A bull in a China shop is often talked about, but a bull in a preacher's study is something new but true and in business like way in a preacher's study in Carlisle last week, which may be learned from the following despatch:

Carlisle, Pa., May 8.—A bull that was being driven up Hanover street to-day, was captured by the apparition of Rev. H. B. Wile's residence. He made a dash for the front door, smashed it down and trotted leisurely into the pastor's library. Rev. Wile and his family were at dinner, and the unusual commotion threw them into a state of consternation. The bull had begun to make piece meal of next Sunday's sermon, and to demolish the chairs, when the owner, Butcher Parks, rushed to the rescue. The animal walked out of the house in a very deprecating manner.

John Morgan a well-to-do young man, residing two miles northwest of this town, was killed by a freight train last Thursday evening at the bridge across the Susquehanna river at Rockville, Dauphin county. He was a member of the carpenter crew from this place that had been at work for the railroad company at the bridge. The work was closed for the day, and the crew were preparing to return to their homes when the freight came. The whistle was sounded and shouts of the crew were uttered all of which seemed to confuse Morgan, and instead of stepping off the road, he stepped in front of the train, and was knocked off the track, dead. The deceased was a sober industrious young man, highly respected by all who knew him. His remains were brought to this place that evening and prepared by undertaker Snyder for the funeral which took place on Sunday.

His remains were placed in the Lutheran church at the chancel. The large congregation was present with his relatives and friends and secret orders to which he belonged, to listen to the sermon preached by his pastor, Dr. Holloway. His affianced, Miss Annie Oberholzer was so overwhelmed that her cries moved many of the congregation to tears, and as the procession moved through town to Union cemetery her distress cast sorrow and gloom over all the way.

"Carlisle had a sensation on the 6th inst. when it was learned that Dr. H. H. Longsdorf of Centerville, one of the most prominent and successful young physicians in that county, had eloped with his wife's sister, Alice Ernst, aged 23 years, and left behind a wife and two children. His position before the public was such that the story could scarcely be credited, but a letter he left for his mother-in-law corroborated it.

In this letter he says, he and Alice had been in love for two years and cannot live apart; that they are bound for Canada, and when they are settled, he will write home and let her know how they are getting along. He also says, he has made provision for his wife, Ella, and the children.

It is known that they left together on Saturday, taking the train for Hagerstown. He took about $6,000 with him, but left for the family a farm and warehouse worth $10,000, on which there is no debt. He was director of the Merchants' National Bank, Carlisle; school director and ex-President of the Cumberland Co. Medical Society.

About 10 o'clock last Wednesday night, Sheriff Callahan heard a queer noise coming from the upstairs of the jail. He soon located the noise as coming from the southeast corner room, from the cell in which are confined Valentine and Parker. The latter named is one of the three men charged with having burglarized the Hertzler store at Port Royal. From the noise, the Sheriff was convinced that some scheme of escape was being worked by the prisoner Parker, who he recently went to the Jacobs House and arrested Commissioners Moore and Stuart and their clerk Grosinger, and thus reinforced went back to the jail to investigate. Parker looked innocent and said he had not been doing anything wrong, but a coat hanging over the wall between the floor and one of the windows, induced the Sheriff to look at the wall behind the coat, and there was the tell-tale evidence of the effort to quarry through the wall. The plastering had been cut off the wall and work had been begun at working out the mortar from between the stones in the wall. Most of the mortar and plaster had been put in the chimney and stove so that there was not much dirt on the floor. At this juncture the District Attorney Schwager put in an appearance unexpectedly. He was on his way to take the west bound passenger train to Pottsville, when an iron bar came out of the jail window and almost fell on him as he was passing the prison on his way to the railroad, and he hastened to learn the trouble. The bar that fell at the Attorney's feet had been broken off the cell bedstead, and had been used by Parker to quarry the wall. To secure the supposed safe blowers from "the speaking jail," a hand cuff was placed on one wrist and locked to a chain about 3 feet long, fastened in the floor. The bed was rolled near enough to the chain so as to permit the prisoner to lie down. Parker's work was discovered in time to prevent his escape that night. His two companions on the charge of robbery are confined in another cell. The three were separately photographed in the jail yard last Friday afternoon.
