The authorities are making every of fort to check the disease, but thus far in vain, and it is rapidly spreading Three deaths have occurred, and many new cases were reported

The first prize is $5,000, and the cowboy who rides into the Fair grounds at Chicago ahead of the others will have that sum for his pains. The pointments: second arrival will got $3,000; the third and fourth, $1,000 each.

The air-line distance from the point of departure to the goal is 800 miles. On the morning of May 1st, the sun will rise on 300 cowboys, as tride their mustangs, just starting on their long journey. The ponies will be pranded, and every rider and his mount will be photographed before the start, in different positions, for it is a condition of the race that the entire distance must be covered on the same horse; and photographs of the man and animals, as they ar rive in Chicago, will be taken for verification by comparison with the originals. A gun will fire and the riders will start. How many will drop off after the first few days ride is a matter of conjecture, but the winners must necessarily be careful of their horses. Interviews with some of the intending riders show that the more conservative of them intend to begin the journey deliberately, and ancomplish from 35 to 40 miles a day, saving their horses' for the final dash of 150 miles or there abouts, when the race will develope its most interesting features."

While such a mild prescription as this has no remedial fect in the case of a violent cold, it does cure boarseness and is a great relief to the sufferer.
