

WEDNESDAY, OCT 6, 1893. B. F. SCHWEIER, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

Republican County Ticket.

- COUNTY COMMISSIONERS: Wm. H. Moore, Neal M. Stewart. DISTRICT ATTORNEY: Willberforce Schweyer. COUNTY TREASURER: John F. Eberzeller. PROTHONOTARY: W. H. Zelders. CLERKS: William Guss, John Y. Shelly.

If Cleveland's Congress would pass one resolution namely: "Resolved, that the present tariff shall not be disturbed," and after its passage adjourn, the present panic, to a great degree would disappear, and the manufacturing establishments would resume work.

Eat that Rooster.

A Camden manufacturer notified his employees a few days ago that he intended in a few days to shut down his mills.

"I'm financially sound but must shut down for the lack of orders. My employees were much concerned, and a meeting was held, after which the hands sent for the mill owner.

Get that Rooster.

"O! Yes, you can eat that rooster you and around last fall, and the mill owner began preparation for closing up shop."

Giggled and Rubbed of 387.

The Huntingdon Journal of Aug 24, says: "One of the boldest robberies that has taken place in this county was a robbery occurred at Sullyville Saturday night last. The victim was Chambers, Dublin. At a late hour Saturday night he became sick and went out into the yard. When he stepped on the porch on his way back to the house he was seized by two strong men who gagged and led him to the porch. When they had secured him the robbers proceeded to the bed-chamber of Mrs. Dublin who was sound asleep and from under her pillow they extracted a pocket-book which contained $387 in money, the hard earned savings of Mr. Dublin and hurriedly escaped from the house. Mr. Dublin who was yet tied to the porch succeeded in removing the gag and called to his wife to come and assist him, who responded promptly. When Mr. Dublin related his experience the couple raised an alarm, but they were too late although it is the general impression that they went towards Jack's mountain. As yet no traces of him have been found. Mr. Dublin had commenced the erection of a dwelling house and the $387 which was stolen was to have been used for that purpose.

Forty Dollars Saved the Bank.

From the Kansas City Journal. Old timers tell the story of how T. J. Kelley, a contractor of this city, and now manager of the horse market in Grand avenue, between Fifth and Missouri av., by a very clever ruse stopped a run on the bank and prevented its going to the wall, way back in 1871. At that time the Kansas City Association, now the National Bank of Commerce, was located at the southwest corner of Fourth and Delaware streets. Mr. Kelley was then secretary and cashier of the Curran street railway company, and the company's account was kept at this bank.

The much-discussed penny was not in general use here as now. People were ashamed to pay for any article in pennies, except, perhaps, postage stamps and the old-fashioned "fare-box" in the cars became a dumping ground for them. From $3 to $5 in pennies would be found in the boxes by Mr. Kelley every day. He usually dumped them in sacks and stored them away in the company's vault.

The Rhinoceros.

From the St. Louis Republic. The rhinoceros is a beast of legendary and mythical associations as well as of stern reality. In the mythology of the old world he figures very conspicuously being worshipped as a god by the early Javanese tribes and lauded as the builder of the earth and heavens by several East African peoples. The old Jewish Talmud declares that his skin is folded as a result of having been exposed forty days and forty nights in the waters of the flood. The waters of the great deluge were hot according to Talmud, where we read: "After that Noah sent forth the dove." The dove departed and with out tarrying put her foot in the water. The waters of the flood were hot, and they scalded and pickled the legs of the dove. It was hot and briny, and feathers would not grow on her legs any more, and the skin scalded off. Now, doves which have red and featherless legs are of the sort that Noah sent forth.

This is only cited for authority to show the skin of the rhinoceros lies in folds and ridges. Certainly if the waters were hot enough to pickle and scald a dove's legs at the moment of contact, they would make the skin of a rhinoceros too large for him in the course of 40 days.

"But," you say, "why was he exposed in the waters of the great deluge while all the other beasts were safely housed in the ark?" Simply because he was too large to be put aboard the ark, and the ark was built of old rabbinc writers agree that the rhinoceros floated along with the ark, but they disagree as to how the floating operation was performed.

