The effect of the expansive power of the sun on railroad track rails is made clear by the following from the Lewisistown Gazette of last week. A very peculiar thing happened on the P. R. R. near the station of Longfellow, last Sunday. The great heat of the sun caused the rails to expand, and at that place the shoving of the rails became so great that the spikes were drawn and the track bent. Limited Express was nearly wrecked by the sharp curves, and a number of dishes in the dining car broken.

A despatch from Newton Hamilton where a young camp meeting is held every August, says, there has been considerable excitement of late at Newton Hamilton concerning the gold discoveries there. A stranger who claimed to be a relative of Evans, one of the Hertzler store robbers in jail came to town last week, looked up an attorney, went to the jail and in the presence of Sheriff Calhoun had an interview with Evans. At first the man did not seem to know each other, but before the interview was over they seemed to understand each other, if the Sheriff and the Attorney did not. The thing that was plainest to the Sheriff and the Attorney was that the stranger left fifty dollars with the Sheriff for Evans, and then went to the station and boarded a passenger train westward bound.

Under the kingly compulsory education law, passed by the Legislature, every child between the age of 8 and 13 years, will be compelled to attend 16 weeks at school, and the guardian or parent who fails to obey the law will be fined $2 for the first offense of not sending the children to school and $5 for the second offense. The assessor is to take a list of children of his district and certify it to the Secretary of the School Board. The teacher of each school is required to report to the board the names of children who do not attend school. Then the Secretary of the School Board must proceed against the parents or guardian, and if the Secretary fails to proceed against the parent or guardian, he is to pay a fine of $25. Who will want to be a Secretary under such a kingly law?

The Lewisistown Free Press of May 15, records the following accident and shocking death: People in the east end of Kishacoquillas Valley, were horrified as they learned the particulars of the death of Miss Ida, seventeen year old daughter of Solomon Kepp, who resides in the upper end of Havia valley. Ida, accompanied by a younger sister, left her father's home in a buggy on Saturday morning for Siglerville, and toward the noon hour had come as far as the vicinity of Benedict's mill, where for some unknown reason, the horse made a rather sudden turn in the road, as if to go back the way he came. The girls were apparently frightened and it is thought pulled the wrong line, but as the road was piked with loose stones the buggy slid around without out-setting, the horse meantime becoming more unmanageable. The younger sister then jumped out and was uninjured, while Ida in attempting to do so, caught one foot in what is called by some persons a hay-wire, (small rods stretched across the buggy box in front of the seat and tightened to prevent the bed from spreading) and falling down between the wheels head first remaining suspended, her face dragging along over the stony road, the now frightened and uncontrolled horse speeding along toward Siglerville. The animal caught up to Moses Yoder and his brother, riding horse-back, who heard the clatter, jumped from their horses and succeeded in stopping the runaway. Releasing the injured girl they laid her upon the bank.

His remains were brought to Mifflintown on Friday on the 12:52—noon train—and taken to the church at Mount Pleasant, near this town, where services were conducted after which interment took place in Union Cemetery. The Mifflintown Lodge, No. 131, I. O. O. F. of which he was a member attended the funeral in a body.

W. J. Haines, Killed. Tuesday afternoon word reached Newport that W. J. Haines, a prosperous farmer and peach grower in Perry Valley, had been killed just before noon. He was assisting in tearing down an old barn, preparatory to the erection of a new one, and had the frame work all down except one frame, about the center of the old structure, which was of heavy timber. While assisting to remove some of the planking on the floor the frame suddenly fell, the heavy cross piece striking Mr. Haines on the top of the head and neck, crushing his skull, and breaking his neck. Death was instantaneous. The mangled body fell between the sills to the ground beneath, a distance of some four or five feet. The body was taken out as soon as possible, but life was extinct. The deceased was well known in this vicinity from the fact that he came to town during peach season, with the most luscious fruit, which he had to trouble to dispose at remunerative figures. He was a first class citizen, respected by all his neighbors. For a number of years he was engaged in the Creamery business in Mifflintown, and left that place to engage in farming in Perry Valley. The deceased was about 42 years of age, and leaves a wife and little son to mourn his untimely death. Word was at once sent to his relatives: one brother, of whom resides at Farmer City, Ill., and they are expected to arrive to day. Funeral will take place on Friday, next at the house at 9 o'clock in the morning where religious services will be held, after which the body will be taken to Mifflintown on Mail train, at noon, from Millers-town station, for burial. Three children preceded the deceased in death and are buried at Mifflin.
