COL. W. A. STONE AT LEONARD GROVE.

Many harvest home picnics or gatherings are held in Juniata county every year...

But the great picnic, the one that surpassed them all in the size of the multitude present...

The Grove is located on the banks of Tuscarora Creek and the T. V. Railroad passes through it.

It is said more people attend this picnic annually than attend any other picnic in the five counties just mentioned.

But the attraction this year was the presence of Col. W. A. Stone, the Republican candidate for Governor of this great Commonwealth.

It gave a political complexion to the gathering which made it attractive to many who care nothing for the usual picnic and three thousands added to the thousands who always attended the picnic account for the multitude gathered at Leonard's Grove on Saturday.

Stalwart Republicans, (men who year after year vote the Republican ticket from principle, knowing they are right, as under Republican principles the country develops, its resources are enlarged, its wealth increases, and the prosperity of its people is furthered.) stood side by side with Republicans who are carrying knives in their boot legs for the Republican candidates for Congress and Legislature, because they failed to get what they wanted, either for themselves or their friends.

The latter claimed to be for Stone for Governor, but only because their intelligence informs them he will be the best Governor in spite of any thing that can be done.

There were there to see what manner of man the candidate of their great political enemy was. They wanted to see the man who so earnestly advocated the passage by Congress of a bill restricting foreign immigration, and so earnestly supported the Dingley bill.

They wanted to see the man who had been grand marshal in the abuse, personality, of their political enemies; admit it, spotless in reputation and character, and who, notwithstanding his personal worth, and blameless life should be defeated for Governor this year because there happen to be rogues and rascals in public office.

There were Prohibitionists? there from Lock Haven and from other places too, who care not so much to look upon the next Governor as they try to secure some one with authority enough to take the nomination for Legislature upon the Prohibition? A source Republican, they preferred, but the writer is unable to state whether they succeeded in filing their ticket or not.

The advertised speakers for this occasion were Col. W. A. Stone, Judge Jeremiah Lyons, Hon. L. E. Atkinson and J. Howard Neely, Esq.

A. S. Raffensberger was chairman of the platform exercises, and he introduced Hon. Jeremiah Lyons to the audience in the forenoon. Judge Lyons addressed the people upon the subject of the war and the general prosperity of the people and judging from the remarks of the people his speech was well received.

It was not the intention of any of the speakers to discuss politics in their speeches, at least so they informed the writer, but H. D. P. Iton, of Lancaster, Pa., appeared on the grounds after dinner upon invitation by the committee.

He is what is known as a hired or paid political talker. He has lectured for the Grange, for Prohibition, for free silver, and now is stumping the state for Dr. Swallow for Governor.

On the weather, the picnic, the fine grounds, the intelligence of the men, and the beauty of the women. He is a general way touched on the late war and expressed the opinion that as President McKinley had been right all the way through the war, he felt satisfied he would properly solve the question growing out of the war and particularly the Philippine question. He was satisfied the tariff was not an issue. It was conceded by the Democratic party that the Dingley bill was all right, and all we now want is to let it alone for fifteen or twenty years and we will have such a period of prosperity as the country has never known.

He told his audience that Republican administrations always raised money sufficient to conduct the affairs of the Government while Democratic administrations had to sell bonds to raise money for the same purpose; that the Cleveland administration sold to syndicates $250,000,000 bonds to raise money to pay the expenses of the Government; that the Republican administration when it was raising money in time of war sold it bonds directly to the people.

He in answer to Mr. Patton's charge that the last Legislature was profligate, said he was no more responsible for what they did, than his hearers, but that he would be only responsible for the next Legislature, in case the people saw fit to elect him Governor.

Col. Stone told his audience the net revenue of this great state was between $10,000,000 and $11,000,000, the corporations of Pennsylvania pay $6,000,000 of this immense revenue; that tax on personal property, on insurance companies, on liquor licenses, and on mercantile houses raises the balance of about $4,000,000. Compared to the $29,000,000 for municipal purposes raised in the city of Philadelphia annually, with its population of 1,200,000, it is small when you know Pennsylvania contains a population of over 7,000,000.

