These are the days when the lunatic goes to the woods and shoots at the first thing he sees moving in the bushes and brings down a man. Never shoot unless you are certain of the object you shoot at, doing so you'll never shoot a man or any other thing you don't want to shoot.

The Beaver Springs, Snyder county, Herald, relates a sportsman's mistake this. Frank Gross bought five hunting dogs at Lewistown recently, one being a fox, one a pointer, one a squirrel dog and a "possum dog." The other day he went out on hunting and after he was out he discovered that he had the wrong dog when he caught the possum.

There are spots moving across the face of the sun; "what are they?" is asked; the question cannot be satisfactorily answered; some people incline to the belief that they are celestial globes between the earth and the sun pursuing the even track of their way just as the earth and the sun are doing.

The Bloomfield Democrat gives a pointer to hunters in this way: "The county papers report the good luck of some gunners in killing three and four wild turkeys in one day. These gunners probably do not know that under the new game law it is unlawful to kill more than two turkeys in one day, and if some of them should be arrested and made to pay the fine of $10 for each bird killed in excess of two, they would not think it such 'good luck'."

When the Maria Teresa, Admiral Cerber's ship, was sunk by Schley's guns it was in water so shallow that she was raised, and was accounted a great trophy, to be added to the American navy. The ship cost Spain three million dollars. What she cost to raise and float is not known. She was started in tow of two ships for the United States but was caught in a West India storm last Thursday, and sunk out of sight, never to be seen. According to the ocean chart she went down in a place where the water is three miles deep.

The scientific American says: Constant coughing is precisely like scratching a wound on the outside of the body; so long as it is done, the wound will not heal. Let a person when tempted to cough draw a long breath and hold it until it warms and soothes every air cell, and some benefit will soon be received from the mucous membrane, allaying the desire to cough and giving the throat and lungs a chance to heal."

The Andrew Carnegie Library was dedicated at Homestead, Pa., on Saturday. In the dedication parade were 5000 persons. Mr. Carnegie made a speech, and on the point of wages or conditions of the employees he said: "Perhaps when upon the subject of the works I may tell you that I had a statement made of operation at the Homestead last year and found that the average earning for the year of 311 working days, the average paid man and boy, common laborers included, every man paid for the day, was $2.80 per day, or $966 per year. Now, to know just what that means, the average at Pullman last year, I see, the highest ever made there was $3.00. There is one proud satisfaction our firm has in business. It challenges the world to produce a record like this."

The election is over. It was a mud slinging campaign. Much was said, by some men, against other men that should not have been said. But the matter is all over, and may time to not be so vile with their tongues. It is not every time that a soft answer turns off a bitter language charge. However, with all the vile charges considered in the late campaign it is a better way of changing or electing a government than that in the world. There is no getting rid of a government in the old world countries except by a resort to arms. The American system with all its vile language charges is infinitely better than going to war for the offices.

The Newton Daily Kansas Republican, of the 13th ult., publishes an obituary notice of Mrs. James Caveny, who twenty years ago was well known to many people in Juniata county, particularly to people in Fayette township. Mrs. James Caveny died at the residence of her son, John L. Caveny, last evening at 5 o'clock, after a lingering illness of several months.

The deceased at her death was eighty years, eight months and four days, of age. She was born February 8, 1818, in the village of Millin County, Pennsylvania. Her maiden name was Susan Yeater. In 1839 she was united in marriage to James Caveny of McAllester, Juniata county, where they took up their residence and lived in that vicinity until 1877 at which they removed to Newton, Kansas. On April 5, 1878 her husband died and since that time she has been making her home among her children in this city.

She united with the Evangelical Lutheran Church when quite young, and after coming to this city she changed her church relation and united with the Methodist Episcopal Church of which she has been a consistent member up to the time of her death. She leaves seven children to survive her: John Caveny, of this city; Mrs. William Campbell, of this city; and Mrs. A. M. Young, of Fort Collins, Colorado.

The funeral will take place from the residence of her son, John L. Caveny, 228 East Third Street, Friday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock. Interment at Newton Cemetery.

The sensation last week in Philadelphia, was the return of Gideon W. March, president of the Keystone National Bank, which failed in 1891. It was the failure of that bank that sent City Treasurer Bardsley to the Penitentiary. The cashier was also sent to the Penitentiary who with March the president had been charged with falsifying the books of the bank. March gave bail for his appearance to answer in court. William Wanamaker went his bail, $20,000, when March fled William paid the $20,000. March has been a fugitive ever since. In the recent political discussion Senator Penrose, in a speech against John Wanamaker, insinuated that Wanamaker was in some unfavorable way connected with the bank failure and that March might be returned. John Wanamaker speedily took up the insinuation and in a speech he said he would be glad to have March return, and serve the sentence that might be imposed on him and if he tells all he knows, the whole truth and nothing but the truth about the broken bank, then he, Wanamaker, will be pleased to do for him to start him again in an honest career in life. It appears that March has been living in Washington State. Some one sent him a Philadelphia paper with the ex-Post Master General's speech, and invitation for him to return. He returned and is now in jail to await trial. The trial will be looked upon with great interest by every man who takes notice of important events outside of his own town or vicinity.

