The greatest blizzard in a half dozen years struck this county about 8 P. M., on Sunday evening. The religious meetings in town were about out at the time and the congregation experienced difficulty in getting home through the blinding snow drift.

A young man in this town says that the young men shrink from marrying because of the extravagance of the times, and the disposition of all to start house-keeping on a scale like the homes they came from which can only be accomplished in a case here and there.

Some 20 men at Bedford, Pa., white capped and whipped a white girl in her father's house for having a negro lover. Last Saturday night the lover escaped. Men who enter other men's houses without permission or warrant of law take their lives in their own hands.

The water company got the pipes open and the water into town on Friday evening, but many of the hydrants do not work, and a number of the pipes leading from the main pipes into houses are closed. One set of plumbers say it is because of incompetent workmanship on the part of the men who put in the pipes.

They say the pipes should have been laid in the ground deeper and covered more carefully. Rev. D. J. Beale, D. D., lectured in the court house on the evening of the 14th inst., to a large audience on "The Johnson Flood." The Dr. passed through the flood which fact added additional thrill to the exciting recital of the awful flood calamity. He discussed the locality of the place from the time that Conrad Weiser, the Indian interpreter visited the locality, on through its various phases of progress and business developments to the time of the flood, May 30, 1889. By the aid of a large map he showed his audience the location of the dam in the mountain, and the course of the stream in its rush of the construction of life and property, and thence by detail he led his hearers on through avenues of escape from the flood, to the organization of civil government to protect themselves from the clutches and snares of the thieves of the town and country, and thence on from one incident to another through almost every conceivable phase of distress, and woe and humor; attending the destruction of twenty-two million dollars worth of property, twenty-five hundred houses and three thousand lives, and closed with the grand thought that when he was passing the ordeal of that awful occasion, he had in full bodily strength and mental vigor, undergone the distress of the dying hour, in every particular excepting that his spirit had not left his body, and in what he then believed to be the supreme moment of danger, he felt more at ease than now when addressing this audience. The lecture was highly appreciated.

The blizzard came up on Sunday evening while people were at church and it was with difficulty that the congregations reached home through the drifting, blinding snow. It was the heaviest blizzard in a good many years. There are few houses that did not quiver or sway under its fierce blasts.

An architect from York, Pa., looked over the Lutheran property in this town last week, and told the congregation that the walls of the present church building are not strong enough to surmount it with a second story, and the walls are not strong enough to arch over like the ceiling in the Presbyterian church building. A new church building better than any in town can be built for fifteen thousand dollars.

Sheriff Lupp's stable dog, a fine mastiff, mistook his master the other evening when he entered the stable. The dog sprang upon the sheriff's breast and almost threw him down. With his left hand he grasped the brute by the throat, and with his right clenched fist he delivered a blow on the dog's head with such force that the hand was severely hurt. By this time the animal knew him and the trouble was over, but the sheriff has a sore hand.

"California's Young Men and Oakland Lutheran," published in Oakland, California, lies on our table. It is a bright paper issued monthly. The name, as the reader observed, indicates a union of interest, the promotion of Christian young men, and the cause of the Lutheran church. Rev. Philip Graff, M. A., who so ably furthered the interests of the Lutheran people in this place and community some years ago, is charge of the Lutheran department of the paper, and keeps up his part of the journal admirably. The many friends of Mr. Graff here are pleased to learn of his prosperity and of the prosperity of the people he labors for in the golden State.

An exchange says another swindler is working the country districts. His game is a new one and citizens bite at it. The scamp says he is the representative of neo-operative stores, which sell groceries, dry goods, tools, etc., to citizens at wholesale prices. To get the benefit of the store the farmer is required to pay a fee of sixty cents a year, or one dollar in advance for two years. It is a slick game and as the fellow who is working it is a slick talker, many citizens are parting with their $1 bills to get advantage of the co-operative store. The store exists only in the brains of the agent and he is a fraud.

A man and a woman in a buggy on their way to Lewistown were overtaken by the blizzard on Sunday evening, and sought shelter at the home of Emory McCahan north of town. They were almost frozen. The wife of the woman was frozen in a sheet of ice and fast to her hair. Their clothing was driven full of particles of snow, and the horse was all covered with a coat of snow and ice. The beast's eye winkers were frozen into a solid mass. The animal as well as its owner was almost perished. The horse was blanketed, body and all, and survived, and the people were made comfortable at Mr. McCahan's over night, and renewed their journey on Monday morning.

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Browns Valley, Ind., says: 'I have been in a distressed condition for three years from Nervousness, Weakness of the Stomach, Dyspepsia, and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine which done me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy. A few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world.' Warrented the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottle 15 cents. Sold by L. Banks & Co., Druggist, Mifflintown, Pa. Feb. 1, '93-1y.

Professor J. T. Rothrock of McVeytown, is one of the distinguished botanists of the United States. He is constantly employed away from his place of nativity, but great men never forget their home, however far away they may be called. The professor has not forgotten McVeytown, and is determined to have it represented at the Columbian Exhibition at Chicago, and to that end says the McVeytown Journal: David Stone of this place will have an exhibit at the World's Fair in Chicago. He has received a letter from Professor J. T. Rothrock, representing the Executive Manager of the Fair Commission for this State, soliciting a section of a tree growing on Mr. Stines farm in Wayne township. The tree alluded to is a white oak one foot in diameter on which there is an abnormal growth of an immense knot about 15 feet from the ground. The knot is about four feet in diameter and the tree only one foot. Scientific men seem to regard it as a freak of nature when the size of the tree is taken into consideration. The knot and a small section of the tree will be forwarded as a contribution to Pennsylvania's exhibit.