"A Pittsburg man recently shot three orchard trees severely. There is no end to the preaching, teaching and warning of these times, yet some people won't hear until too late."

Wheat at 50 Cents.

It is a fact that the wheat market in this city displayed a banner in their procession bearing this inscription: "Vote for Grover Cleveland and get $1.25 a bushel for your wheat."

The Millerstown Bridge.

The Newport Ledger in its issue of August 3, says that in Millerstown on the 29th day of July an indignation meeting was held by the citizens denouncing or protesting against the action of the county commissioners in awarding the contract to repair the river bridge for $6,500. The bridge is in such a condition that it would be simply money thrown away to repair it, and those who use the structure believe that an iron bridge would be the cheapest in the end.

Get that Rooster.

A Camden manufacturer notified his employees a few days ago that he intended in a few days to shut down his mills.

Get that Rooster.

"O! Yes, you can eat that rooster you and around last fall, and the mill owner began preparation for closing up shop."

Giggled and Rubbed of 387.

The Huntingdon Journal of Aug 24, says: "One of the boldest robberies that has taken place in this county was a robbery occurred at Sullyville Saturday night last. The victim was Chambers, Dublin. At a late hour Saturday night he became sick and went out into the yard. When he stepped on the porch on his way back to the house he was seized by two strong men who gagged and led him to the porch. When they had secured him the robbers proceeded to the bed-chamber of Mrs. Dublin who was sound asleep and from under her pillow they extracted a pocket-book which contained $387 in money, the hard earned savings of Mr. Dublin and hurriedly escaped from the house. Mr. Dublin who was yet tied to the porch succeeded in removing the gag and called to his wife to come and assist him, who responded promptly. When Mr. Dublin related his experience the couple raised an alarm, but they were too late although it is the general impression that they went towards Jack's mountain. As yet no traces of him have been found. Mr. Dublin had commenced the erection of a dwelling house and the $387 which was stolen was to have been used for that purpose.

Forty Dollars Saved the Bank.

From the Kansas City Journal. Old timers tell the story of how T. J. Kelley, a contractor of this city, and now manager of the horse market in Grand avenue, between Fifth and Missouri av., by a very clever ruse stopped a run on the bank and prevented its going to the wall, way back in 1871. At that time the Kansas City Association, now the National Bank of Commerce, was located at the southwest corner of Fourth and Delaware streets. Mr. Kelley was then secretary and cashier of the Curran street railway company, and the company's account was kept at this bank.

The Rhinoceros.

From the St. Louis Republic. The rhinoceros is a beast of legendary and mythical associations as well as of stern reality. In the mythology of the old world he figures very conspicuously being worshipped as a god by the early Javanese tribes and lauded as the builder of the earth and heavens by several East African peoples. The old Jewish Talmud declares that his skin is folded as a result of having been exposed forty days and forty nights in the waters of the flood. The waters of the great deluge were hot according to Talmud, where we read: "After that Noah sent forth the dove." The dove departed and with out tarrying put her foot in the water. The waters of the flood were hot, and they scalded and pickled the legs of the dove. It was hot and briny, and feathers would not grow on her legs any more, and the skin scalded off. Now, doves which have red and featherless legs are of the sort that Noah sent forth.

Get that Rooster.

"O! Yes, you can eat that rooster you and around last fall, and the mill owner began preparation for closing up shop."

Giggled and Rubbed of 387.

The Huntingdon Journal of Aug 24, says: "One of the boldest robberies that has taken place in this county was a robbery occurred at Sullyville Saturday night last. The victim was Chambers, Dublin. At a late hour Saturday night he became sick and went out into the yard. When he stepped on the porch on his way back to the house he was seized by two strong men who gagged and led him to the porch. When they had secured him the robbers proceeded to the bed-chamber of Mrs. Dublin who was sound asleep and from under her pillow they extracted a pocket-book which contained $387 in money, the hard earned savings of Mr. Dublin and hurriedly escaped from the house. Mr. Dublin who was yet tied to the porch succeeded in removing the gag and called to his wife to come and assist him, who responded promptly. When Mr. Dublin related his experience the couple raised an alarm, but they were too late although it is the general impression that they went towards Jack's mountain. As yet no traces of him have been found. Mr. Dublin had commenced the erection of a dwelling house and the $387 which was stolen was to have been used for that purpose.

