The Huntingdon Journal of March 22nd, says:—William Pearson, a cowboy and his wife, rode on bronchos from Wyoming to this State, a distance of over 2000 miles. His parents lived at Dyrant and the young westerner came all the way to Pennsylvania to see his father who was lying ill at the Albion hospital, and arrived just a few days before his death. Mr. Pearson and his wife were four months making the trip to Cambria county. They carried with them a few cooking utensils, clothes and eatables.

To provide for a beginning to the extinguishment of the debt of Juniata county as required by law, the County Commissioners have raised the taxation to 6 1/2 mills. The large debt of the county, was caused by the county making the four river bridges free. The tax levy for county purposes is 1 1/2 mills heavier than last year. Citizens who levy taxes in the respective townships can well meet this additional expense by lowering the road tax levy a mill and a half and in that way lift considerable of the burden of taxation off the shoulders of the people.

The Lewistown Gazette of the 21st of March says: Tuesday a skeleton of a grown person was dug up in the orchard of Alexander Reed at Reedville, which caused some curiosity as the oldest inhabitant cannot remember of anyone being buried there and is probably the remains of some pioneer or Indian who died and was buried there before that portion of the county was settled. It was discovered while excavating for a cellar and foundation for a dwelling house and furniture room. It was buried Monday morning when Miss Ophelia Armstrong was at the barn, she was taken suddenly very sick. An others were at the barn at the time, she was helped to a seat, not being able to walk more. Help was summoned and she was carried to the house. While on the way to the house, she seemed to be suffering terribly, when she gave a scream and said: "Oh, my head, which were the last words she spoke, but seemed conscious between convulsions and lingered until about six o'clock the next morning, when death came to relieve her suffering. She was a quiet, unobtrusive girl, loved and respected by all who knew her, being a member of the Lutheran church and of the C. E. Society. She will be missed. The C. E. society, at its piece at her funeral and as a tribute of respect placed two beautiful bouquets of flowers on her coffin, the one forming the letters C. E. The funeral Sunday, was largely attended by sympathizing friends. The services were conducted by her pastor, Rev. Dr. Neff, after which the remains were conveyed to Old Salem cemetery and interred beside her father, who died suddenly three days less than a year before her, she dying on the 15th and he on the 18th. She was aged 27 years, 1 month and 15 days.
