Why has the Cleveland administration interfered with the Chinese and Japanese war?

TRAMP General Coxy says he will lead another army to Washington, if Congress don't legislate this winter to please him. Keep off the grass General.

GENERAL Wei, one Chinese commander of the battle of Ping Yang, led his head off by order of the Chinese government for the loss of the battle of Ping Yang.

PREMIER CLEVELAND is out on his feet now Washington, and will not be disturbed while he is there preparing his message to Congress. His friends say he will startle the country with the statement for a change in banking.

The Chinese soldiers are such brutes that they carry umbrellas and poles to battle. A dude with an umbrella to keep off the sun and rain, and a fan to keep himself cool is of no account against an all round Japanese soldier, armed with breech loading rifle.

THE U. S. U. S. are censuring the Cleveland administration for smothering a bottle of champagne over the bows of the steam ship St. Louis when the ship was launched from the Pull and Adams ship yard last week. They think Mrs. Cleveland should have used a bottle of water for the launching or baptism of the ships.

Allerton, Ohio, Nov. 14.—While Patrick Cox, aged 13 years, and a sister two years his junior, were passing through a field near Lake Erie, eight miles east of here, on their way home from school, last evening, a large flock of wild geese settled down near the children. The boys charged among them, thinking to put them to flight, but the whole flock, which numbered about 200, attacked them, using their bills and wings. The boys succeeded in fighting them off for a short time, when he sunk to the ground exhausted.

The little girl ran screaming to her home, and when she told her story the boy's father and an older brother hastened to his assistance, but only succeeded in affecting his rescue for a few minutes. When the boys' father and an older brother hastened to his assistance, but only succeeded in affecting his rescue for a few minutes. A Praying President

The editor of the Advance tells a story which he had from the lips of the renowned elucider, James E. Murdock. He said: "I spent three weeks in the white house with Mr. Lincoln as his guest. One night it was just after the battle of Bull Run—I was restless and could not sleep. I was repeating the part which I was to take in a public performance. The house was dark, and I was alone. I heard low tones proceeding from a private room near where the President slept. The door was partly open. It was the President kneeling beside an open window. The light was turned low. For a moment I was silent, looking in amazement and wonder. Then he cried out in tones so pleading and sorrowful, 'O thou God that heard Solomon in the night when he prayed for wisdom, hear me; I cannot lead this people, I cannot guide the affairs of this nation without thy help. I am poor and weak and sinful. O God, who didst hear Solomon when he cried for wisdom, hear me and save this nation.'"

Elephants Observe Sunday.

"I never understood," said Mrs. Potter "why the elephant was considered a sacred animal until I went to Burmah. There I saw elephants at work and my respect for them increased. For the strength and sagacity of those high beasts are unlimited. Burmah is the center of great Teak wood timber trade. The high teak trees are cut in the forest hundreds of miles away, and are dragged, carried, rolled and otherwise transported, all by elephants. I saw an elephant cut down a tree and other cutters of the trade. After the logs have been sawed into various lengths at the mills the elephants come into use again. One elephant will take a high log, put his trunk down against it and with his back and trunk push it along as if it were a straw. Another elephant who is waiting takes the log from him and lifting one end walks away with it and stacks it in its proper place. He also puts the outside cuttings and bark in their proper piles. If the pieces do not fall in their proper place or are not lined up with the pile when he first puts them down he pushes them around with his leg until they are placed as he wishes. I saw an elephant lift a log weighing seven tons clear to the top of a pile and then adjust it until it filled its proper place exactly. The elephants that work in McGregor's yard at Rangood are fed every Sunday morning with tamarinds, salt and other things they like. When the elephants are sick their medicine is given them by hand. Therefore they are always suspicious of tamarinds, and before eating their share Sunday morning they carefully crush them to see that no medicine is concealed in them. The elephants in this yard ate 1,200 pine apples in four days. They are all in favor of strict Sunday observance. Once they attempted to make them work Sunday to please some American tourists, but the elephants wouldn't have it and began to throw small pieces of timber at the visitors where upon the attempt was discontinued."

Orange, N. J., Nov. 14.

Christian Baumgartner, a farm hand, 59 years old and single, employed by Xaxier Zwinger, a milkman living on Mount Pleasant avenue, West Orange was gored to death by a bull last night. He went to drive the bull to the barn, when the animal turned on him and drove him against the fence and plunged his horns through Baumgartner's abdomen three times, nearly disemboweling him. He was taken in a wagon to Orange for medical assistance, but died on the way there.

HE WAS A HUSTLER.

The Opportunity Was a Golden One, and He Hastened to Grasp It.

When the general Schofield went to Keokuk, Ia., and married one of the belles of that town, Miss Kilbourne, an amusing incident occurred which Arthur Clarke, business manager of John Drew, the comedian, enjoys telling. It was the general's first wife, and she was editor and proprietor of Keokuk's leading paper, The Gate City, and in his counting room he has a particularly energetic Hebrew, by name Joe Klein, who is a hustler in every sense of the word, and the day is bleak indeed when he gets left. He heard of the approaching wedding of Miss Kilbourne with the distinguished officer, and early on the morning of the date set for the happy event he called on Kilbourne's household, near the doorbell and inquired for Mrs. Kilbourne, mother of the bride. He was informed by the servant who answered his ring that Mrs. Klein was at first and afterward made square.

As to the two former, perhaps it is scarcely necessary seriously to point out that the answer to the first is not 60 days, but 30, and to the second not 20 days, but 16, since the snail, who gains one foot each day for 15 days, climbs on the sixteenth day to the top of the pole and there remains.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Where Woman Comes Last.

