Judge Lyons, on his way to the telephone exchange, made a misstep and fell down a flight of nineteen stairs steps that lead down into the Banks drug store. The exchange is in the second story of the building, and the door to the room and the stairway are side by side, and in the dark passage the judge got into the wrong place. The wonder is that he was not killed. He was severely hurt; a finger was broken, his face was bruised, and his back was hurt. The accident took place on the afternoon of the 8th inst. The injuries and the shock kept him in bed several days.

Dr. King's New Life Pills.
Mr. and Mrs. George Goshen celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage on the evening of March 8th, 1899. Between one and two hundred people were present. An orchestra made fine music for the occasion, and one of the friends made speeches. It was one of the most notable occasions of this year in this community. Many presents were received, and among them one hundred and twenty-five dollars. Mr. Goshen is also a first century Odd Fellow, is a prominent member, with his wife, of the Methodist church. He was also a soldier against rebels. They are the parents of eleven children, nine of whom are living.

At the Musical College, Freeburg, Snyder county, Pa., none but the best methods are used, so that to-day it is recognized as one of the foremost schools of music in the country. $83 will pay for a term of six weeks, instruction and board. Spring Term will begin May 8. For catalogues address,
HENRY B. MOYER, Director.

Mr. Morris Schott and his bride arrived home at midnight on the 8th inst. from New York, where they were married on the 5th inst. The maiden name of Mrs. Schott was Miss Belle Wolf, and they were married by Dr. Lewenthal, of the Jewish church.

Their arrival here was a happy event in their lives. Many people were at the station to greet them. The bride and groom were escorted to a carriage in waiting. The drum corps moved into line with many friends, and then the procession marched with the happy couple to the Jacobs House. The newly married couple will go to housekeeping immediately, on Third street.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve.
The Easter ornamentation time is coming on a pace, and bonnets, head dresses, hats, ribbons and laces are the order of the day for ladies. It is as natural for the women to put on spring bonnets, ribbons and so forth, as it is for the trees to put on leaves. The great point is to find the right place to buy what you need or may want.

Ladies who are in need or want of the latest styles in millinery can be accommodated by calling at Miss Ellie Pannetaker's place of business in Patterson. She has just returned from the eastern centers of fashion with the newest styles of Millinery goods.

Remember you buy your ticket for $1.50 which entitles you to 1 dozen first class cabinet photos of yourself, or family group of the same price, and you can take your sitting anytime during the year. Resp't,
JOSEPH HESS.

Politics in Bellefonte.—They tell the story in Centre county that two candidates for borough Auditor in Bellefonte were victimized by a young voter from Spring township. The young fellow promised to vote for W. H. Walker, one of the candidates, in consideration of receiving a pair of shoes. Mr. Walker gave him a pair of thin-soled shoes and the Spring township man went to the other candidate, H. B. Pontius, and secured a dollar for having the worn footwear half-soled. As the voter resides outside the borough he could cast a ballot for neither.

Dr. King's New Discovery.
THE STORED GAUGES.

Philadelphians complain of foul water, Schuylkill river water, but from all accounts, the Schuylkill river is clean when compared with the river Gauges in India, which is considered a sacred river fit to cleanse one physically and spiritually. Bishop Ross saw tens of thousands both in the "Holy Gauges," which he calls "the Gauges," stream I ever saw. The Missouri, after a freshet, cannot match it. The dead bodies of animals float down, lodge on the bars and torn to pieces by the vultures. The calcined bones of human beings, burned in the ghats, float down the stream on little bamboo rafts, and there is such a burning-ghat in full operation on the shore in the midst of the bathing places. And then there is the sewage of the great towns and cities, and of the whole country, which is full of domestic animals and wild beasts and human beings. And that is the Gauges; yet they think it perfect sacred and clean. They bring their bowls of brass, consecrated by the priests, and dip up the water and drink it for internal ailments. They carry home water to their friends—a pint or so of this holy water—as a sacred treasure.

