One day last week Charles Williams, colored, in Cincinnati, stole a lady's gold watch. He was caught, and to get away from the damaging affect of finding the watch on his person, he swallowed it. But he was caught in the act of swallowing the time piece, and that sent him to prison.

Hastings' factory inspectors at fifteen hundred dollars a year salary and five hundred dollars a year for expenses, are now serving their master by riding the country to election-grounds for Hastings' delegates to the State Convention. Was Hastings' elected to spend the state's money that way?

Address the gentleman at Gettysburg, Pa."

Says a bee keeper: "Instead of fire in a smoker, insert a piece of sponge in a smoker and blow the fumes into the hive. If robbed bees are about, dip a feather in carbolic acid and wet the entrance all round, pouring a few drops on the landing. The inmates will remain at home ventilating, while not a robber will dare cross the threshold."

The Lewistown Free Press has been purchased by G. R. Fryberger of W. W. Trout, the founder of the paper. Impaired health is the cause of Mr. Trout selling the paper. The paper has been ably conducted, and will doubtless be kept up to its standard for Mr. Fryberger is a capable newspaper man and a practical printer. Trout remains on the paper as associate editor.

There was great trouble in keeping Hastings' Legislature from cutting down the School appropriation, but he joyfully multiplied the offices at large salaries and appointed his pets and appointed his pets so that he could get influence to land his pet (Gilkeson) for Chairman at $6000 a year salary, and himself as Chairman of the Convention. Oh Hastings! Hastings! why did you do so.

The Altoona Tribune of July 10th inst., says:—Of diseases incident to old age, Mrs. Catherine Henderson, died on Monday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of her daughter Mrs. Virginia D. Allen, two miles west of Altoona in Logan township. She deceased was 82 years, 9 months and 8 days old. Her maiden name was Catherine Haugh and she was married in September 1831, to Mr. John B. Henderson, who departed this life thirty-seven years ago. She was formerly a resident of Port Royal, Juniata county, was a consistent Christian, and for more than fifty-years a member of the Baptist church.

The Commissioners of Huntingdon county, James A. Wilson, James H. Garner, J. L. Grove and citizen Thomas Johnson, visited the Commissioners' Office in this town last week to learn something definite relative to the kind of paint used on the bridges in Juniata county. The river bridge at this place was suggested to them as a specimen of the work produced by the paint used by the Commissioners of Juniata county, and so pleased were the Commissioners of Huntingdon with the paint on the Mifflintown river bridge that they went home pleased with the paint, and probably will paint the 40 bridges in Huntingdon county with the same material.

An Altoona man has a small frame house at the mouth of Mace-donia Gap, that he purposes to live in while this summer for fishing and recreation purposes. The next generation will build fish and summer houses all through the narrows.

James North has resigned the office that he held in the State Department at Harrisburg. Dave Martin came up from Philadelphia and looked over the roast, and virtually said: "Governor there is a nice roast for one of my pets. Give it to him," and forthwith by some mysterious premonition, Mr. North found it convenient to resign, and one of Martin's pets will be installed in the fat place to work for the Martin Magee combine across the country. They are the people who are angry at Quay, because he defeated the apportionment bill that lessened country representation and increased city representation.

Kauffman is the candidate for County Chairman.

Harrison Casner met a snake on the Moyer farm north of town several days ago that was so large and dangerous that he hurried away from its presence. How long it is, he does not know, but its thickness was no less than the size of the tin cup that is in use in every house. He threw a stone at it which caused it to utter a sound between that of a whistle and a hiss. It threw its mouth open when it uttered that noise and he is satisfied that its jaws were six inches apart when it gave the hissing, whistling noise. Casner was not raised in a band box, and had all his life been used to meeting the big and little snakes known to this particular part of the county and instead of getting scared he would proceed to exterminate the reptiles. In this case however he hesitated and looked, and the longer he looked the more his courage failed him, and at last he baskened away, glad to leave the snake alone. The snake is of a brownish color. It was not far from the brush fence that borders the Loudon and Moyer tracts. Was it a snake that escaped from Tyrone some several years ago.

At a meeting of the town council, held on the evening of July 8, 1895, the question of accepting the offer of the Electric Light Company to put in light the borough with eight arc lights for six hundred dollars was postponed till Monday evening July 15, 1895. On the evening of the 15th a meeting of the council, was held to receive the expression of property holders by petition on the question mentioned. Seventy-eight property owners representing property at an assessed value of one hundred and five thousand, eight hundred dollars, petitioned the council to indefinitely postpone action upon the offer of the Electric Light Company. Witherspoon Schreyer, Esq., represented their petition and clearly set forth the views of the petitioners in several argumentative and forceful speeches. A petition in favor of accepting the offer of the Electric Light Company, numbering about twelve property owners, representing property at an assessed value of fifty-nine thousand dollars was presented to the council. On behalf of this petition speeches were made by Emil Schott, T. Y. Irwin, John J. Esterson, Esq., and Mr. Troxell, agent for the Company. The town council refused to accept the offer of the electric light company, and passed a resolution offering the Company four hundred per annum for eight arc lights for the borough.

The exceptions to the report of the Auditor in the estate of Margaret Dunn, deceased, were argued and opinion of the Court held over.

In the matter of the road running through parts of Fermanagh and Walker townships, argument heard by the Court and the opinion of the Court held over.
