At Newport on the night of the 17th of May, a man wearing a suit of light colored clothes threw a stone through J. H. Irwin's bed room window. Mrs. Irwin and her daughter were greatly frightened. The motive for the dastardly act is not known.

The Lewistown Gazette of May 20 says: "Report says that the army worm is destroying clover fields in our neighboring county and we learn that some fields have been stripped to the ground, which may have a tendency to make hay scarce in the localities in which they are found."

A correspondent of the Lewistown Gazette says: "Milton Spigelmyer states he saw a ghost last Sunday evening while going home from prayer-meeting. He claims that he saw something come in the road at the bridge near his home and it kept in front of him for a short distance, then disappeared."

The promise of a large peach crop is extravagant. If the June drop does not thin out the peaches in some of the orchards, it may become necessary to shake the trees, for to permit all the fruit they bear to remain hanging will so over tax the bearing capacity of the trees that even under the most favorable conditions peaches cannot be grown next year.

Wm. H. Rollman, jeweler in this town was so stricken with apoplexy last Monday afternoon, that it became necessary to take him from his business place to his home on Cherry street. He lay on a lounge where he first placed himself when stricken. He passed away with him on it was lifted into a carriage and in that way he was taken to his residence. He was conscious and could speak. At this writing he is better.

A report prevailed at the close of last week that the railroad company contemplates reducing the divisions on the main line to two divisions. The number is now three. The report stated that the Harrisburg and Altoona head quarters would be consolidated and located at this place. It was an agreeable report and if it should turn out to be true, it would be an act on the part of the Railroad Company, that everyone here would rejoice in.

Clarence Fritz of Patterson, a youth of about 15 years while attempting to get on the Express wagon on going down Bridge street, lost his hold, fell off onto the street on the back of his head. He was taken up unconscious, carried into the Crawford drug store, where attention was given to him by Dr. Wood Crawford. He soon revived. In addition to the bruise on his head. His left arm was bruised from being run over by a wheel of the wagon. An hour after the mishap, he was himself again as if the accident had not taken place.

The past month has been favorable wheat weather, and it now looks as if year raise nearly as much wheat as her people consume in a year. In a first rate wheat year Pennsylvania raises about 25,000,000 bushels of wheat and that is about the amount her people consume. She has a population of over 5,000,000 and as it requires on an average five bushels of wheat to bread a person, it follows that 25 million bushels about keeps her people in bread one year.

Bloomfield Times, May 25:—James Johnson is already plowing corn, while some of our farmers have still some to plant yet. "George, a son of William Reader of Spring township, was bitten on the lip by a copperhead snake on Wednesday last. He was stooping to pick up some bark in which the snake was concealed, when the accident happened. Medical aid was obtained as quickly as possible, but his head and face were terribly swollen before the doctor reached him. He is now fast recovering."

The Altoona Tribune on Monday, May 21st, speaks of the unhappy meeting of a man and wife at the railroad station as follows: "A woman whose husband was in Tyrone, Saturday night with another woman, awaited the return of the pair at the depot gate yesterday morning. When they got off oyster express, the wife attacked the woman fiercely, pulling her hair and punching her face in the most up-to-date style. The husband seized his infuriated wife, and held her until the other woman escaped, but when he released her, she slapped his face soundly, and was still slapping and berating him when they disappeared over the Twelfth street bridge."

Philadelphia Record, May 17:—A Frenchman has devised means for converting grain into dough at one operation without milling, an invention, which, if the claims of the originator are verified, will not only effect a revolution in bread making, but also make the miller's occupation, like that of Othello, only a memory of the past. The grain, which is first soaked, enters one end of the machine, where it is crushed and disintegrated, the paste passing to the kneading machine in the other end of the apparatus, where it is aerated and kneaded into dough, which may be preserved indefinitely without injury.

The town fountain is a great public convenience, and yet there are many persons who abuse the favor of such a water supply for man and beast. The barbarian element, who care nothing, except for the gratification of their own pleasure and jealousy and malice, steals or destroys everything in the way of drinking cups that may be placed at the fountain for public use, and many of the men who come there to water teams, drive so carelessly that the wagon tongue strikes the fountain basin and injures water pipe connection and in that way there is almost constantly something to do at the fountain, and it is presumed that the barbarians and misers and carers who people continue to carry on in their usual way at the fountain till some of the law officers are caught in the meshes of the law. There are always some people, who will not behave decently till they have decent behavior forced upon them.

