From the Cleveland Leader. They were talking about the military records of their families. "One of my uncles," she said, "was severely wounded at the battle of Malvern Hill." "Indeed?" he replied. "My father fell at the first battle of Bull Run." After she had cast a withering look at him, she retorted: "What do you mean? Your father is still alive?" "I know he's alive. He fell because he didn't have time to see where he was going and tripped over a root. I know this is the truth, because I've heard him tell it a hundred times."

A burglar entered the house of Henry Leister in Huntingdon, some nights ago. A son of Mr. Leister, Lewis Leister, came home at a certain time in the morning, and when he entered the house, the burglar presented a pistol and told him to hold up his hands. The young man said, "not much" and grappled with the robber, a great fight took place, the burglar fired three shots from his revolver, two of which took effect in the wall, one bullet entered the abdomen of Leister and was extracted the next day. The thief broke from the young man Leister, but did not run back to the place of his entrance to the house but ran to the front yard and did not stop to hoist the window, but jumped through the glass and escaped. He left his shoes and hat in the Leister house. Lock Haven Express, July 16th.—Word reached this city to day of the death of William Daugherty, at Hamersley's Fort, Ledy township, this county, on Wednesday. Mr. Daugherty's death was due to the bite of a rattlesnake, the circumstances as related to the Express being as follows: On Tuesday night Daugherty, who lived with his twin brother, Joseph, at Hamersley's Fort, went to the barn in company with a boy and slept on a pile of buckwheat straw. Toward morning the boy awoke and heard Mr. Daugherty groaning. He went to the house and woke up Joseph who immediately went to the barn and found his brother unable to speak. His face was badly swollen and there were two slight wounds on his forehead. The man lived until 8 o'clock Wednesday morning when he died. A search of the premises was made and a rattlesnake five feet long was found and killed. The poisonous serpent had evidently bitten the man while he slept. Daugherty was aged about 65 years and was a veteran of the late war. He had only recently been granted a pension and received $500 back pay.

The house on the farm of Dr. Atkinson and his sister, Mrs. Greenleaf, wife of Dr. Greenleaf, of Delaware State, was destroyed by fire about 5 p. m., on the 21st inst. The building stood on the bank of the river in full view of the railroad, and it was by passengers on the 5.07 Fast Line westward bound train that information of the fire was first brought to town. The Doctor, however, had been informed by despatch, and started immediately, in a hurry. His trotter didn't understand why a two-forty rate of travel was kept up for the distance of five miles. He arrived at the scene of the conflagration before the fire was through with its work, and learned that the family of Mr. Atkinson, tenant on the farm, were all at supper when the fire was discovered. The fire is believed to have come from the chimney into the garret. The second story was so aflame when first discovered that entrance to that part of the building was not possible, and all contents upstairs were consumed. The fire came down stairs rapidly that not all the contents of the lower part of the house were saved from the fire. The farmer had his household goods insured, and there was an insurance on the house. The stone walls of the building are so warped that it is hardly probable they can be left standing for a new house.

Altoona Tribune, July 21.—There is no accounting for tastes. Now, what in the world prompts a man to raise a car window in an ordinary passenger coach, letting in all the dust, dirt, coal chiders, etc., while at the same time another man will pay for a seat in a Pullman car for the purpose of having the windows kept down, that the dirt, dust, etc., may be kept out? And that is what you will see every day on the cars. Coming up from Philadelphia yesterday there were half a dozen men and women in the ordinary passenger coach who persisted in holding the windows as high as they could go. As a consequence when they arrived in Harrisburg, every one of them was begrimed with cinders and dust and they all needed a bath. On the other hand those people who had gone in the parlor car in order to escape the open windows all looked cool, clean and comfortable. There is argument in this against open windows. If air is needed at there are plenty of ventilators in every car and the train bands are always obliging and will open them widely if asked to do so. The truth is that the clear-headed, discerning and cleanly-disposed among the traveling public should formulate a petition to the railway authorities begging them to frame and adopt a rule forbidding the opening of windows save under exceptional circumstances.

