It is reported that when Speaker Reed retires from the Fifty-fourth Congress it will be forever.

Goto, that assays $237 a ton, has been discovered near Boston, Mass. Think of the pilgrim farmers living in poverty on a gold mine.

A PROMY grave-yard has been unearthed near Waynesburg, Pa., and learned antiquarians in Cumberland Valley, are correspondingly interested.

Last Thursday, one hundred and thirty-five girls employed in the seamless hosiery mill of Powell & Bros., Philadelphia went on a strike on account of a reduction of pay. It was proposed to reduce their pay of $7 a week to $5 a week.

NICHOLAS THIRD was crowned Czar of Russia on Saturday. He is the king of one hundred and seventy million people; his temporal and spiritual ruler; he is not only the head of the Government, but he is the head of the Church.

The Spanish government has issued an order, preventing tobacco from being sent from the island of Cuba. The reason of the order is that the government for such an order, is that if the tobacco is allowed to go out of the island in its raw state, some 15,000 cigar makers in Havana will be thrown out of employment, and they and their families will become paupers for the public to keep.

Common and Un Common.

Any kind of honest work is respectable, honorable, but some people are in a hurry with themselves, if they have to engage at common places work. The most of the work in the world is common place work, and therefore the most of the workers must be common place workers. If some system of work could be devised in which all the work would be common, then, perhaps, people would be happy. Not that the common would be too common, and the common would be longed for and sought for. Lincoln had so many applications for the office of Chief of Common when the rebellion first broke out, that he said he guessed he'd have to organize a brigade, and he would have to be a common man, or common, that aspirants for military office stopped short only at a brigadiership or generalship. But standard men and women are ever standard. Whether in the common or uncommon walks of life, they are the people who are honest and ever faithful to their duty. They are like true gold—that is gold, whether in the common places or in an unvarnished bar in the bottom of a creek or river, or in the unmined quartz vein in the mountain on the counters and in the vaults of the banker or the first medium of exchange between great nations. Common places in life do not take away standard qualities of men and women, any more than common places for gold take away the uncommon quality of gold. People go on talking about the common people like George Washington, Abraham Lincoln and U. S. Grant, just as if everyone could be famous as they were. If the country were full of George Washingtons, Lincolns and Grants, they could not now become famous, because the circumstances upon which the famous ones were built do not exist. If George Washington were living to-day, he would be a common farmer in Virginia. If Abraham Lincoln were living to-day, he would be a common lawyer in Illinois, and if U. S. Grant were living to-day, he would be a common leather merchant at Helena, Illinois.

High School Graduation.

Eighteen Hundred and Ninety-six.

The graduating exercises of the Milfordtown High School on Thursday evening, May 21, was witnessed by well-nigh a thousand people, and many citizens could not gain admittance to the building. The band was outside the house, discoursing its sweetest music. It was a great occasion for all the schools, and when the schools of a community are interested in an occasion, everyone becomes interested for the schools are the branches of the families of the community. Professor Gortner, the Graduate Principal of Public Instruction in Milfordtown, entered the Court House at the head of the procession, with the little people in the lead, and marched down the middle aisle two by two, to the platform, and there filed right and left to the side aisles, where they counter-marched and filed into the pews in admirable order, and when they were all seated, the little pupils were in front seats, and the larger ones back of them. While this part of the programme was being performed, Mrs. Schell, wife of director Henry Schell, was bringing the graduates in her carriage to the building and stowing them away in the rooms back of the audience chamber. The recess back of the platform had been draped in purple and white by the class, assisted by a number of lady friends, all under the direction of the principal of the schools, Mr. Gortner.

The arrangement of ferns and palms and spruce between the platform and the orchestra, back of the speaking place, was admirable. Midway between the floor of the platform and ceiling of the room and against the back wall, amidst the drapery of purple and white, blazed the fiery electric light figures '96. A line of foot electric lights had been strung along the front of the platform, and surrounded with spruce foliage, produced a platform light that is seldom equalled.

When all arrangements were perfected, the class with Professor Gortner, County Superintendent Marshall, Rev. A. N. Raven of the Presbyterian church and Rev. Dr. Holloway, D. D., of the Lutheran church and the Milfordtown School Directors: Messrs. Ezra C. Doty, Henry Schell, Charles Mayer, J. H. Martin, Captain Hinkle, Dr. Waller, entered and took seats on the platform.