Forty Dollars Saved the Bank.

From the Kansas City Journal. Old timers tell the story of how T. J. Kelley, a contractor of this city, and now manager of the horse market in Grand avenue, between Fifth and Missouri av., by a very clever ruse stopped a run on the bank and prevented its going to the wall, way back in 1871. At that time the Kansas City Association, now the National Bank of Commerce, was located at the southwest corner of Fourth and Delaware streets. Mr. Kelley was then secretary and cashier of the Curran street railway company, and the company's account was kept at this bank.

The Rhinoceros.

From the St. Louis Republic. The rhinoceros is a beast of legendary and mythical associations as well as of stern reality. In the mythology of the old world he figures very conspicuously being worshipped as a god by the early Javanese tribes and lauded as the builder of the earth and heavens by several East African peoples. The old Jewish Talmud declares that his skin is folded as a result of having been exposed forty days and forty nights in the waters of the flood. The waters of the great deluge were hot according to Talmud, where we read: "After that Noah sent forth the dove." The dove departed and with out tarrying put her foot in the water. The waters of the flood were hot, and they scalded and pickled the legs of the dove. It was hot and briny, and feathers would not grow on her legs any more, and the skin scalded off. Now, doves which have red and featherless legs are of the sort that Noah sent forth.

Hagar in the Wilderness.

The Northumberland Press says: On Monday a gypsy woman, who was alone, begged her way across the West Branch bridge, and afterward "pitched her tent" with only the blue sky as a roof, along the mountain road on Blue Hill not far from Robert Lecher's home. On Tuesday Rev. A. N. Warner rode along this road on his bicycle and while passing the woman saw her holding an infant destitute of any sort of clothing. Subsequent inquiry revealed the fact that the child was only 4 days old.

County Fairs.

There are in Pennsylvania eighty-nine county or local agricultural societies, of which eighty-one hold regular fairs for the exhibition of agricultural products and live stock, and eight do not, but instead regular monthly or quarterly meetings for the discussion of topics relating to farming and stock-breeding. Of the number fifty-six own the ground upon which the fairs were held, and twenty-five lease their exhibition grounds. The value of the real estate thus owned for exhibition purposes is $675,000, the amount annually expended in premiums is $55,000, the total cost of autumn fairs is $150,000, and the total annual attendance at all fairs is estimated at 115,000.

The Awful Loneliness.

Misdeeds are not more gloomy than the phine, nor more lonesome than the dim sun-light. In the darkness of the night, the phine is a shock in this roof-obscured land. The bands of antelope that drift like cloud shadows, across the dun landscape suggest less of life than of the supernatural. The spell of the phine is a wonder as things. At first it fascinates. Then it bewilders. At last it crushes. It is as sure as the grave—and worse. It is intangible, but resilient; stronger than hope, reason, will—stronger than humanity. When it cannot otherwise escape, the phine overtakes refuge in madness.—EX.

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Browns valley, Pa., says: "I have been in a distressed condition for three years. Stomach, Dyspepsia, and Indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of Serravallo's Tonic, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely remedy. A few bottles of it has cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." War wanted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Trial bottle 15 cents. Sold by L. Banks & Co., Druggists, Milliflinton, Pa. Feb. 1, 1913.

Put on human and horses and all animals cured in 30 minutes by Woodford's Sundry Lotion. This never fails. Sold by L. Banks & Co., Druggists, Milliflinton, Pa. Oct. 1, 1913.

PHOTOGRAPHS.

Another time for any length of time, "WHILE WE ARE IN THE PICTURE BUSINESS." We will continue making our fine Cabinet Photographs as low as $1.50 per dozen. These pictures are mounted on elegant card envelopes on back and face, with picture with a high Polish finish superior in quality to the Aristo Photo I have been taking the last year. However all those wishing the Aristo picture I will make them at the same price, $1.50 per dozen.