Pittsburg with a population of 600,000, raises a revenue of $7,000,000 annually for municipal purposes. Compare this with the $11,000,000 raised by this great state containing 7,000,000 people.

The speaker showed that $6,500,000 of this immense revenue was appropriated for educational purposes; that nearly $2,000,000 more was appropriated for charitable institutions, leaving the balance of about $3,000,000 to run the executive, Legislative and Judicial departments of the government and to keep up the National Guard, etc. A small sum to conduct the affairs of a state like Pennsylvania.

He told his audience that out of the appropriation of $6,500,000 for educational purposes, the Juniata county got as her share for common school purposes $18,335.91; that the salaries of her Judges, her State Senator and Representative and her Common School Superintendent were paid by the State; that in return to the State Juniata county paid less than $4,000; this sum including tax on personal property, tax on liquor license, collateral inheritance tax, tax on mercantile licenses and miscellaneous tax. The Col. impressed upon the people the fact that it was an achievement of the Republican party that made possible the relief of real estate from State taxation in 1866.

He called Mr. Patton's attention to the fact that he had wilfully misrepresented the Republican administration as having passed the Lexow bill had become a law, when it is a fact that it with hundreds of other bills failed to pass, not because of anything Dr. Swallow or the Democratic party had done to prevent it, but because the Republican administration believed it right and proper to kill it.

Col. Stone complained of the injustice of attacking a party because they searched men holding office that all Biblical students know that one of the twelve chosen apostles went wrong; that out of a gathering of such a number of men as constitute the State Legislature of Pennsylvania; that it is a great injustice to a great party to attribute to it improper motives, because of the weakness of a few of its members.

It was the first time anyone has answered the Swallowites in that section of the country, where their representatives have been using the pulpit and all other means to abuse the Republican party.

Col. Stone expressed the intention of returning to Juniata again before the campaign closes.

Hon. L. E. Atkinson followed Col. Stone and made a brief and able address, talking principally on the two late wars and incidentally alluding to the political situation.

J. H. Neely the last of the advertised speakers then got the floor, and after complimenting the crowd on their looks and behavior, being a Democrat by birth and inclination, in a short but eloquent address spoke of the sterling qualities of Geo. A. Jenks, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and claimed for him, that he was a platform in himself. Mr. Neely, having the reputation of being the leading Democratic orator in this section of the State, sustained on this occasion his reputation as an orator in ably defending a hopeless cause.

Rev. Diener, then took the floor in behalf of Swallow, but at this point in the proceedings the writer left to catch a train for Port Royal on the Tuscarora Valley Railroad, and he does not know what the gentleman had to say.

There is one promising sign for good government in Cuba and the Philippine islands, and that is, the insurgents do not want the Americans to withdraw.

Exempt From the Draft. Farmers should be careful of a lot of sharpers who are going the rounds telling them they are likely to be drafted but that for a certain sum of money paid to them they will be exempt. These men are frauds of the meanest kind, and if you come across one of them be sure and have him arrested.—Saginaw Tribune.

WORK OF THE BROOKLYN.

All honor to the cruiser Brooklyn, which, aside from the fact that Commodore Schley's pennant flew at her masthead, and that she was the only vessel of the fleet that participated in the fight on the Brooklyn, the entire credit of the victory is due to her.

PREACHED COATLESS.

The Philadelphia Times of August 23d says: Rev. J. E. Freeman, of Boyertown, Berks county, the minister who created a sensation by preaching a sermon from the pulpit of Sassafras Church in his shirt sleeves, has this to say in explanation: "When I preached the sermon coatless it was oppressively hot. The thermometer registered 96 in the shade. I would take it off again under similar conditions, even in a city pulpit. I did no more sin than do the city preachers who wear in the pulpit a dress coat, slippers and a shirt stud. I had no 'gown' at the time, nor any comfortable garment. We country preachers must give our people a good sermon, even on a hot day, while city congregations are satisfied with a fine coat."
