

their former owners. The old soldiers can't stand that.

Wayne Mac Veagh is out in a letter for Cleveland and General Sickles is out in a letter against Cleveland, the one is worth about as much as the other.

The Democratic State administration at Harrisburg is responsible for not having the tickets ready for election day, and it is believed that a conspiracy exists among a number of the Governor's friends on the hill to hold back the publication and forwarding of tickets in Republican counties till it is too late for election day.

CLEVELAND vetoed 524 bills to pension soldiers. If you want the pension roll reduced vote for Cleveland, but if you want to continue on the safe side vote for Harrison, vote for Wilson for Legislature, vote for Wilson for United States Senator that will not surrender flags to the late rebels, or vote down pensions. Keep in the safe path. Vote for Mahon, Woods and Wilson.

If President Harrison should propose to return the flags and trophies of war captured from Great Britain during the revolutionary war, and the war of 1812, and propose to return the flags captured from Mexico in 1847, what a howl of indignation would fill this land of ours. It would be a shout of patriotic protest. How the country would scorn him. Now read, Mr. Cleveland did just as unpatriotic and disloyal act as that would be on the part of President Harrison had he done so. Mr. Cleveland did propose, when he was president to return the flags and other trophies of war to their late rebel owners. You can't vote for a man like that, and you don't feel like taking any risks in electing a Congressman or a Senator or an Assemblyman who is hand in glove with the men who are pulling the wires for Cleveland.

The Cleveland platform is pledged to uphold the protective tariff system which if accomplished will result in closing a large percentage of the manufacturing establishments and that will throw hundreds of thousands of men out of employment. The men to make a living will have to go to farming and that will mean millions more bushels of wheat and other grain and all kinds of farm products put on the market, which will depress the price lower than it now is. So, you see Mr. Cleveland is really against both manufacturer and farmer.

His political policy if carried out will lower all prices. Good times can only be kept up by the best of management and under a public policy that takes care of all the interests involved. The Cleveland policy is what in financial circles is called a bearing policy a depressing policy.

Take the safe side vote for Harrison for President, Mahon for Congress, Woods for Senate, Wilson for Legislature, and you can rest assured that they will not fail under the influence of the New York bear policy.

Battle With Bank Robbers.

Kansas and other western states have been cursed by a gang of robbers known as the Dalton Gang, that was organized by the Dalton brothers born and raised near Coffeyville, Kansas.

Three of the five boys of the family turned their attention in early boyhood to stealing chickens and other articles and to robbing cars, banks, stores and so forth. They became notorious as robbers and great efforts were made to capture or kill them but all efforts in that direction failed until on last Wednesday, October 4th, they met their ignominious fate and were shot in their native town while trying to escape from the robbery of the two banks in Coffeyville, Kansas.

A report had gotten abroad in the town that the gang would raid the banks, and that indeed everybody to get their guns and pistols in order and on the morning of the above date when the gang appeared in the town citizens turned out under the notice that City Marshal, Connelly sent quietly around among them.

A despatch from Coffeyville says:—It was 9 o'clock in the morning when the Dalton gang rode into town. They came in two squads of three each and passing through unfrequented streets all rendezvoused in the alley in the rear of First National bank. They quickly tied their horses and without losing a moment, proceeded to the attack upon the banks, Robert Dalton, the notorious leader of the gang, and Emmett, his brother, went to the First National Bank. The other four under the leadership "Texas Jack" or John Moore, going to the private bank of C. M. Congdon & Co.

In the meantime the alarm had already been given.

City Marshal Connelly was quickly notified of their arrival and almost before the bandits had entered the banks he was collecting a posse to capture them if possible, to kill them if necessary. He ran first to the livery stable of Bob Winchester, a dead shot with a Winchester and a valuable man in any fight. Then he summoned George Cubine, a merchant; Charles Brown, a shoemaker; J. Cox, express agent, and other citizens who could be conveniently reached. Stationing them about the square on which both of the banks faced, he hastened to augment his posse by summoning other citizens for immediate police duty.

