THE TEACHERS' INSTITUTE. The teachers' institute came in on time on Monday, amidst the keenest frost and brightest sunshine that a grand day in November can produce. The most of the teachers are young, but that argues not against them, for if a young teacher has tact and scholarly attainment and is capable of enforeing discipline they are better than an old teacher who has experience and a limited amount of the qualities mentioned. Experience, however is a great thing and many a veteran teacher, when they first started at teaching had a limited amount of tact, little scholastic attainment and less yet of the ability of bringing a school under the restraining influence of discipline, and made a success, after years of perseverance and experience. There are few teachers present who were present at insti tute thirty years ago. The talks are about the same that they were thirty years ago, on reading, writing, geography, algebra, arithmetic. It cannot be otherwise, for all new comers must begin where the veterans began and go over the same old paths. The numerals are the same they were cen turies ago, and if the geography is not the same it is owing to the surging tide of human war and human emigration. Since the Juniata County Institute last met one year ago, the geographical boundary lines of the United States of America have been changed, and the government policy toward foreign nations has been changed. The boundary lines of a nation may change but the text books do not change the principles, and therefore there have been few changes in methods of learning

So between the regular business of the institute, and the aspirations of professors, who are putting their solicitations among directors, there is more than the usual interest taken in the institute. The flirtation among directors for the superintendency is going on in great earnest.
