Thirty Years Ago.

There are more people in Washington this week than have been there at any one time since the armies of the Potomac and Sherman's army were reviewed at the close of the war 27 years ago. The men then were in the full vigor of youthful manhood, now the youngest of them are grizzled with gray and the oldest of them are away down on the shady side of life on the border land of the country into which thousands of their comrades passed amidst the roar and carnage of battle. History gives no account of the review of an aged army like that now at Washington. They have been in peaceful pursuits almost a generation and now as if by the hand of magic they are in the Capital of the nation marching their last review at the seat of the government they saved from the clutches of treason, rebellion and slavery. The heart of the people of the great north warms toward them like when they were fighting the battles of freedom thirty years ago. It is thirty years ago this week that the cloud of doubt as to whether the rebellion could be crushed was lifted. In July 1862 McClellan was driven from the James river, and Lee's Army steadily pushed its victorious columns northward stretching into Maryland and threatening to capture Washington. All that summer there was an ache of doubt in the patriotic heart of the north till McClellan retrieved himself and defeated Lee at Antietam just thirty years ago. There was joy in Washington this week thirty years ago over Lee's defeat at Antietam, and there is joy in Washington now over the review of the boys in blue who saved the national capital thirty years ago. May God be with them and return them safely to their free homes that they won through the storm of battle thirty years ago.

Democratic Labor Commissioner Peck of the State of New York found that the labor statistics of the great state showed an increase in production and in wages during the past two years and like an honest man he told the truth about the prosperity of New York state. He was rather proud of the fact that the people were prosperous, but his honest statement don't suit the Democratic leaders and they are ready to pull him out of his office. They don't want to have it appear that the people are prosperous. If they can make people believe that they are not prosperous, they hope to make them discontented and that they believe will turn them against people who they know are getting along, such as the office holding class. They hope to make as many believe as they can that times are hard and if they vote the republicans out of office times will get better, and that is the reason Peck's honest statement don't suit them.

Get one hundred doctors to talk in on the origin and spread of cholera and an array of speech making is certain to follow. It is a good thing to talk about. For all that is known concerning the disease excepting its manifestation, makes it safe for one to say almost what he pleases about the dread cholera without running a risk of convincing contradiction.

One of the New York cholera cases was that of a girl who had come to the city from Europe, within the past year. The inquiry is puzzling a good many cholera investigations to find out whether she brought the cholera with her from the old world.

The cholera scare will shut out sugar for an indefinite time and send up the price. However the use of sugar will be greatly restricted by people refusing to use it, except in such things that can be cooked, for fear of getting the cholera germs into their stomach and bowels. Sugar is believed to be a first rate thing for cholera germs to lodge in and on that account people will refrain from using it except in such things that are cooked.

Columbus Day.
Governor Pattison has issued the following proclamation:—Whereas, in accordance with the joint resolution of the senate and house of representatives of the United States of America, the president has appointed Friday, October 21st, 1892 the hundredth anniversary of the discovery of America by Columbus, as a general holiday for the people of the United States.

And whereas, the president has recommended that the people on that day as far as possible, cease from toil and devote themselves to such exercises as may best express honor to the discovery and their appreciation of the great achievements of the four completed centuries of American life.

And whereas, the commonwealth of Pennsylvania has a special interest in this anniversary by reason of the magnificent progress made by the people of the state during the centuries since the discovery.

Now, therefore, I, Robert E. Pattison, governor of the state of Pennsylvania, do, recommend Friday, the 21st day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety two, as a general holiday.

On that day in the school houses in the churches and other places of assembly of the people let there be appropriate services, teaching loyalty to our country and gratitude for the divine benedictions which have so abundantly blessed our people.

What Say You.
It is generally admitted and believed that ninety per cent of the cost of most manufactured production is composed of labor. It is known that wages abroad are on the average not over half that earned in the United States. As a matter of course American workers could not compete with the workers abroad unless they consent to a reduction of their own wages to bring them down to the foreign level. The result of this means one of two things beyond the question of a doubt—either a great reduction in the wages of American workmen or the closing of American mills and work shops.

The Ballot Changed.
The secretary of state upon the advice of the attorney general, based upon questions made by Republican State Chairman Reeder has decided to change the form of "official ballot" sometime ago agreed upon by him and which county commissioners and others were directed to follow. As originally prepared the ballot was made with all the Republican nominees in one column the Democratic nominees in another and so on, and a single cross mark (x) opposite the party name would stand to indicate a vote for the entire ticket.

Only an Agent.
The latest post office ruling is that the writer has a right to reclaim and gain possession of a letter, provided the post master at the office from which it was sent, that the writer of it. Even after the letter has arrived at the office which is its destination, and before it has been delivered to the person to whom it has been addressed, it may be recalled by the writer by the telegraph through the mailing office. The reason is the state is only the agent of the writer of the letter while it is in transit.