The extensive patronage and the many testimonials of the appreciation of our work, we have received the last year, gives us renewed courage to go on with these low prices, and we propose making Milliflinton headquarters for the finest Photographs for the money that can be obtained anywhere, adding all the time new and costly accessories of the very latest designs giving our trade the benefit of that which would cost $3.00 in the city, for $1.50 in Milliflinton. We can make pictures for $1.00 per dozen such as are made by all travelling photographers, but we prefer giving our patrons a much better picture for very little more money. Thanking our patrons for their liberal patronage we solicit a continuance of the same.

Respectfully, Josiah Hays, Milliflinton, Pa. March 9, 1893.

Dogs killed 25 sheep for Cloyd Horning in Millford township. Shoot the dogs. "There are in the United States 70,000 bee keepers. The average product of each hive is twenty-two pounds."

The U. P. church at Jamestown, Pa., was levied on by the Sheriff on suit of the pastor, Rev. Wallace, to recover back salary to the amount of $1,200."

The Selizgus Tribune of August 3, says: "George W. Sauerbman who has been having such a success on account of alleged crookedness in the pension business, was on Saturday put in jail in Middleburg in default of $500 bail."

Have you tried South American Nerve—the gem of the century? The great cure for Indigestion, Dyspepsia and Nervousness. Warranted the most wonderful Stomach and Nerve Cure ever known. Trial bottles 15 cents. Sold by L. Banks & Co., Druggists, Milliflinton, Pa. Nov. 14, 1913.

Lewisstown Academy. A college preparatory and finishing school for both sexes. Foreign languages taught by natives. Music department, vocal and instrumental under a laureate of the Royal Conservatory of Stuttgart—Germany. Terms moderate. Send for catalogue. J. C. PLEA, Prin. Lewisstown, Milliflinton, Pa. October 1st, 1893.

Early Training of a Gossip.

"If I am a gossip," said a young woman who had been accused of being so, "I am truly feminine vice, 'I was made so by force of circumstances. My bringing up is largely responsible for that sin."

As this was a new theory, with all the curiosity of our sex we questioned the pretty speaker, and she gave us the following views, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

Aliments of Children. Acute and chronic inflammations of the stomach, which, once made, bore a world of weighty truth in their utterance, though we had never before regarded the matter in the light she threw upon it. "To begin with," she said, "I don't think I was born with even the average share of curiosity. However, when I was about 5 years old, remember being sent on an errand to a neighbor's house, and on my return my mother and a friend who was visiting her, were talking with questions regarding what was said or done in that other house. I was so interested in the conversation that I asked my mother to take me to the 'stupid' and 'ignorant' that greeted me when I said I hadn't noticed what was going on, and from that time I used my eyes and ears to advantage and retained all I heard and saw as soon as I reached home. Moreover, if the happenings were not sufficiently interesting, I expressed my wonderment and surprise from my hearers. I had no scruples in improving a little on the truth in order to make the recital more spicy."—Philadelphia Times.

PUBLICATION IN DIVORCE.

To JACOB N. WELLS late of Juniata County, Penna. Whereas, Mary Ellen Wells, your wife, has filed a bill in the Court of Common Pleas of Juniata County, praying a divorce against you, now you, heretofore notified and required to appear in said court on the First Monday of September next, 1893, to answer the complaint of said Mary Ellen Wells, and in default of such appearance you will be liable to have a divorce granted in your absence.

PUBLIC SALE.

VALUABLE REAL ESTATE. The undersigned assignee in trust for the benefit of the creditors of Henry S. Hart and David Hart, of Fayette township, Juniata county, will expose to sale by public vendue or outcry, on tract No. 1, on Saturday, September 2nd, 1893, at 2 o'clock, P. M., of said day, the following real estate, to wit: Tract No. 1, All that certain tract of land situate in Fayette township, Juniata county, Pennsylvania, and within a short distance of the town of Milliflinton, and of Kelly's store, bounded on the north by lands of Joseph Smith, Jacob Bay and John Brown; on the east by lands of John Brown and John Brown; on the south by lands of Mrs. Barbara Longenecker and on the west by lands of John Hart and Joseph Smith, containing more or less, and having thereon erected a Two Story Stone Dwelling House, frame bank barn and out-buildings. Tract No. 2, A tract of woodland situate in the same township, and within a short distance of the town of Milliflinton, and of Kelly's store, bounded on the north by lands of Barbara Longenecker; on the east by lands of Benjamin Heppner; on the south by lands of John Hart and John S. Brown and others, and on the west by lands of David Haines and John Hart, containing more or less, and having thereon erected a Log House & Bank Barn, and out-buildings, all in a good state of repair. The land is in a good state of cultivation. This property can be bought at a very low figure. For terms and further description, call on, or address, PATTERSON & SCHWEIER, Attorneys at Law, Milliflinton, Pa.

