. He deplored the necessity that required the employment of the militia to secure government and if we are to escape the fate of people that live under strong or military governments, it must be by going back to the principles of our fore-fathers, the pioneers and to true allegiance to the laws of the country.

FOUR thousand people witnessed the prize fight with gloves for $10,000 last Wednesday, September 7th, in the arena of the Olympic Club of New Orleans, between champion John L. Sullivan, and James Corbett. On the twenty first round Corbett won the fight. The southern fire-eaters stood the fight with comparitive composure. Thirty years ago such a thing as a fight with fists particularly when indulged in for money was looked upon with contempt. The only fighting done in that section of the country was with the pistol or shot gun. The fight was to kill and not for the "almighty dollar." Corbett is now the great pugilistic champion of the world.

AMERICAN poet, John G. Whittier died about 4 o'clock on the morning of September 7th, aged 85 years. He was born on his father's farm in Haverill. Was educated in the common district school during the winter terms, and a six months course in Haverill Academy. He learned shoe-making, and taught school. After his father's death he carried on the farm five years and wrote poetry and other articles for newspapers. He came to Philadelphia and edited the Pennsylvania Freeman. That was before rebellion, but the democratic mob one night sacked and burned his office and that hastened him back to New England where he lead a literary life up to within a short time of his death

SECRETARY BLAINE will not speak this campaign, but last week he wrote a letter in which he stated that the campaign hangs on three points. First, a protective tariff, second, reciprocity treaties, third, a national system of banks and currency.

GOVERNOR FLOWER, of New York, has bought a hotel at Fire Fly Island, below the city where healthy passengers from the Cholera ships may remain during the time of quarantine.

A REPUBLICAN governor, legislature, congressman, and state officials were elected in Vermont last week, by a majority ranging from 17,600 to 20,000 majority.

THE importation of rags from Europe has been stopped by government on account of cholera.

CIVIL CASES.

The First National Bank of Tyrone vs Ezra C. Doty, bondsman of Edgar M. Doty, clerk or assistant cashier in the bank, to recover the amount of a note that was worthless by the mistake of the assistant in entering the note as maturing a month after the date of the maturity of the note. By the mistake in entry the bail or security of the paper was released under the law, and the maker of the note being financially of no account the paper was worthless. The bank believed that the bondsmen for the assistant could be made pay, hence the suit. The jury, however, believed that the bond was given to protect the bank from dishonest transactions on the part of the young man and as there was no dishonest work in anything that he did, they could not find for the bank. Verdict for defendant or bondsman.

Mary M. Jacobs, Administratrix of George Jacobs deceased vs. President and Managers of the Mifflintown Bridge Company for attorneys fees claimed by her husband, previous to his demise. Amount of fee claimed, $5,000. Settled for $2,000.

Jonas Wolfgang vs. Frank Reynolds and Levi Bossler supervisors of Fayette township—to recover injury to a horse that fell on ice in the road, between Swales and Browns Mills. The road ran under spruce trees and on the side of the hill where the sun's action in winter time is not strong. A better road a half mile further would have insured a road free from ice for the mail team, which Wolfgang was driving. Verdict in favor of the Supervisors.

E Bement & Son vs. Samuel Pannebaker. This was a suit for certain agricultural implements that Pannebaker believed he was commission agent for, but the company claimed to hold him responsible for the value of harrows and so forth sent him. Verdict for plantiff $230.00.

A Highway Sneak.

On Saturday night, between 9 and 10 o'clock, as John Diehl, one of Yearic's livery employes, was driving a traveling stranger along the turnpike just beyond Stafford's limekiln, their destination being Milroy, the passenger thought he observed something now and then like the shadow of a man going along with the buggy, and finally called the attention of the driver to the matter, at the same time feeling uneasy enough to reach under the buggy seat to ascertain if his satchel was all right—but it was gone. Stopping the horse they looked behind and saw in the moonlight a fellow making off with something in his hand. Diehl gave chase and was gaining on his man when the Logan bus came off the bridge on its outward trip. Finding himself thus intercepted in his flight, he dropped the satchel in the road and fled up the hill into the woods.—Lewistown Free Press.
