TWO MEETINGS WITH MILES.

"One night in the office of the Hotel Raymond in Pasadena, Cal.," said a traveler, "I met General Nelson A. Miles. I was introduced to him by Major Ben C. Traman. The office was a big apartment with a great fireplace cu one side of it. There were large rocking chairs scattered about for the comfort of guests who chose to sit there, and it was a room to which ladies did not bes-itate to come if they had occasion to

"On this night there was a fire in the great fixeplace, perhaps as much for cheerfulness' sake as anything else, and the big room was decidedly a pleasant place. General Miles, Major Traman and myself sat there until 11 o'clock. The general talked freely and most interestingly, and to me it was a most enjoyable evening. I had always had the heartiest admiration for General Miles—I had been a soldier myself—and I thought I should always remember that evening with gratification.

"The next morning, while going ou of the Hotel Nadean in Los Angeles, I met a gentleman who said 'Good morning.' I stopped and talked, but I could not possibly recall him. Presently he

"'You don't remember me.'

"I said I did not.
"'My name is Miles,' he said.
"Well, I wished that the Hotel Nadean had been getting in coal and that there had been a convenient coal hole open for me to slide into, but there wasn't, and I did the best I could under the circumstances, which I guess was poor enough, but the general was per-fectly good humored about it, for which was profoundly thankful.

"Seeing the general in a different light, or smid totally different surroundings and when I had least expected to meet him, coupled perhaps with some degree of untural absentmindness on my me, and chagrin over this second encounter with General Miles has always materially lessened my enjoyment of the first."—New York Sun.
