Is the latest according to the Chicago Cironicle. C. C. Hall, chemist for the Union Steel Company, at Alex andria, Ind., has just applied for patents upon a process whereby he is enabled to make the softest, whitest wool from the mintiest, roughest limestone.

The remarkable character of the invention is better appreciated when it is said that a firm in Boston, one of the best-known wool weavers in the country, is making experiments in converting this wool into clothing. Water has no effect upon this artificial wool, and fire will not harm it. Another point in its favor as a wool for winter clothing lies in the fact that it is one of the best nonconductors known. It is impervious to heat and cold, and for that reason would make most desirable underclothing for Klondikers. It could not be worn in summer, as it would retain all of the heat of the body, and this would become intolerable.

But the greatest point in favor of wool made from rock lies in the claim that it will outwear the cheap product. It is to bring out all of these qualities that the Boston firm is now lending every energy and expense to still further carry this discovery into the mercantile world. Once converted into cloth it would find all kinds of uses. Having the non combustible qualities of esbestos, the weaving qualities of wool, the softness and warmth of camels' hair and the insulating properties of silicia fibre, it is difficult to set any point at which the new fabric would not reach. Theatre curtains for fire protection, lining for fine garments. carnets and for wrapping conduits, hot and cold water and air pipes, packing engines and deadening sound, all come within the scope of its posaibilities.

Hall ma e the discovery rather by accident. He was making some tests of stone needed at the Union steel mills and often used in iron and steel processes. He happened upon a limestone, which, when subjected to the tests, acted unexpectedly The usual course of stone nuder the conditions he was submitting it to produced quicklime, but in this instance it ran into a lava To all outward appearance the stone was common building block. This rock is found in inexhaustible beds in this county and in other sections of the Central States. The molten mass was very pliable, like glass when it is in the same state. Glass may be strung out like silk, and it has been converted into dress Hood's Sarsaparilla sells because it goods, of which Queen Victoria has accomplishes CREAT CURES.
