The regular term of Court for February, convened at 10 o'clock a. m., on Monday, February 5th, 1899. Judges Lyons, Swartz and Sterrett, occupied the bench.
The grand jury was called, sworn and charged.
The Constables made their returns. Constables Hackenberger and Gill were retained to wait upon the Court.
Constable Pannebaker was appointed to wait upon the grand jury. The Court filed an opinion in the case of G. W. Fronts, Agent vs. Karis Oberholzer, refusing a new trial to the defendant.
In the case of Jennie H. Parker et al., heirs at law of Ezra D. Parker, deceased, vs. the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, the Court filed an opinion and decree discharging rule at instance of defendant, to show cause why damages assessed should not be paid into Court.

In the case of the Commonwealth vs. Edward Louder and David Allison who were charged with robbing Daniel Pannebaker's hardware store, a full account of which appeared in this paper last week, the defendants pleaded guilty. They were called up for sentence and Judge Lyons asked for any plea they had ever been in prison before. He said "yes, twice in the Mifflintown jail, but no other place." The Judge then asked him if he had not been in the Dauphin county jail. His answer was in the affirmative. Allison was next asked if he had ever been in prison. He said he had not. The Court then held up a photograph and asked the prisoner if he knew the photo. He said "yes it is mine, it was taken in an Ohio penitentiary where I served a term." The prisoners were then sentenced to four years and five months in the Western Penitentiary.
These prisoners were also charged with, and indicted, for burglarizing the house of C. B. Horning. They refused to plead guilty to the charge but a razor found among their effects was identified by Mr. Horning as being one that was taken from his house the night it was burglarized. Allison said he had gotten the razor from a party when he found shaving with it in the round house in Patterson; that he gave a pair of shears for it. These being no Oyer and Terminer jury, the case could not be tried. They cannot now be tried on this latter charge until after they have served out their sentences in the penitentiary.
Commonwealth vs. J. A. Flannigan. Charge, assault and battery. Prosecutor W. H. Clark. The defendant had no counsel and wished none, and said the reason he had not employed counsel was that he could not get out of jail to see counsel. The prosecutor, W. H. Clark, testified that the defendant had without cause hit him in the face in the former's home in Lock township. The Court then charged the jury, who found the defendant guilty without leaving the jury box. Flannigan, who never said a word in his own behalf was then called up for sentence. He was sentenced to pay a fine of $5.00, the costs of prosecution and stand committed until the sentence is complied with. He now languishes in the county jail after the Flannigan case had been disposed of by Cyrus Jacobs, of Spruce Hill township, who was one of the Grand Jurors, presented a letter to the Court which had been addressed to him, and which urged him to use his influence in having the bill against Flannigan ignored. The letter had the signature of J. H. T. Wilson, of Lock township, signed to it, but Mr. Wilson, who was in Court, said it was not his signature, but that he knew who did it. The matter was placed in the hands of the District Attorney.

Commonwealth vs. William J. Warner. Charge, desertion and non-resistance. Prosecutor, Mary Warner, the wife of the defendant. The wife told a story of abuse and neglect by her husband, and also of bad treatment by her husband's people. The defendant was ordered to pay for the support of his wife and children $2.00 per week, and the costs of the prosecution.
