The Millionaire's Eagle Eye. Another story illustrative of the daily life of a Chicago millionaire may help to explain why some people have more money than others.

This millionaire invited a visitor from another city to meet him at a certain hour and accompany him to the stockvards, where he has large interests. The millionaire rode up in a sidebar buggy somewhat the worse for mud and wear, drawn by a shaggy but active horse. He explained that before starting for the yards he would have to go to one of the large banks down town, as he was on the board which regulated loans, and he had to pass on an application for a loan of $500,000. They stopped in front of the bank,

In the days of the old regime the crops were all fenced in, and the hogs, and cattle as well, were allowed to roam at will through the fastnesses of the swamps and timbered tracts. Oftentimes the animals were not seen for months. When the time drew near for bog killing, parties were made up to "drive" the swamp and capture the half wild creatures, as it was desired to fatten them in pens before killing. It was not infrequently the case that the swine became quite ferocious, having been left so long at large, and the hunters found themselves in the midst of a "wild boar" hunt in earnest, which

The General Passenger Agents and Their Services to the Public. General passenger agents know what it costs to go anywhere, remain there any length of time and come back by another route. They are, in short, the Pooh Bals of the realm of travel. Without them the average human being with a burning desire to go somewhere would be as a blind man in a crowded, unfamiliar thoroughfare, as a ship without a rudder or a bird of passage deprived of one of its wings. Think of a world without the ever present "folder" and its impartial, never overdrawn claims of superiority for the line to which it owes its existence. Life in it would indeed be without sufficient compensation. The art of advertising was an unknown quantity until the general passenger agent came upon the scene and with his agent came upon the scene and with his signal.

ON THE SCRAPBOOK PLAN.

Moody's method of sermon making is original, says McClure's Magazine. In reality his sermons are never made— they are always still in the making. Suppose the subject is "Paul." He takes a monstrous envelope, capable of holding some hundreds of slips of pa-per, labels it "Paul," and slowly stocks it with original notes, cuttings from papers, extracts from books, illustrations, soraps of all kinds, nearly or remotely referring to the subject. After accumulating these, it may be for years, be wades through the mass, selects a number of the most striking points, arranges them and finally makes a few jottings in a large hand, and these he carries with him to the platform. The process of looking through the whole envelope is repeated each time the sermon is preached. Partly on this account and partly because in delivery he forgets some points or disproportionately amplifies others, no two sermons are ever exactly the same. By this method also—a matter of much more importance—the delivery is always frash to himself. Thus, to make this clearer, suppose that after a thorough sifting 100 eligible points remain in the envelope. Every time the sermon is preached these hundred are overhauled. But no single sermon, by a mere limitation of time, can contain, say, more than 70. Hence, though the general scheme is the same, there is always novelty in the arrangement, for the particular 70 vary with each time of delivery. No greater mistake could be made than to imagine that Mr. Moody does not study for his sermons. On the contrary, he is always studying. When in the evan-gelistic field, the batch of envelopes, bursting with fatness, appears the moment breakfast is over, and the stranger who enters at almost any time of day, except at the hours of platform work, will find him with his litter of notes, either stuffing himself or his portfolios with new points he has picked up through the day. His search for these "points," and especially for light upon

THE DECLINE OF WAR.

Pursuit of Property and Wealth the Muin

Cause Thereof. The warlike temperament of man has seen one of his most prominent characteristics from the earliest times. To live to fight has been the chief aim of most primitive peoples and has been a leading occupation of all civilized ones. Armies have grown in size, weapons have multiplied in number and destructiveness, battles have grown more and more deadly in action, while also becoming more merciful in their accompaniments, but still it is everywhere apparent that, in spite of these aids to carnage, the military spirit is on the

May we not look for the cause of this in the enormously increased cost of warfare and its interference with the pursuit of prosperity and wealth? When the internal lasses to a people become greater than those they can gain through nquest and annexation, they will be very loath to enter into a great conflict. I am very far from saying that many ther causes, such as ethics and a growing spirit of mercy, may not have contributed to this pacification of the nations, but is it not true that the cost of war is the chief preventive of war? If so, does it not illustrate the rule that the reactions set up by the vast technical improvement of methods of destruction have reacted on the primitive cause of the destruction-viz, the human willand have lessened the cause by modifying the heart and brain of man?-Pop-they show the astonishing misconception of Paul Jones which provailed in the mind of one of the justest men that ever lived. Washington was a hero even to his enemics, yet Washington had actually held a commission in the British army, while Paul Jones could say to the American congress at the close of the war: "I have never borne arms under any but the American flag, nor have I ever borne or acted under any commission but that of the congress of America." This singular distinction against Paul Jones extended to the whole of the feeble naval force of the colonies. Soldiers were treated from the beginning prisoners of war, while until Paul Jones forced an exchange of prisoners upon equal terms American sailors were formally declared to be "traitors, pirates and felons."-"Paul Jones," by Molly Elliot Seawell, in Century.

NOTICE! THE WORLD STILL MOVES!

WE ARE IN THE PROCESSION RIGHT BEHIND THE BAND. No honest man can sell Goods Cheaper than we can and to make both Goods and Prices satisfactory every time. If you have tried elsewhere and failed, give us a trial and be convinced. We succeed where others have failed. A FAIR TEST.—Call at every Store in town, then call on us. The just comparison you will then be able to make of qualities and price, will preachrich in a month but can give you steady a far more forcible sermon than anything we could say. This is a fair test, Our prices correspond with the times. TRY IT. Then come and see the difference between dealing with live and dead men. Remember "no old stock" here. Yours, unbiased and without