NORTH DAKOTA.
North Dakota is a great country from all accounts. There a man can make a home on a small amount of money which is the chief cause of so many people going there. Like elsewhere some succeed. They tell some fabulous things about that far away land of three months of summer, where it is not warm enough in twelve months to produce a roasting ear. Those who have been there say it is remarkably fertile for the raising of wheat and oats and some other things, and that the length of a summer day is from three o'clock in the morning till ten o'clock at night, all day light, and that in the winter, the day light is from ten in the morning to three in the afternoon, and the thermometer goes down to 45 degrees below zero, sometimes, but isn't colder than when at zero in Pennsylvania. The blizzards are so fierce that a farmer can't see from his house to his barn, and to keep from getting lost during the time of a blizzard when he goes out he ties one end of a rope to his house and the other to himself so that he can be pulled in out of the cold that isn't colder than in Pennsylvania. That you'll go out on plain when the sun is shining and in an hour after the pesky storm is so dense that you become lost and are a wanderer all that night, or perchance a frozen icicle the next day when your friends find you. It is a place where double windows and doors are necessary, at the same time so general for horses and cattle that they take care of themselves all winter. It is a grand place. Seven months in the year the people do nothing but hole themselves in their houses and wait till the summer comes again. Of course they must have their house well stocked with provisions and fuel. That seven months rest makes them anxious for work, and one man and a team of horses does more work in a day than he'll do in old Pennsylvania in six days. The ground freezes to the depth of ten to twelve feet, and that insures an abundance of ice water at all times in the year. The wells are all sunk below the ice. They begin plowing in the early summer, just as soon as enough ground has been thawed to enable a furrow to be made by a plow. The ground from one season to another remains frozen at a certain depth, and that insures a constant evaporation that gives the crops moisture to grow between the frosts that come every month in the year. The society is first class, with the variations, there are noble men and women there, as elsewhere, and the variations may be learned from the statement that at a meeting in a church in one of the towns, a wag at the door shouted, here comes the sheriff, which caused half the men to jump out of the window and many women to scream. But time and space prevents a further continuance of the delightful subject of the winter delights and advantages of a residence in North Dakota. The summer season has its delights and advantages in many respects over the winter. Of course if it were not for the summer, life in winter would be impossible, subsistence would have to come from some place else than Dakota. The activities of nature in summer are marvelous. Things that grow there and develop do so with a rush, things are scarcely planted till they are grown and harvested. Sowing, harvesting and threshing seem to come in a bunch, and a great deal of money is made by threshing. But it is a land of wonderful exaggerations. It has not yet been determined whether only exaggerators move there, but some how everything that comes from that country seems to be tainted with exaggeration. Even the accounts of the number and variety and strength of insects of that country are exaggerated, which may be learned of a man who returning from there and spoke of the mosquitoes. You may think that just because you have spent a summer in the New Jersey lowlands you know something about mosquitoes, but unless you have lived beside a Dakota slough—"slew," they call it out there—you haven't an idea what mosquitoes can be. Nobody in that far land attempts to sit out of doors in the evening without the protection of the smoke from a "smudge" fire. However, as to the story the gentleman from North Dakota tells. He was out on his farm one day, when suddenly he was taken by a cloud of mosquitoes. For protection he crawled under a big iron soap kettle. Even that gave him inadequate protection, for one by one the mosquitoes bored through the kettle till the inside bristled with their—what do you call them, by the way? their bills, their stings—their—well, their sine qua non, one may say. But the congressman was prepared. Taking a small sledge hammer from his pocket, he hammered each sine qua non until it bent, and its owner could not withdraw it. After an hour or so of this labor the mosquitoes gave up the attack, rose in air, and being unable to detach themselves from the kettle, carried it away with them.

FORTUNE FOR THE TYSONS.
The New York Independent of the 9th of March says, James Tyson, who died in Australia last December, left a fortune of about $25,000,000. He owned 500,000 acres of land and also held thousands of square miles on lease. He had never married, and there are scores of persons in this country who have been led to believe that they are entitled to his estate. Eight of these reside in New Jersey; there are other claimants in Boston and in Denver. All of them assume that the Australian millionaire was one of their relatives who left England in his youth, but the long accounts of Tyson's interesting career which have been published in London say that he was born in Australia.