An Arab—meaning a tent dweller; in an equine sense the town dweller in Arab—loves first and above all his horse. No one need rectify the oft said affection he will lavish upon him. Next he loves his firearm. This, poetically speaking, ought to be a six foot gold inland, made in the honor of a matchlock, which would kick any man but an Arab flat on his back at every shot, but actually, in Algeria or Tunis, when he lives near a city, it is more apt to be a modern English breech-loader. You must buy from the busy haunts of men to find the matchlock. Next to his gun he loves his oldest son. Last comes his wife—or one of his wives perhaps.

"General Schofield," began Klein indignantly, "do you realize that you are about to take from us one of the fattest fowls we have in Keokuk? Do you know that when she goes hence with you she will long for news of her old neighbors? In order that she may be really made happy by these things I ask you now to place your honored name upon the subscription list of The Gate City, which is the best paper in Iowa. Our rates are $8 for the daily paper and $1.50 for the weekly. Think of your young bride." And there were tears in Klein's voice as he pleaded for recognition.

THE GOLDEN FLEECE.

The Most Highly Prized of All the Herds of the Orient.

Of all the orders of medieval chivalry which have survived the shock of successive revolutions on the continent of Europe since the great catalan of 1189, that of the Golden Fleece is perhaps the most distinguished and the most highly coveted by personages of royal birth or of illustrious patrician lineage. Students of the history of the east or of ancient heraldry will be interested with pleasure that the Order of the Tolson d'Or of Spain having been conferred on the Duke of York, his royal highness was on Tuesday invested, at Marlborough House, with the insignia of the Order by the Prince of Wales, himself a knight of the order, acting in the name of the queen regent and on behalf of the young king of Spain. The secretary of the Spanish legation, the chancellor of the order, read the royal commission creating the duke a knight, and the august ceremony was also attended by the Duke of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha and the Duc d'Annam as Knights of the order, and by the Spanish ambassador and the Earl of Kimberley, her majesty's secretary of state for foreign affairs.

The Duke of York only received the badge of the order, in the shape of the figure of a sheep in embossed gold suspended from a heavy chain of gold, but at a chapter of the order or at great court functions at Madrid he would be entitled to wear the full robes, consisting of a long mantle of crimson velvet, cut in the fashion of a merlot, and richly embroidered at the borders with ornamental devices of stars, half moons and fleeces in gold and lined with white satin, over a doublet and hose of crimson cloth, the full robes of the order, a "chaperon" of hood, with a long flowing streamer of black satin, but this headgear has in modern times been generally dispensed with.

Originally the robes of the order, which was founded in 1459 by Philip the Good, duke of Burgundy, were of crimson cloth lined with white lamb's wool, and this circumstance has some what strengthened the theory that the golden fleece was instituted by Philip the Good in grateful recognition of the immensities which the Duke of Burgundy had acquired from his vast estates in Flanders. By it as it may, the woolen costume was changed in 1473 at a chapter held at Valenciennes for the more costly materials of velvet, tafetta, damask and gold embroidery.—London Telegraph.

CATCH QUESTIONS.

Some Puzzling Queries That Appear Not Hard to Answer.

If a goose weighs 10 pounds and a half its own weight, what is the weight of the goose? Who has not been tempted to reply by the instant 15 pounds? The answer is, being, of course, 20 pounds. It is astonishing what a very simple query will sometimes catch a wise man napping. Even the following have been known to succeed: How many days would it take to cut up a piece of cloth 50 yards long, one yard being cut off every day? A snail climbing up a pole 20 feet high ascends five feet every day and slips down four feet every night. How long will the snail take to reach the top of the post? A wise man having a window one yard high and one yard wide, requiring more light, enlarged his window to twice its former size, yet the window was still only one yard high and one yard wide. How was this done? This is a catch question in geometry, as the preceding were catch questions in arithmetic. The window was diagonally cut at first and was afterward made square.

HOOD'S NEVER FAILS

A Business Man's Experience Cured of Rheumatism.

A well known business man in Pittsburgh, Pa., writes the letter given below. Mr. Hans is general agent for the Maine granite quarries and contractor for cementing and building work, having an office at No. 708 Penn Avenue.

"G. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. 'Gentlemen: We have a very high opinion of both Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills at our house and with good reason. I have taken most every remedy known for rheumatism, and nothing has done me any good, not matter what the doctor said. The only thing that does me any good, I must admit I have not taken it steadily, but only when the pains of rheumatism came on. Hood's Sarsaparilla has done it."

Always Given Me Relief, and like many others, as soon as I am well I never think of medicine again until the next attack."

HOOD'S Sarsaparilla CURES

back. We are never without Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills in our house, and have recommended both to dozens of friends. When any of my family are taken sick, no matter what the doctor says, the first thing we do is to give them Hood's Sarsaparilla and Hood's Pills.

A Dose of Hood's Pills and follow it up with Hood's Sarsaparilla. I might write several pages in praise of this excellent medicine, but think I have said enough to convince you. T. W. HARRIS, Pittsburgh, Pa.

LEWISTOWN GAZETTE OF NOVEMBER 15.

Tuesday of last week William Nearhook, of Burbanck, seeing Robert Burns with a gun in his hands at that place, held out his hat with the invitation to Bob to shoot it. The latter blazed away, and what shot failed to hit the latter entered Nearhook's hand and wrist and he now knows just what kind of a marksmen Bob is.