While the Marshal was collecting his forces, the bandits, all ignorant of the trap that was being laid for them were proceeding deliberately with their work of robbing the banks. "Texas Jack's" band had entered Congdon's bank, and with their Winchester leveled at Cashier Ball and Teller Carpenter had ordered them to throw up their hands. Then "Texas Jack" searched them for weapons while the other three desperadoes kept them covered with their rifles. Finding them to be unarmed Cashier Ball was ordered to open the safe. The cashier explained that the safe door was controlled by a time lock and that it could not be opened by any means short of dynamite being exploded before its time was up, which would be 10 o'clock or in about twenty minutes. "Well wait," said the leader, and he sat down at the cashier's desk. "How about the money drawers?" he asked suddenly, and jumping up he walked around to the cages of the paying and receiving tellers and taking the money amounting in all to less than $300, dumped it into a flour sack with which he was supplied, and sat down while the time lock slowly ticked off the seconds and the hands of the clock tardily moved towards the hour of ten.

Bob and Emmett Dalton in the meanwhile were having better luck at First National bank, when they entered the bank they found within Cashier Ayers, his son, Bert Ayers, and Teller W. H. Sheppard. None of them were armed and with leveled revolvers the brother bandits easily intimidated them. Albert Ayers and Teller Sheppard were kept under the muzzles of Emmett Dalton's revolvers while Bob Dalton's forced Cashier Ayers to strip the safe vault and cash drawers of all the money contained in it, and placed it in a sack which he had brought along for that purpose. Fearing to leave them behind lest they should give the alarm before the bandits should be able to mount their horses and escape, the desperadoes marched the officers of the bank out of the door with the intention of keeping them under guard while they made their escape.

The party made its appearance at the door of the bank just as Liveryman Spears and his companions of the marsh side posse took their position in the square. When the Dalton Brothers saw the armed men in the square they appreciated their peril on the instant and leaving the banks officers on the steps of the bank fled in haste for their horses. As soon as they reached the sidewalk Spear's rifle quickly came to position. An instant later it spoke and Bob Dalton, the notorious leader of the notorious gang fell in his tracks, dead. There was not a quiver of a muscle after he fell. The bullet had struck him in the right temple and passed through his brain and lodged out just above the left eye. Emmett Dalton had the start of his brother and before Spears could draw a bead on him he had dodged behind a corner of the bank and was making time in the direction of the alley where the bandits had tied their horses.

The shot which dropped Bob Dalton caused "Texas Jack's" band in Congdon's bank, who were patiently waiting for the time lock of the safe to be sprung with the hour of 10. Running to the windows of the bank they saw their leader prostrate on the ground. Raising their rifles to their shoulders they fired one volley out of the windows. Two men fell at the volley. Cashier Ayers fell on the steps of the bank shot through the shoulder. Shoemaker Brown, of the attacking party was shot through the body. He was quickly removed to his shop, but died just as he was carried within. The firing attracted the attention of Marshal Connelly, who collecting more men for his posse and with the few which he had already gathered, ran hurriedly to the scene of the conflict.

After firing their volley from the windows of the bank the bandits ran from the door of the bank, firing as they fled. The marshal's posse in the square, without organization of any kind, fired at the fleeing bandits, each man for himself. Spear's trusty Winchester spoke twice more in quick succession before the others of the posse could take aim, and Joseph Evans and "Texas Jack" fell dead, both shot through the head, and three dead bandits to his credit. In the general fusillade Grant Dalton, one of the two surviving members of "Texas Jack's" squad, Marshal Connelly and George Cubine were mortally shot and died on the field.

Allie Ogge, the only survivor of the band, succeeded in escaping to the alley where the horses were tied, and mounting the swiftest horse of the lot, fled north in the direction of the Indian territory.

Emmett Dalton, who had escaped from the First National bank, had already reached the alley safety but he had some trouble in getting mounted and Allie Ogge had already won his escape before Emmett got fairly started.

Several of the posse anticipating that the horses would be required were already mounted and quickly pursued the escaping bandits. Emmett Dalton's horse was no match for the fresher animals of his pursuers. As his pursuers closed on him, he turned suddenly in his saddle and fired upon his would be captors. The latter answered with a volley and Emmett toppled from his horse badly injured. He was brought back to town and died late this evening.

Allie Ogge had about ten minutes the work of his pursuers and was mounted on a swift horse, and was not captured.

After the battle was over, search was made for the money which the bandits had secured from the two banks. It was found in the sacks where it had been placed by the robbers. One sack was found under the body of Bob Dalton, who had fallen dead upon it while he was escaping from the First National bank. The other was found tightly clinched in "Texas Jack's". The total amount taken was near $205,000; of this $105,000 was taken from the First National and the other from the Congdon Bank.

