The height of ignorant ill manners is to see a man on the sidewalk sweeping dirt against persons who pass by, or a man on the sidewalk with a water squirt, never stopping when people come along, but compelling the people to walk into the street to avoid getting wet. A good deal of ignorance and ill manners can be born and acquired on account of ignorance, but an ignorant should not be allowed his rights of the pavement with his dirt and water to the exclusion of other people.

John Hazzard died at his home in this town, last Thursday morning about 5 o'clock, aged 77 years. Interment in the Presbyterian grave yard which he had a comfortable grave erected for himself years ago. The funeral took place on Sunday at 2 o'clock. He came to Mifflintown in 1845, from Chester county, taught school in winter, and in summer worked at whatever he could obtain to do, and saved the money he earned, invested it in real estate, erected houses, and in that way was a help with his money to the community, the carpenter, the cooper, the plasterer, the painter, the harness maker, people got a share of the money he put into buildings, and the improvements added to the assessed valuation of the town and became a source for tax levy which go to keep up all the solid affairs of a community. Three children survive him.

Bloomfield Advocate, April 19.—Monday night, 10th inst., thieves entered the barn of John Swarner, about three-fourths of a mile south of Loysville and took therefrom a horse and harness, also a bag of oats, the bag having been first emptied of cloverseed. After starting they noticed that the horse was lame, and coming to Samuel Horton's barn, a mile southeast of Loysville, they exchanged the horse for a fine dark bay animal valued at $125, belonging to Mr. Morrow; a good buggy was also taken. Upon discovery of the theft next morning pursuit was immediately begun. The animal was tracked over Storrs's Gap, down along the mountain, near Lamb's Gap, when all traces were lost. A day later Mr. Morrow received word from a gentleman living near the Gap, that the stolen horse he believed had passed Lamb's Gap, toward Harrisburg. Mr. Morrow again started in pursuit, and tracked the animal nearly to Harrisburg, where again all traces were lost. Nothing further has been heard of the stolen horse.

There are people who have a whole house full of children and it takes a great deal of money a year to keep so many little ones shod. We have noticed that because we are selling shoes for children every day, and we are selling them for just what they cost us, for we are going out of the shoe business. G. W. Hrek.

An enraged cow that was being driven to the railroad for shipment Thursday made a dash for Mr. Kurtz Kaufman at the canal bridge in this town. In trying to escape the horns of the beast Mr. Kaufman fell and cut the palm of one of his hands severely. The fall saved him from a goring but gave him a sore hand.

Squire Thomas Creighton of Tuscarora township has been in town this week on business. The Squire has a long official record as verified by the records. He was elected Justice of the Peace in Delaware township, in 1868 and served four years. He removed to Tuscarora his native township and was elected a Justice in 1878, re-elected in 1883, re-elected in 1888, re-elected and re-commissioned in 1893. He also served one year as constable and three years as auditor in his native township, and on different election boards in different counties 22 years. The squire is one of the veterans in official circles in Juniata county, and wears his laurels with becoming dignity.

The old saying, "never mind the weather when the wind don't blow," has little concern for the people this spring. The weather that concerns them is the wet weather.

All the agricultural world has been concerned about the weather of this season. The reason thus far has been a wet that not half the crops had been sown, and few farmers have had an opportunity to plow for corn. If getting the crops in the ground is to be then an indication of the autumn yield of summer crops, the return must of necessity be poor. However, there is poor comfort in "crossing the bridge before one gets to it." No man understands nature in all its workings, and the season may turn out to be fruitful in the making of good crops. Don't be discouraged.

Dr. Ackerly gives us for publication the following suggestions to peach growers, with the assurance that the treatment is in full accord with advanced ideas of destroying germs and parasites, as also with the older one of hanging horse shoes &c. on fruit bearing trees to render them more prolific—the method is to make a solution of copperas two ounces to the gallon of water. This strength may be increased but is considered ample. Sprinkle the ground about the root of the tree by means of a sprinkler, occasionally during the spring and summer, a dry spell being best for good effects. The solution being taken up by the roots, destroys the grub more effectively than by grubbing and weeding, insures also an increase in quality and quantity of fruit from healthy trees.

As common or commercial copperas costs not exceeding one cent per pound by the barrel, the peach grower need not to his advantage to treat grubs scientifically.

Last Sabbath evening Rev. John R. Henderson preached from the text, "This is the book of the generations of Adam." In the day that God created man, in the likeness of God made he him. Male and female created he them, and blessed them, and called their name Adam, in the day they were created." From which text he deduced the theme,

MAN'S LIKENESS TO GOD

Mr. Henderson's introduction to a sermon is always learned and is always followed by a thoroughly analyzed sermon, which makes his pulpit utterance interesting and instructive to attentive listeners.

In speaking of Adam not being a son of a father, but a special creation by God, he reviewed the materialistic statements of the theories of protoplasmic teachers, and gradual development from the chimpanzee to the form of a man. But it is not alone the physical resemblance of man to God that is meant in the form and image, but it is the spiritual likeness that is meant to be inculcated by the text, and which is more fully exemplified in the coming of Christ, who came to teach, by his life.

Knowledge of moral and religious spiritual likeness to God.

2. Righteous spiritual likeness to God.

3. Holiness, as exemplified in the likeness of the life of Christ.

Liquor Rumpus.

The town of Longplumde, a mining village on the mountain about Hopewell, has been the scene of lively incidents during the past few days. And it has been all on the account of the liquor license recently granted at that place. The town boasts of having in the past the finest hotels in the county. At the recent license court a license was granted to Isaac M. Sauer, who leases the hotel from Samuel Langdon. The court refused to grant Taylor the license unless he showed his lease from Langdon. After the license was granted it appears Langdon wanted to control the bar, and this Taylor refused. A general rumpus followed, and it is said Langdon had men employed to guard the house and refuse admittance to Taylor's men.

The affair grew into a riot and on Monday Sheriff Price and posse were summoned and went to the scene. During part of Sunday open bar was held at the house and spirit flowed free and heads grew big. Reports say that in the heat of hostilities the license was torn into shreds.—Saxton Herald.
