The Lewis town Gazette of March 8th says:—During the past fall Solo and which lies about 2 1/2 miles west of Liverpool. To this farm he then removed and there passed the remainder of his life. It was only the strong and urgent persuasion of his friend Holman that induced him to buy the farm, for he never even felt a desire to examine it, although it lay close to the Leiter farm on which he lived. Under his excellent management it soon disclosed its latest capabilities and productiveness and in this purchase, were so laid the foundation of his fortune that no vibrations or panics could ever after shake them. Daniel Zeigler was thrice married. His first wife died in 1839. By her he had six children, of whom three sons and two daughters survived him. He was a second time married to a daughter of George Minium, Esq., deceased, to whom he had a daughter, now also dead.

His second wife died in 1864 and in 1866 he was married to his third, Mrs. Mary Wenner widow of Eichard Wenner, deceased, with whom he has lived for 28 years, in unbroken and uninterrupted domestic harmony and happiness. Daniel Zeigler was at the time of his death grandfather of 9 grand children, and great grand father of 5 great grand children. His funeral was impressive inasmuch as it was largely attended by very many of the best citizens of Juniata and Perry counties, all of whom had long been his fast and warm friends. Death who loves a shining mark, has rarely stricken down a victim who possessed in so eminent a degree all the attributes of perfect manhood. Many there are and have been, who are and have been more widely named, but in their social circles few are the number who are so highly esteemed. Starting in life without any advantage to assist, he knew the value of help and was very ready to assist those who needed assistance. More fortunate than others, who like him himself have been handicapped by early poverty.

BIOGRAPHY OF DANIEL ZEIGLER, ESQ., DECEASED.

Daniel Zeigler, the subject of this memoir, was born near Marksville, Perry county, Pa., December 23rd, 1816. At the tender age of six months, by the death of his father, he was left to the sole care of his widowed mother. Concerning his early years your writers have no data, but when he reached the age of 12, his mother again married, this time a man by the name of Huffard, a shoemaker by occupation.

For some time after his mother's marriage he remained under the maternal roof, and worked along with his step-father at the shoe trade. Soon however as the passing years had developed his physique and strength he quitted the shoe-maker's bench, and in company with his elder brothers secured a contract for cutting cord wood, and engaged in that employment. The place where he first swung the woodman's axe was somewhere west of Duncannon and the wood was designed for the Montebello Furnace. It was cut, split, and hauled in the winter time by the joint labor of his brothers and himself. The horses employed by them and in which they boarded themselves while engaged at this occupation, was one which was well vented by means of an old fashioned chimney with a large gaping mouth. Straw made up the beds upon which they lay down to sleep, and a blanket was their only cover.

Yet the subject of this sketch has often declared that those were the happiest days of his life, and to us his own words, his brothers and himself "were the merriest even alive." How long he followed the woodman's craft is unknown to the writer. It was at all events some time afterwards that he removed to Duncannon borough and entered the employ of a man by the name of Isaac Keiser, a hotel keeper, who owned a small farm which was attached to, or connected in some way with the hotel property. This land was cultivated by Mr. Zeigler for his employer, and when not engaged in farm work he attended the bar of the hotel. The hotel he has frequently said was at the time well patronized by the workmen of the Duncannon iron works. It was there that they spent their evenings and enjoyed themselves according to the fashion of those times in a way that frequently exceeded the bounds of proper decorum.

It was the time that he lived in Duncannon that the Clark's Ferry dam was constructed, and the deceased was one of the hands who helped to build it. His steadiness and ability soon attracted the notice of those over him, and he was promoted to "jigger boss" and was then called, situation requiring a man of sober temperate habits. He remained at Duncannon some five years, and in that time by industry and prudent management by the sum of $500. It was also while he lived there that he married a Miss Keiser, the daughter of Isaac Keiser, Esq., who was his first wife. After leaving Duncannon he bought a tract of land situated in Susquehanna township, Juniata county, Pa., to which he then removed, and on which he lived for some years. This land was thickly timbered, with prudence and good judgment, which by that time was habitual, he cut the timber into railroad ties, lumber and to himself. He also at the same time invested some of his spare means in canal boat and team. The canal then was owned by the Commonwealth. It was the golden days of boating and it also proved a remunerative venture for him. All shipments were then made by water navigation, and one season his boat by chance remained over winter in Philadelphia. In consequence, it had a full load of merchandise on the home or back trip, which paid him handsomely. After clearing his land of its timber, he then sold it, and removing to Liverpool township, Perry county, Pa., leased the farm of Christian Leiter, deceased, now the property of Isaac Witmer. When he removed from Juniata county, I have heard him say, he brought with him $7000, the proceeds of his industry up to that date. I am informed how long he was the tenant of Christian Leiter, perhaps not long.

His bitter to successful struggle made him desirous of owning a farm more fertile and productive than he had previously cultivated. Through the strong recommendations of John Holman Esq., deceased he was persuaded to examine, and then purchase a neighboring farm then known as the John Uleh farm, which was in the market for sale,

Injured While Coasting

Impure Blood Asserts Itself But Hood's Sarsaparilla Cures the Disease and Restores Health.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass." "During the winter of 1887, I was injured on one limb while coasting. It did not trouble me much at first, but soon became more painful, my strength began to decline and I could not rest at night. I was attended by several different doctors but all failed to check the trouble and I grew rapidly worse. Early in 1890 I had to use crutches and my health was very poor, having lost my appetite and being reduced in flesh. In the fall of 1891 I had to take my bed and it was thought I would not live.

I would not live until spring. During all this time I had tried many different medicines but did not get better. In the meantime to give me relief, the several bunches around my knee were lanced and later every effort made to heal the running sore but all in vain. Then it was, while confined to my bed last spring, that my father, having read much about the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla, decided to have me give it a trial. I have taken it regularly, using nearly six bottles. All the sores but two are healed and these are nearly well. I have thrown away my crutches as I can walk up to school and do some work. I have a good appetite and feel good health and have increased in weight very much. Hood's Sarsaparilla has been a blessing to me." WILLIAM JOHNSON, Normanville, Pennsylvania.