A GOOD HOME INVESTMENT.

The first mortgage bonds of the Milliflinton and Patterson Water Companies, are now offered for sale at the Juniata Valley Bank. The amount of the issue is $27,000. Ten (10) bonds are $1,000 each. The rate of interest is five (5) per cent. clear of taxes, payable in semi-annual coupons. The Milliflinton bonds are due in February and August, and the Patterson coupons in April and October. The principal is payable in twenty (20) years and redeemable in ten (10) years. The Companies have been in operation. Nine (9) months and have an income that is quite sufficient to meet the interest on the bonds and all other charges. The stockholders of the companies are Louis E. Atkinson, president; J. Banks, vice president; R. E. Parker, Secretary; T. V. Irwin, Treasurer; Jeremiah Lyons, F. M. Pennell, W. H. Hoopes and Wm. H. Banks, and their purpose to keep safe the interests of patrons, bondholders and creditors before they take any return for their own investment. Except the original Court House bonds which bore six (6) per cent. interest. There has never been so good a bond investment offered to investors. Price per and accrued interest.

COURT PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the Hon. JEREMIAH LYONS, President Judge of the Court of Common Pleas, for the County of Juniata, composed of the counties of Juniata and Perry, and the Honorable JOSIAH L. BARKER, N. J. P. J. Associate Judge of the said Court of Common Pleas of Juniata County, by precept duly issued and so directed for holding a Court of Probate and General Sessions of the Peace at Milliflinton, on the 22nd day of August, 1893, to wit: BRING THE 46th DAY OF THIS MONTH.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, to the Coroners, Justices of the Peace and Constables of the County of Juniata, that they are to appear in their proper places, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon of said day, with their records, examinations and oyer and terminer, to do those things that to their officers respectively appertain, and those that are bound by recognition to be forthcoming, to do those things that may be in the duty of said officers, and there to prosecute against them as shall be just.

For an act of the Assembly, passed the 31st day of May, 1854, which made the duty of Justices of the Peace of the several counties of this Commonwealth to return to the Clerk of the Court of Quarter Sessions of the respective counties, all the recognitions entered into before them by any person or persons charged with the commission of any crime, except such as may be ordered before a Justice of the Peace, or returning laws at least ten days before the commencement of the session of the Court to which they are made returnable, respectively, and in all cases where recognitions are entered into less than ten days before the commencement of the session of the Court, to return the same in the same manner as if said act had not been passed. Dated at Milliflinton, the 22nd day of August in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and ninety-three.

SAMUEL LAPP, Sheriff, Juniata County, Pa. August 2, 1893.

Corn, Potatoes and Wheat grow best when planted with Phosphate. This is acknowledged by all who have tried it. YORCK CHEMICAL WORKS, YORCK, PA.

Purify the Life Blood. THE BLOOD PROLONGS LIFE. DR. LINCOLN'S BLOOD SEARCHER. Which will cure the Skin, Scalds, Scabies, Itch, Humors, Etc. All Druggists sell it. THE SELLERS MEDICINE CO. PITTSBURGH, PA.

Robbester Business University. COMMERCIAL and SHORTHAND SCHOOL. PRACTICAL EDUCATION. PRINCIPAL: J. H. ROBBESTER. ILLINOIS A College of Study, a Thorough Faculty. The LEGAL, BOOK-KEEPING, and SHORTHAND DEPARTMENTS. CLERICAL, and SHORTHAND DEPARTMENTS. WILLIAMS & ROGERS, ROCHESTER, N. Y.