John H. Cunningham aged 74 years, died, at his home in Patterson on the 12th day of May. Interment in the Presbyterian cemetery on the 23rd of May. He came from a stock of excellent people, whose progenitor William Cunningham came into this Valley in 1762. John H. Cunningham lived all his days in Juniata, excepting the time he was in the Union Army against rebellion. In his youth he married a Miss McCrum, sister of John Enoch McCrum of Milford township. His three children who survive him were all present at the interment of the mortal remains of their father. Ephraim lives in Nebraska; James, in Clearfield county, Pa.; and Rosebaca who was the guardian angel of her father in the days of his long illness lived with him and no daughter ever cared for her father better than she. It is not many years since he was a county commissioner. He was a member of the G. A. R., a Presbyterian in religion and a Republican in politics. Some years since he was caught under a wagon at his barn near Patterson and severely hurt, from which injury he never recovered, but gradually passed into a decline. The Post attended his funeral with a large multitude of people.

Third, that you will not visit houses of ill fame. I promised and by the grace of God I have kept the promise, now what will the Senator do?" The Senator promptly withdrew the charge, stating that he had made the charge on "what some other person had told him and he felt glad to be better informed and hoped to be forgiven for repeating hearsay statement. This digression all grows out of the number thirteen.

The editors sat with closed doors, for a portion of their business was of a private nature and did not concern the public. Before the first session closed dinner was announced by mine host Nixon. It was a dinner that might have tickled the palate of a sick man, and as all the editors were in fine health they ate and ate till the table no longer groaned as brother Speddy says, and till they were like father Platt, who could not eat fat and but all the same they ate the meat and licked the platter clean. Great and feely prepared dinners always come from Nixon's larder.

Immediately after dinner the editors again went into session [and had scarcely taken their seats till someone, a strange man opened the door, looked around the room and hurriedly exclaimed, "Oh she." "Ab, yes," said one of the editors, he is looking for Elder Haggard's she, but she is dead. The stranger vanished and the business was taken up where left off when adjournment for dinner was taken. Then public business was taken up.

There were present: H. C. Darr, Tribune, Altoona; J. W. Speddy, Times, Port Royal; George Shrom, Ledger, Newport; A. M. Aurand, Herald, Beaver Springs; H. C. Bonsall, Tribune, Mifflintown; W. J. Mortimer, Times, Bloomfield; E. Conrad, Journal, McVeytown; H. H. Hain, Record, Duncanham; E. Morrison, Watchman, Newton Hamilton.

H. H. Hain and A. W. Aurand were newly elected members at this meeting. On motion of J. W. Speddy, Frank Mortimer and B. E. Morrison, were appointed by the chair, a committee to nominate officers for the coming year and reported for President, H. C. Darr; Vice President, Frank Mortimer; Secretary and Treasurer, E. Conrad; Executive Committee, George Shrom, H. E. Bonsall, J. N. Swope, Items, Mapleton.

The report of the committee was accepted without a dissenting vote. On motion the invitation of the Sea-Bead Air Line to visit Southern Pines, North Carolina was accepted and the arrangements for the trip left to the Executive Committee and the time selected shall be in September or October. On motion B. E. Morrison was added to the Executive Committee for the southern trip management. Port Royal was selected as the place for the next quarterly meeting, on the 4th Friday in August, at which time a trip will be taken over the T. V. R. R., to Blair's Mills. On motion it was resolved that hereafter each member shall notify the Secretary of the Association at least 10 days before meetings whether they can be present. The chair in accordance with a resolution passed at the meeting of the Association at Huntingdon, appointed a committee on program as follows:—J. W. Speddy, B. F. Schweizer, I. N. Swope. Adjourned.

THIRTEEN EDITORS MET in the parlor of the Jacobs House at 11 A. M., last Friday. Thirteen is considered by many people as an unlucky number, but the writer knows people who have had the number 13 run through a good many events in their lifetime and came out successful. There is as much luck in thirteen as in other numbers. If the writer felt prone to gamble, thirteen would be one of the numbers he would select for a winner. How well it would be for the youth of the land to take the example of the great Democratic statesman Thomas Benton, deceased. On a certain occasion a Senator in an excited debate in the United States Senate, charged Benton with frequenting a famous gambling place in Washington. Benton sprang to his feet and exclaimed: "There is only one thing for the Senator who has made that false charge to do, and that is to take it back or meet me for a settlement outside of this hall of legislation." Those were dueling days. The face of many Senators paled, for they knew Benton's earnest brave nature. Benton continued: "When my mother died I was a mere youth. She called me to her bedside and said 'good-bye Tom, I have three requests to make: First, that you will not gamble; second that you will not drink to intoxication; third, that you will not visit houses of ill fame. I promised and by the grace of God I have kept the promise, now what will the Senator do?"
