

SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN

WILFLENTOWN,
WEDNESDAY, OCT. 3, 1894.

B. F. SCHWEIER,
EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

REPUBLICAN STATE TICKET.

FOR GOVERNOR.
GEN. DANIEL B. HASTINGS, of Beloit.

FOR LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR.
WALTER LYON,
of Pittsburg.

FOR AUDITOR-GENERAL,
AMOS MYLIN,
of Lancaster.

FOR SECRETARY OF INTERNAL AFFAIRS,
GEN. JAMES R. LATTA,
of Philadelphia.

FOR CONGRESS AT LARGE.
HON. GALT SHA A. GROW, of Glenwood.

HON. GEORGE F. HUFF, of Greenwood.

FOR CONGRESS,
THAD M. MASON.

FOR ASSEMBLY,
H. Latimer Wilson.

FOR REGISTER AND RECORDER,
ABSON B. WILL.

FOR SHERIFF,
JAMES H. Groninger.

FOR TURVY COMMISSIONER,
Lewis Degen.

The calamity makers did not like Hastings speech. It had too much humoresque spirit in it. If it had no spice, the calamity makrs would have called it dry and tasteless. Vote for Will for Register and Recorder.

The leaders of the untrified, who expect office by appointment, and who expect to have influence enough at Washington to control appointments are displeased with Hastings and Latta and Mason for swinging round the circle. Vote for Wilson for Sheriff.

The calamity makers are worried at the political land slide that is rushing upon them for their incompetence in government, and for the business depression that their tariff reform acts at Washington brought upon the country. Vote for the whole Republican ticket.

APPOINTMENT Court House, where Lee surrendered, was destroyed by fire last February, and the court house was rebuilt three miles from the old site and again named Appomattox Court House, but that change of location for the court house moved the landmark of the surrender of Lee's Army, but in order to preserve the exact place from being lost, the post office at the site of the original court house, has been named, Sir Surrender. Vote for Wilson for Legislator.

TALK about electing Singlyer. Mr. Singlyer is using his paper to fire red hot shot from the ranks of the demagogue of the 3rd Congressional District. He deserts the office. He is more concerned about free trade, and is battling to secure converts to that political faith. Free trade is his battle cry, and yet in the light of that fact there are democrats of intelligence who will tell everyone who will listen to them that the question of free trade is not in this campaign. Vote for Groninger for Sheriff.

The Sugar Trust, Nova Scotia Coal Syndicate, Calumet Mining Party don't like Hastings illustration of the former paying his son more for a day's work than outside people, just for the purpose of keeping the money at home in the family. It illustrated the good sense of a nation keeping its means at home among its own people instead of sending it to foreign nations. If you want to let the foreigners in with their cheap stuffs, vote the democratic ticket, but if you want to keep the money in the family. Vote the republican ticket.

SENATOR HILL has been nominated by the democracy of York state for Governor. He is one of the democratic Senators who did not support President Cleveland's free trade measures, because the business interests of the great state of New York are not for free trade. His nomination is a rebuke to the President's free trade policy. Of course the Cleveland Office holders will be against Hill, but the manufacturing democrats will be for him. With the free trade and manufacturing democrats opposed to each other, there will be no trouble in electing Morton, the republican candidate for Governor. Vote for Will for Register and Recorder.

All the people have been complaining about the hard times and low prices, and business depression and bank failure and railroad failures since the Cleveland rule commenced, but as if to add insult to injury every county has a few democrats who are holding post offices or are applicants for official position, who stand up and merrily shout, Calamity howlers! Calamity howlers! That is the answer that the leaders of the Cleveland administration have instructed their dependent office holders and office seekers to make to the general murmur among the people against the incompetent Cleveland administration. Vote the republican ticket, and that will settle the calamity makers.

The calamity makers are denouncing Hastings, because he has not proposed some new State laws. They don't say what kind of laws. They forgot that the laws in this State that repealed the democratic real estate tax was repealed by the republicans. They forgot that the democratic debt of $10,000,000 on the State has been paid by republican law. They forgot that all the good laws that have passed in this State the last 30 years have been passed by a republican legislature. They don't file a bill of particulars as to what laws they want in the State. Their leaders don't know that there is no State issue. The calamity makers have made an issue as broad as the nation that has depressed every industry, and that's what is the matter. Vote the Republican ticket.

AFTER BYNUM'S SCALP

Farmer Stanley Wants Some of His Salary Now.

DECEIVED BY ELECTION ORATORY.

Mr. Bynum Said Wheat Would Bring $1 25 a Bushel If Cleveland Were Elected—It Really Soils for Forty-five Cents, and Stanley Thinks Bynum Should Make Up the Difference.—The Farmers Logic.

OF all the novel lawsuits that are annually begun in the rural districts of Hoosierdom none outranks in oddity the claim for damages that Farmer William B. Bynum of Anderson, Indiana, Indiana, has brought against Congressman Bynum, of his district.

Farmer Stanley puts his damages at $150, which he will ask the courts to recover him from Mr. Bynum on the grounds that Bynum caused him to lose that amount by saying in a speech delivered at Pendleton in the last campaign that when he would sell at $1.25 a bushel if Cleveland were elected. Having implicit faith in the "Grasshopper," Bynum is now asking $150 damages, the damages, in his complaint, that he went ahead and planted in wheat all the ground he could spare on his farm.