Serenaded in Bed.

Mr. John Hoffman and Miss Minnie Lester, of Fayette township, were married on the 14th inst. That evening a company of serenaders assembled at the home of the bride's parents near Brown's Mills. The bride and groom had retired for the night. They were invited to come down stairs and meet the serenaders, but they declined. Some twenty of the serenading party then went up stairs and into the room of the newly-wedded party, and there around the bed in which the bride and groom lay delivered the serenade.

Old Valuation Paper.

Mr. Jacob Lauer who owns and resides on the Ritchie Cunningham farm in Milford township found an old valuation paper under the top plate of a mantle piece that he was removing from the old vacated Cunningham house on the farm last week. The notice is dated April 6, 1818, and is to William Cunningham. The valuation of his property then is put down at $490, and the rate of the tax is one mill and two-thirds. The assessor was Samuel Bollinger. The hand-writing of the notice is legible and ink black, and the paper is brown like the color of a dead leaf.

Laloo at Harrisburg.

Laloo, the Hindoo boy, the wonder of the 19th century, will be on exhibition at the Davis Museum, Harrisburg, during the week of February 27th. He is the East India boy who has caused so much talk in the United States. The boy has a well-formed girl growing out of his breast. Dame nature seldom repeats such indiscretions as she made in Laloo's case and no one should miss the chance of viewing her most nameless sample of freak handiwork. He will be on exhibition from 1 to 10 P. M. There will also be many other big attractions to please young and old, and the price of admission is but ten cents.

Jack with a Lantern.

EAST WATERFORD, JUNIATA CO., PENNA. February 16, 1893. Editor SENTINEL AND REPUBLICAN: I noticed in the columns of your valuable paper, of the 1st inst., an inquiry concerning ignis fatuus—Jack-with-a-Lantern.

The light of that name was a real light, it is not so common now as it was twenty-five years ago. It was mostly seen early in the Spring of the year when the frost was coming out of the ground. It was visible only on very dark and rainy nights, on low marshy ground. The light resembled the light of a common tallow candle. It would rise from the earth and dart up and down, varying in height from four to thirty feet and always traveled up stream. A friend of mine who a few years ago caught one of these lights, and upon examination we found it to be composed of small particles of light bluish looking mud. I attribute the infrequency of these lights to the clearing out and under-draining of the soil. TUSCARORA.

Locust Run.

Dear Friends:—Once more in the history of my life will I call from that shelf in the corner, that rustic piece of mechanism, "the pen." And as this is the dearest friend on earth to me, it affords me a pleasure to sit and write a short letter to my few friends. Were I to start out and explore the County and publish a history of the same as did John Brown of old a few weeks ago in the Tribune, I might enter into closer proximity with the peculiarities or freaks of nature, but as I am debarrered from the pleasure of travelling in other lands and studying the works of nature, I must remain under my own parental roof and study nature as it comes to me.

That which is of nature is a natural sense, and while so much seems to be natural to us, it is an easy task for us to have plenty for to work up in this great study. Those things which have come to us in the past few weeks are of such a brilliant character that it is very easy to determine their original sense. It is through the works of nature that we are permitted to enjoy the rich crops of apples. It is through a natural work of man to cause the apples to be ground and made into that dreadful drink called cider, prepared for the devil and his companions, and certainly we saw the result of this on the eve of our spelling bee. The devil with his followers must have drank all the "rot-gut" in the county, and then came to the peaceful gathering to make disturbance. We don't wish to mention any names as it is spread to wide all ready. But we do hope that such young men, reared among such good parents will take warning and not do this again.

Through the divine work of our Father, in a natural cause, he has called from our midst a person in her youth Sarah E. Brant, wife of Henry Benner of Mexico, aged 23 years, 5 months and 11 days. She had been ill for some few weeks, when all at once God in his wisdom exercised his will by calling her from life to death. She leaves one brother, a sister and her husband to mourn her loss. Interment in Locust Run Cemetery on last Sunday. Funeral services conducted by Rev. E. E. Hartner of Thompsonstown.

One day last week Miss Olive Hoppe, while strolling along the edge of a pond near her home saw an animal in the water, and with the aid of the dogs, chased it on dry land where with a club beat it to death. It happened to be a half grown otter.

Quite a number of our young men are attending the protracted meeting in Thompsonstown, and held by Rev. Hartner. JOE GARDEN.

Wedded at Burmont.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place on Wednesday at noon, at the handsome residence of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Briggs at Burmont. The contracting parties were ex-Senator John J. Patterson of Mifflintown, Pa., and Miss Flora M. Warford of this city. The officiating minister was the Rev. J. R. Henderson, pastor of the Presbyterian church of Mifflintown. The bride wore a travelling suit of steel colored broadcloth with steel spic metallic trimmings. Her ornaments were diamonds. She carried a large bouquet of roses. There were no bridesmaids or groomsmen, but the bridal party were preceded by Master Leslie Briggs, as page, who carried the wedding ring on a solid platter. The house was beautifully decorated with smilax, ferns, evergreens and potted plants. After the ceremony a wedding dinner was served. Having received the felicitations of the company Mr. and Mrs. Patterson left for a journey to New York and Canada.
