The Combine and the Governor.

Their object is to increase their power until they dominate the state as they now dominate its two principal cities, override the representatives of the country and control the legislation and official patronage of the state, and scence Pennsylvania's sents in the United States senate, thereby to control federal patronage. With this object in view, they have taken the gov ernor into a limited partnership, with "The Administration" as the firm name. But, except on paper, the governor cuts no figure in the opposition to Quay. So far as he is concerned, it is of little con sequence whether Quay or the combine wins. As long as the combine needs him cally, a back many r.-Hor sdale

All Tired of Magen.

This is what Chils Mance says: "To argue that Sounder Quay's view , would mean an improved condition of things in Philodophia or Pittsburg is to give the clearest ovidence of ignorance of the political and legislative history of the state on the part of those who do so." Which means, of course, that the Mages method of government is the correct one, and it is from Magee's standpoint. But the people have served notice on Chris that it is time for him to step down. They want a change and are willing to take chances or their ignorance of the political and legislative history of the state. The Magnend of the history is not popular.-Ne Keesport Times.
