

MIFFLINTOWN,
WEDNESDAY, MAY 9, 1894.

B. F. SCHWEIER,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

In the past 10 months the Washington Government ran $65,447,447. When the Republicans were in power they had a surplus.

The worm which is destroying fields of clover in different sections of the State is said to have been brought by a bug from Germany. It is said that the best way to destroy the pest is to plow the fields in May and June.

Rev. L. N. Irvine of St. James Protestant Episcopal Church, Philadelphia is to be tried by an ecclesiastical body of his church upon a number of charges among which is one of contracting personal debts which brought disgrace upon the church.

Coxey's Commemorial of Christ.

Coxey's Army started from Massillon, Ohio on Easter Sunday, and arrived at Washington on Sunday, April 29, and on Tuesday, May 1st, marched into the city over 300 strong, and when they reached the Capitol grounds they numbered 600, having been increased to that number by Washingtonians of the same stripe of people.

It was a five mile march from their camp to the Capitol grounds. Thousands of people lined the streets to see the show.

Fifteen thousand people were massed on the east front of the Capitol building to see what would take place.

Two hundred mounted police were there, and detectives and police on foot were scattered through the crowd.

THE ARMY ON THE MARCH. At 10.15 o'clock the army was ready, and out of the Brightwood Driving Park it started for town.

As the caravan wound its way down through the mile stretch of woods to the city, it was the most fantastic array ever conceived in a man's dream.

There came Carl Browne, in his Buckskin suit, mounted on his big gray Percheron stallion, and waving a small flag. Next was a creamy white prancing circus steed, bearing the figure of the whole Paris, Miss Mamie Coxey in the role of the Goddess of Peace.

The Goddess of Peace was followed by Oklahoma Sam, the cowboy on another big stallion. Then came Roy Kirk and three other marshals. Together they formed a nucleus for the rest of the army.

Then marching two by two came the six regular members of the army. Before each company was a commissary wagon drawn by two percherons, the wagon dangled on its white canvas cover with weird allegorical illustrations of the "Curse of National Banks."

Finally a long weird shriek of the bagpipes heralded the Philadelphia companies. From the City of Brotherly Love came also a goddess of peace. Her identity was hidden.

She was another "Unknown," believed to be a circus rider, and Mrs. Annie L. Dixon, a populist agitator of Kansas. A heavy brown wagon horse, selected for his docility carried her. She was a good-looking, plump, red-checked maiden of eighteen, draped with the Stars and Stripes with not maristic effect, a gilt star flashing from her blue turban, and dark hair streaming down her back. She said her name was Virginia La Valette.

Her escort was Christopher Columbus Jones, a small dried up man with long gray beard, a shabby jacket, and a ruffled ancient beaver hat.

toil before the police caught well on to his heel in movement through the crowd. He drew out a type-written speech and was about to deliver it when the police surrounded him and hustled him off, but did not arrest him for he made no resistance.

MARSHAL BROWN IN THE SURRENDER. Marshal Carl Browne leaped over into the grounds, but his large white hat and leather coat enabled the police to follow him. Mounted police leaped their horses over the low wall into the enclosure and surrounded him and elbowed the fight out of him, but no woman having fallen in love with him from which he was bailed by a Washington woman who fell in love with him on first sight.

CHRISTOPHER COLUMBUS JONES, who commanded the 60 Philadelphia of the Commonwealth of Christ forced himself into the grounds, and resisted arrest, and was sent to jail, but no woman having fallen in love with him came forward to release him on bail.

While all this was taking place the army stood in ranks with the staves they carried instead of guns at a shoulder arms. Coxey having again reached his carriage, led his followers to a camp near the city where he was allowed by the city commissioners to charge an admission fee for their camp to raise cash to help keep them in a living.

Not Capable of Self Government.

Kansas has a Secretary of State who was greatly excited over the rest of Coxey in Washington. The name of the Secretary of State is Osborne, and he delivered himself of the following prediction:

"I want to make this prediction. There will be no overt acts until the next election. Then simultaneous with the various flames will shoot up into the air from the Atlantic to the Pacific and every political residence will be destroyed in this uprising of the people."

"We unto them who have sought to say the title of the past six months. The farmers are preparing for this they are selling a horse or a cow and buying Winchester and making mechanics are doing the same."

Osborne failed to tell what good will be accomplished by the burning process that he predicts. He is a small man in a big place, and does not understand that the American system of government could not exist six months if the people were like he is.

He does not understand that if the American people adopt force and fire to correct what they believe is not right in their system of government that they employ despotic means and leave the settlement of all questions to physical force. He does not understand that when the people adopt such means to redress their troubles, free government by ballot is at an end.

He does not understand that the only correct way is to grin and bear until a new election time, and then let the man who made the stand what is needed to correct the troubles. It is the best of the American system of government that all political and business troubles may be corrected peacefully by the election of new men, men who understand what measures are required to correct the troubles complained of.

THE ELECTRICITY BUSINESS. The electric business is a frequent source of trouble in our cities. One of the American people drop the ball as a means of redressing wrongs and mistakes, and resort to riot and the torch as Osborne suggests their liberties will speedily come to an end, and they will have proven themselves not capable of self government.

Coxey Arrested. Coxey was arrested on Monday and put to jail, but soon appeared in a police court with Brown and Jones where all were released on $500 bail, each to answer on Friday for having violated a law of Congress against assembling on the Capitol grounds.

After Brown's release he issued the following address: Chief Marshal's head-quarters, Commonwealth of Christ in the field, Camp J. S. Coxey, Jr., Second and M. streets, May 1, 1894. Special order, No. 1.

Comrades of the Commonwealth: Liberty lies withering in her own blood at the national capital city tonight, stabbed in the house of her friends by her supposed guardians. Free speech has been suppressed, and policeman's clubs have taken the place of the scales of justice. But it is only temporary. "When the gods would destroy they first make mad."

Brothers we have entered upon the beginning of the end, the wounds of liberty, which have been made, and the scales of justice will again be equally poised, as in the days of our illustrious sires, for we have come here today to stay until there is a greater gathering here of men than confronted Lee on the banks of the Potomac years ago, and then the real traitors—the Rothschilds who used the men of God to try on that war to the profit of King Gold—will be returned like Balshazar of old, and every producer will then get the products of his labor, for the passage of brother Coxey's bills would be the entering wedge to such a condition.

A Race to the Court House. The Huntingdon Globe says—Huntingdon had quite an exciting affair on Thursday, and it was some time before the citizens could learn what it was all about.

They took a good lead but he stopped at Sheriff Oake's insurance office and Myton passed him. Bell was following, and began yelling, "Stop him, when the spectators changed the cry to "Stop thief!"

Both men were arrested, and Myton passed him. Bell was following, and began yelling, "Stop him, when the spectators changed the cry to "Stop thief!"