LUCKS IN BAD LUCK.
Mr. William Luck fell from the roof of Prothonotary Zelders new house, in the Schweier extension, east of town, on the afternoon of the 2nd inst., and was severely hurt. He was at the apex of the roof shingling. The nails gave way, that held the lath on which he stood on the roof. He slid down into the valley of the roof like a meteor. The valley was 20 some feet long, but before he could think it all he was out of the valley and down 30 feet over the side of the house, on the ground. The building contractor came near having him drop on his head. Mr. James Horning is the building contractor and he was on the ground a few feet from where Luck came down. He says he heard some pieces of lumber sliding off the roof and looked up so that he might keep out of the way of being hit by his fall. He was almost transfixed with horror at seeing Mr. Luck come sliding, feet foremost, down the valley of the roof. It was all done very quickly. Luck was over the edge of the roof in a twinkling. He was erect, feet downward and arms extended. His white shirt, light pants, white upturned face and extended arms, caused Horning to think of the ascending savior. Luck's feet just missed a two inch thick plank that served as a foot way from the ground to the top of the wall of the first floor, but the upper part of his body had swung a little to the right, just far enough to bring his right hip in contact with the plank, and it was that that Mr. Luck, probably owes his exemption from broken bones. The plank was a good spring to break the force of his fall. The spring of the plank, throwing him off to the left, he lit on both knees and fell over on the ground. Mr. Horning quickly summoned help from other parts of the building, and a cot was obtained at Mr. Shollar's house nearby, and Mr. Luck was put on it; and in an unconscious manner carried to his home on Main street. A doctor was summoned, and an examination made, and strange to say not a bone was broken. He is getting along as well as can be expected, considering the long distance fall.

The following from the Beaver Springs, Snyder county, Herald of November 3, relates an awful accident that overtook Levi Luck in Snyder county. A bad shooting accident occurred about one and one-half miles north of Adamsburg on Tuesday afternoon, by which one man may lose his life. William H. Ewing, a well-known farmer of this township, had been out hunting wild ducks and after securing a number of ducks he started home. Going through a cornfield he met Levi Luck, who was husking corn. Mr. Ewing had slung his game across his double-barreled shotgun, and while in the act of showing the game to Mr. Luck, one barrel of his gun was discharged, the entire contents entering Mr. Luck's body to the left side of his abdomen. Mr. Ewing was horrified to see the man fall over and at once realized the gravity of the accident. Drs. A. M. and C. G. Smith and J. O. Wagner were summoned and the man was conveyed to his home in the small village known as Georgetown. Pieces of clothing, wad, etc., were removed, after which the wound was dressed. Only a few of the shot could be removed. The doctors have hopes of the injured man's recovery. Mr. Luck, who is a popular young man, is married to the youngest daughter of George Oldt and is aged about 25 or 26 years. He is the father of two children. Mr. Luck came to this section some years ago, from Salem, this county, being a son of the late Samuel Luck, of that place. His mother and brother William came up on Tuesday night, to assist, if possible, in administering to the injured son and brother.

THE BEST AND CHEAPEST.
The New York Independent, the leading weekly newspaper of the world, and one whose pages exercise the widest influence, is entering upon its fiftieth year of publication. The Independent emphasizes its form to that of a magazine, and by reducing its annual subscription price from $3.00 to $2.00; single copies from 10 to 5 cents. The Independent in its new form will print 3,640 pages of reading matter per year at a cost to subscribers of $2.00, while the prominent magazines, which sell for $4.00 a year, print only about 2,000 pages. The subscriber to The Independent gets 82 per cent. more of equally good reading matter at one-half the cost. It is not only the leading family weekly newspaper but by far the cheapest and best. A free specimen copy may be had by addressing The Independent, 130 Fulton Street, New York.

THE RUPP ESTATE.
Philadelphia Times, November 1st, 1898. Alfred Loy left Philadelphia on the 1st of October for Colman, in Alsace Lorraine, to look after an estate said to amount to 53,000,000 francs, in which some hundred persons in Berks and Lehigh counties are interested. The heirs say that this is not one of the many European estates existing only in the minds of men who work upon the credulity of the alleged heirs, but that, in this case, they have letters from German Government officials assuring them that the vast property is awaiting the rightful owners.

The heirs tell quite a romantic story in connection with this inheritance. It is said that, while the estate in this section of the country is known as the Rupp estate, it is, in reality, that of John Henry Von Peterholtz, of Alsace-Lorraine, who died in that country more than a century ago. He had a daughter, Ursula, an only child, who fell in love with one George Rupp in 1750. Her parents opposed this match because Rupp was not her social equal, but the young couple ignored the objections of the girl's parents, eloped, were married and, coming to this country, settled at Chapman's Station, Lehigh county, where they died in 1806 and 1807 respectively. It is the descendants of the runaway couple who now claim the estate in Alsace Lorraine, and they have raised a large sum to carry on the investigation.