THE DEAD.

Of the attacking party four were killed, one was fatally and two were seriously wounded. The dead are: Bob Dalton, desperado shot through the head.

Grant Dalton, desperado, shot through the heart.

Joseph Evans, desperado, shot through the head.

John Moor, "Texas Jack," desperado, shot through the head.

T. C. Connelly, City Marshal shot through the body.

L. M. Baldwin, bank clerk, shot through the head.

G. W. Cubine, merchant, shot through the head.

C. J. Brown, shoemaker, shot through the body.

THE WOUNDED.

Thomas G. Ayers, cashier of the First National bank, was shot through the groin, and cannot live.

T. A. Reynolds, of the attacking party, has a wound in the right breast, but it is not considered necessarily dangerous.

Lais Delz, another of the attacking party was shot in the right side. His wound is a serious one, but is not fatal.

FREDERICK ESPENSHADE & SON, Monday, September 26th, 1892.—J. F.

AUDIENCE SURPRISED.

The audience was surprised, spell-bound, lost to all thought of self, and held completely in the will of the speaker for nearly two hours, now laughing, then applauding, now weighing the common place facts which were thrown out seemingly so easily though so weighty with truth, and again convulsed with laughter. The lecture can never be reported, can only be talked about. It must be heard to be appreciated, and the loss indeed a great one when an opportunity of hearing it is lost.—Desatur, (Ill.) Sentinel, Col. Copeland will lecture in Millifintown, Saturday evening, October 22.

FOR A TIME.

I will now reduce the price of my $3.00 cabinet photograph to $1.50 per dozen.

This reduction will continue as long as there is sufficient trade to warrant these prices and no longer. The gallery is filled with all the latest improvements usually kept in a first class gallery, such as Fine Scenic Backgrounds, Beautiful Dramatic and Fine Accessories, that would do credit to the large cities. We propose during this reduction to let our work speak for itself and have no hesitancy in saying that taking into consideration the quality of work, these will be the cheapest cabinet photographs ever made in Juniata county. JOSEPH HESS, Millifintown, Pa., Jan. 22nd, 1892.

NEAR THE NORTH POLE.

J. S. Entriek a native of Delaware township, this county, but for years back a citizen of South Carolina, was in town a few days ago with Judge Wickham, having come into his native county to see his friends after a trip to the region around the North Pole. He had just returned from the expedition to Greenland for the relief and rescue of Peary, who the past year has been struggling in that frozen region to reach the Pole. Eighty-three degrees was the Point nearest the pole that Peary reached, which the reader will readily understand was a considerable distance from the pole, and the coveted point directly under the North Star. Mr. Entriek was in the relief expedition and was there several months, just in time, when there is no night but perpetual sunshine. They found Mrs. Peary at an Esquimaux settlement, and she showed them the portrait of her husband that he would bring going and coming. They took a copy of the laid out route, and started on the compass line that he intended to return on, and met him coming. Mr. Entriek is the only Juniata man who has been so near to the North Pole. He went from near to Aiken, South Carolina, where he is to take the general management of a colored school.

COST OF THE RAILROAD.

Couple of citizens in the office of the JUNIATA SENTINEL and REPUBLICAN fell into a talk about Colonel Morehead's narrow gauge railroad enterprise from Port Royal to Waterford and both expressed the hope that the Colonel may bring the road to Millifintown.

Said one of the men.

I have not been in the valley, but from what I learn the grading has not been heavy. It has been mostly done with the plow, pick, shovel and wheelbarrow, and I will venture a guess as to the cost of the road, not counting cars and bridges.

Well, "what is your guess" said the other.

"My guess is," continued the first speaker, "the grading costs $200 a mile, 14 miles $28,000, the ties cost $280 a mile, 14 miles $39,200, the spikes cost $28 a mile, 14 miles $392 on the tie and rail ties costs $78 a mile, 14 miles $1092, the rails costs $270 a mile, 14 miles $37,800. Total ($49,584) forty-five thousand five hundred and eight-four dollars.

"All right," said the other, "the first time I meet the Colonel, I'll show him your figures." The charter if I remember correctly calls for a capital of seventy-five thousand dollars for the enterprise, possibly it provides for an increase and from reports the enterprise is about to assume larger proportions.