The orchestra, Professor Keiffer, Mr. H. J. Long, John Henderson, all of Lewistown, and Edward Parker and Leslie Allison and Ronald Allison of Milfordtown, embowered in evergreen ferns and palms, struck up a lively piece of music and the graduation exercises were on.

Rev. A. N. Raven, invoked the Divine blessing, which was followed by more music from the evergreen embowered orchestra.

Without Mr. Hibbs, leading. Salutation, "The Father of America," was well said, and the delivery of the address was in a manner satisfactory to the most intense American boy.

The second speaker Miss Jean E. Adams, Subject, "The Rise of Woman," delivered her oration in such a manner that their present condition were plainly set forth, and their future condition or prospects were illustrated by a number of illustrations from the every day life of women in America. Notably more than the spirit of effort put forth by Junia county women for the office of County Superintendent of Common Schools. She declared herself in favor of woman suffrage.

The third speaker Mrs. Margaretta E. Craig, colored, was the third speaker. She did her part well. Subject, "The Butterflies of Society," in which she delineated the shame of society, and the hollowness of a butternut life, that at least it is unsatisfactory and the power of this life, talked out on the part of the devotees of such a life.

Joseph E. Adams was the fourth speaker, and he proved himself well up in the manner of address in his subject, "Reform in Politics," which he handled without gloves, revealing the dangers to American Institutions, that must come sooner or later, if the abuses of the day are not reformed. He too favored the enlargement of the power of women in politics of the country.

The fifth speaker Miss Martha Jackson, handled her subject, "What Wins," in a pleasant, easy manner. It was a gem that pointed out the qualities that win in the pathway of life.

The sixth speaker, Miss Esther A. McKinley, third honor member, had for her subject, "Self Dependence," which she portrayed as a source of training for the coming woman and for coming men, that all may be able to meet the responsibilities of life by self dependence. Her transferring of class privileges brought out a response from Miss Bess Hackenberger in behalf of the class of '97. The response was a good one and closed by calling the class of '97 to their feet to give the class roll, which they did with a vim. William W. Mayer was the seventh speaker. Subject, "The Progress of Our Country," was well done. He started in the past, one hundred years ago, and followed the changes step by step to the present time, reviewing marvelous results of steam and electric inventions and the characteristic features of politics and Government.

Miss Nellie O. Musser, the ninth speaker, had for her subject, "Our aim in Life," and delivered it in a plain manner. It was brief, full, running over with the commendable points of life to be aimed at, and run for by all who aspire to the higher state of man and womanhood.

Miss Isabella S. Hweier, first honor member of the graduating class and valedictorian, filled the first place to the satisfaction of her friends and the large audience. With admirable bearing and clearest articulation, she addressed herself to her subject: "We are the heirs of the Ages," in which she briefly reviewed the achievements in art, music, philosophy and the plainer and more utilitarian things of life, with which we have to do, and which have come down to us from the past and make us the heirs of the ages. Her valedictory was a jewel set in a well timed speech of recognition of the work of County Superintendent Marshall; the efficient work of the directors of the Milfordtown school board; the executive ability of Professor Gortner and his pains taking work, and a feeling farewell to the class.

Professor Gortner followed the valedictory in an able address on the progress of the schools in Milfordtown and their promising future, and then to the class he made a feeling address, referring tersely and ably to the subject of each and every graduate's address bade, then "all hail and farewell."

County Superintendent D. M. Marshall was introduced and made an address, in which, among prominent points, he spoke of the efficiency of the Milfordtown High School and the influence it is exerting throughout the county.

Director Ezra C. Doty in an elegant address, presented the diploma to the class, after which Dr. Holloway pronounced the benediction and thus was launched the class of 1896 upon the sea of ended public school days. The speakers were all heartily applauded.

up the system is at this season. The cold weather has made unusual draughts upon the vital forces. The blood has become impoverished and impure, and all the functions of the body suffer in consequence. IN WHIST.

No matter what your partner does, remain cool and bland. Don't let him know you are one. You cannot understand. The more misdeeds that he may make, the more you will love him. You often make a like mistake; if he did not yesterday.
