A Boarding House Thief

On Tuesday last, a young fellow, calling himself George Mitchell, slen der, but not tall, dark complexion and a black moustache, representing that he had charge of a gang of Western Union telegraph lineman which he expected here, applied at Mrs. O'dell's in Altoons for boarding, stating that one of our merch ants had recommended the place. As the house was full the hostess said she could not accommodate him. He said he did not care to go to a hotel and if it could possibly be ar ranged, he would willingly pay in advance. After much persuasion Geo. Duf-, a permanent boarder, consented to share his room with the stranger, who seemed grateful for the accommodation. Next morning, after breakfast and after the regular boarder had gone to work, the strang er visited the room, donned Dufo's overcoat, leaving his own, took his watch and $10.40, and left the house, forgetting to return. Likely enough he is an itinerant boarding-house thief, and it is hoped he may be apprehended before his list of victims grows larger.

The cause of the trouble among the Evangelical people seems to have originated in missionary work among the heathen Japanese by Rev. J. Hertz'er.