Y. Special train will start from Harrisburg at 11.35 a. m. Connecting trains will leave Philadelphia 8.30 a. m., Washington 7.50 a. m., Baltimore 8.50 a. m., arriving Chautauqua about 10.30 p. m. This is a fish story with new variations, from the Sellingsgrove Tribune of July 22nd. One day last week while George M. Lombard was fishing in the river he found a fishing line fast to a stone in the bottom of the river. He succeeded in getting it loose when he found a dead bass weighing over two pounds fast to the hook. He showed the line to David S. Sholley, Esq., who pronounced it a line which had been torn from "Squire Burns" rod by a bass last week. George attached the line to one of his rods, and in company with his father-in-law, Overseer of the Poor, David Keller, on Tuesday started up the river to fish. He was fishing for some time when he had a bite and in attempting to land the fish the Burns line was again snapped off. A new line was rigged up and they started in fishing again. They moved from place to place as is customary in fishing, and six o'clock, p. m., found them on the opposite side of the river from where George had lost his line. While fishing here Mr. Keller had a dandy bite, and in the struggle with the fish, the line was torn from the rod. When they drew up anchor to start for home, the water being very clear, George saw a line on the bottom. Diving his head of this fishing he jumped into the river to get what he supposed was Mr. Keller's line. He had considerably difficulty in getting the line untangled as it was wrapped around a stump, and then he found it had the fish hooked yet, and it began to scoot around in the water lively, wrapping the line round his limbs. He finally got the line and fish, and to their great surprise, in place of being the Keller line it was the line that George had lost on the opposite side of the river in the morning.

THE LATE-STAYING CALLER. He Absolutely Forces Host and Hostess into Uttering Falsehoods. Friend Staylate makes a call in the evening, after the usual and joyous, and repeated requests for him to remain yet a little while, lead him, not at all unwilling, to prolong his visit. He looks at his watch with a gasp of genuine dismay, and hurries away slowly at last with profuse apologies for keeping us up until such an uncharitably late hour. "Oh, indeed, no," exclaims the entire family. "This is early for us! We never think of going to our rooms until an hour later than this." Friend Staylate makes a moment after he gets outside the gate. Slam goes the door! Bang! Bang! Slam! Go the shutters, calling harshly to each other, "Fighting and shouting never would go!" Bang! "Why didn't he stay all night?" Slam! And the rattle of the chain cries, "Gone at last!" The darkness of the darkness settling down on the house, the family has gone to bed, having relieved its mind by doors and shutters that are ready to tell the truth any time they are given a chance. (Excerpted from the August Ladies Home Journal.)

Health for Everybody!

When the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs are in a healthy state, a person is practically disease-proof. Sick-ness can hardly find a foothold when those organs are well and strong. The Kidneys sift and strain from the blood poisonous and waste matter. When they are weak and diseased, the poisonous particles do not pass off, but remain in the system. They cause pain in the small of the back, Stone in the Bladder, and Bright's Disease. It is easy to tell if your Kidneys are disordered. Put some urine in a bottle or glass for 24 hours. If there is a sediment, you have Kidney disease. Other signs are a desire to urinate often, particularly at night, and a smarting, scalding sensation in passing water.

Nothing is so good for curing diseases of the Kidneys, Bladder and Urinary Organs as Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, that grand medicine which has been before the public for over 30 years. It should be taken without delay by men and women who have any of the above symptoms, as the disease is apt to prove fatal if not attended to.

From the Convention of the Good Shepherd, Troy, N. Y., comes this short but pointed endorsement, signed by the sisters of that famed and pious institution: "We have used Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy for Kidney trouble, and have found it very efficacious." Sample Bottle Free! If you wish to test Favorite Remedy before buying it, send your full postoffice address to the Dr. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N. Y., and mention this paper. You will then receive a sample bottle, free, and circulars giving full directions for its use. You can depend upon the genuineness of this offer, and all sufferers should take advantage of it at once. The regular size is sold by all druggists for $1.00 a bottle, and it is well worth the price.

FOUR WOUNDS FROM ONE BULLET. A. F. Cosby, member of Troop K, New York division of Roosevelt's rough riders, was in all the battles at Santiago and escaped injury until the last skirmish, when a single Mauser bullet wounded him in four places. The bullet penetrated the rim of his hat, and grazing his face, entered his right breast, then coming out several inches below the spot it entered, it lodged in his right hand. The soldier was lying flat at the time he was shot, which explains the unusual course of the bullet.