The first year he refused to sell at $1.25, but his sons, fearing when the price should reach the trimmed $1.25. But wheat was on the telegram, and steadily declined until he was forced to sell part of his crop for 50 cents a bushel. Still living in his home, he sold the remainder at $1.25, and the price of wheat up to the maximum of $1.25 nearly, Stanley says, he held back more than 1,000 bushels, of which he has been forced to dispose of at the bankrupt price of 45 cents.

Farmer Bynum could not help but guess that Bynum's false representation in holding out the allurement of $1.25 in case of Cleveland's election was the direct cause of farmer Stanley's loss.

Stanley is bound in the opinion of his neighbors that he is a man of good character, and the community is anxious to know what becomes of him.

Stanley is now a rampant Populist.

He is a tall, rawboned Hoosier, who talks in metaphors and can tell the coming changes of the weather better than the weatherman.

He is found in the opinion of The Nonconformist, a Populist paper, a few days ago. His feet were on the editor's desk and several printers were listening to his recital of his wrongs.

END CAMPAIGN LYING.

"If God let me live, and I am yet not dead, I'll stand up and say, chowing the end of a Madison county store, 'I'll have the law on Bynum.' I have made up my mind to make him stand good for the difference in my wheat crop, and if there are any justices in courts I'll win the case."

Stanley's friends don't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

LET DON'T STOP WORKING.

Following the defeat of his candidate, Mr. McLeer, for renomination as the Democratic candidate for congress in the Third district last week, Mr. Singlyer, the Democratic candidate for governor, issued an address to the state Democrats as follows:

"The action of the Democrats who controlled the convention in the Third district yesterday, it may as well be thought, will do us no harm. We will support the candidates, dishearten and defeat Democratic effort to poll a full vote in this city in November. This district was the key to the situation in Philadelphia, and Democrats throughout the state should cast their ballots we have pursued the same line we have in former campaigns—we are giving our support to the man who will be most likely to win the election, and will do the best for the grand body of workingmen in this grand old commonwealth, and to no class of workingmen more so than to the miners."

A history of General Hastings' life follows, after which The Record concludes as follows:

"Summing it all up, then, what are the special features in connection with the career of the Republican candidate for governor as an employer of labor, and as a champion of the workingmen? The record shows that he has been led by the practical abandonment of organized action in Philadelphia, where 100,000 Democrats have allowed themselves to be handfended and delivered into the control of a few contemptible ring-leaders, roosters and ruffians."

We take them to be as follows:

"First—That he has been led by the table and recapitulation that we have 453 Posts less than one year ago, or at least that number of posts have not reported for term ended June 30, 1894. These Posts have an estimated membership of 7,907, which is included in "loss by delinquent reports."

We take them to be as follows:

"Second—That his boyhood and early manhood days were spent in a heroic struggle with circumstances and conditions that are not equal to that of those miners of mind of miners today.

"Third—that in overcoming adverse circumstances and conditions he exhibited the spirit that should possess every American boy—he success furnishing a commanding example to others to follow him for his backbone of the fact that he has made himself what he is.

"Fourth—Because of his pronounced and well known sympathy for those who are struggling to better their condition in life, and his disposition to aid them when possible.

"Fifth—Because of his approachableness—his readiness to grasp the hand of the toiler just as cordially as that of the most wealthy—a habit not affected, but natural, which has made him so popular with all classes.

"Sixth—Because of his position as to the amount of relief given to American labor, which he has been able to do with the minimum of expense.

"Seventh—Because of his opposition to the pluck-me-store system of paying wages, at present as well as at a time when there was no law in the state to prohibit corporations from doing such a thing, and not only not sue the corporation, but to sue the corporation for the amount of wages due.

"Eighth—Because of his refusal to recognize any blacklist, giving employment to every miner applying for work—provided there was a vacant place in the mine—regardless of the organization to which he belonged.

"Ninth—Because of his position as to the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his resignation.

It is a fact that he doesn't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his resignation.

It is a fact that he doesn't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his resignation.

It is a fact that he doesn't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his resignation.

It is a fact that he doesn't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his resignation.

It is a fact that he doesn't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his resignation.

It is a fact that he doesn't know enough to get him out of his predicament, but they are anxious to buy gold bricks, or bet on three card monte. But we been learnin' since them days, and d'you know, I consider a man who will stand up and be a man to his wife, and to his children, and to his wife, I can't see why Bynum ain't as guilty, or guiltier, for that matter, as a man who comes to my house and sells me a broken wind and spurned horse, for a sound critter. The court'll purtice me if I swindled in buying a bad horse, and it's a bad horse, right?"

Stanley's Congressman got me to plant all my farm in wheat, 'spectin' to get a big price, and then the price goes down to that point where it's cheaper to feed to hogs than to lead in any case that is a good one.

It is not a question of Mr. Singlyer not more than it was in the beginning, but of the policy of the party he represents, and that fact should be borne in mind to the end, no matter what disturbances occur within the ranks of the supporters of President Cleveland and the poverty producing policy of his administration.

CLEVELAND ADMITS IT.

A favorite argument of the few Pennsylvanians who continue to advocate the policy of the democratic party is to claim that he has been twice re-elected, and during the time that he was president the present Democratic administration has been in power since his