TURPENTINE EXPLODES.
DUNOIS, Pa., March 10.—An accident occurred yesterday at Karthaus, a small village in this county, which caused one death and will probably result in two others. George Luu, a carpenter, had placed a bottle of turpentine on a shelf near the stove pipe. The bottle exploded and the blazing contents fell on the occupants of the room. They were Landenslager, his wife, who was holding her infant in her arms, and Miss Jessie Brownlee, a sister of Mrs. Landenslager. The baby was burned to a crisp. Landenslager, in extinguishing the flames that enveloped his wife and Miss Brownlee, sustained severe burns. Both women are probably fatally burned.

BERNARD'S IRON NERVE.

TRAIN SNOWED FAST.
CHEYENNE, Wyo., March 10.—One of the worst storms of the season is raging here to day. The snow is drifting badly and all trains are belated. The Cheyenne and Northern train from the north, now fifteen days overdue, when last heard from was near Iron Mountain station. There are forty-two passengers on this train.

They were nearly out of provisions, having bought all the rancemen could spare, and the slaughterer, slaughtering rancid cattle. May effort has been made to send out relief expeditions, but all were obliged to return for additional help on account of the extreme deep snow drifts encountered.

THE BREAKFAST FACE.
McClure's Times.—How many of us—I mean we women—get up cross, and by cross the inference is naturally that we are not good looking, for how can we be cross and pretty at the same time? We come down to the table a very different individual from the one who rose from it the evening before, and behind a coffee tray we smile and give our particular remarks the impression that feminine beauty is an impossible and improbable quantity in the early morning.

This is really a matter of habit, as, after all, living is any way you wish to put it, so I say advisedly, no matter how you may frown at 4, for goodness sake beam at 8. The early morning impressions that a man takes away with him are the ones that last all day. The wife who takes pains to curl her hair, to put a dab of powder on her nose, to slip into her most becoming negligee at breakfast time, can loaf all day if she so desires, and can afford it, and there will never be a word of protest from the man who, in the shop, in the store, on the railroad, on the farm, or in the office has time for a thought for the gentle creature who kissed him good-bye at the door. The thought may not be so pleasant, but it will be tremendously persistent if the creature who yawned good-bye was in a soiled frock, with disheveled locks and a "got-up-too-early" expression of countenance, and that is a revelation to a man not used to seeing woman in the day's beginning. If you can't look pleasant and genuinely awake at breakfast don't get up to it. Letter to let your husband think you slothful than sulky. The breakfast face should be sunny. Remember this, all ye grumblers. The coffee may be bad, the cakes sodden and the meat fried—awful word—to a crisp, but such a havoc in the menu will be lost sight of if the mistress of the mansion has a sweet smile and a winning personality to overcome the material discomforts due to a bad cook or a faulty digestion.

SAUSAGE AND THE KRAUSSES AND PLATTS.
Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Krauss, of Verona, New Jersey, says McClure's Times, were in court on the 10th day of March. It was all owing to sausage.

Both the Krausses were fond of sausage. Mr. Krauss liked the sausage cooked thoroughly. Mrs. Krauss on the other hand, liked it only partially "done." That was the beginning.

The climax of their domestic troubles was reached when, one evening, Mrs. Krauss took the sizzling sausage from the pan, whirled it on the floor and slammed the pen over the husband's head.

Then followed divorce. Mr. Krauss was ordered to pay his wife alimony or go to jail.

The Krausses were not as wise as the Platts, for Jacob Platt could not eat fat, and Mrs. Platt could not eat lean, but all the same, they ate the meat and licked the platter clean.

A MANILA NEWSPAPER.
J. M. Cramer, of this town, a brother of Register and Recorder Cramer, favored THE SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN by sending "The American," an American newspaper published at Manila, Philippine Islands. The date of the American is January 28, 1899. Mr. Cramer is a member of the 10th Pennsylvania Volunteers now at Manila in the American army. The date of the above date was printed, the fight was between the Americans and Spaniards, now it is between the Americans and the Islanders. It is hoped that Cramer may escape all Filipino bullets and live to safe return to his native home here. The American received is a four column folio in wide measure, and a pink colored single sheet folio, which is accounted for by a short supply of white paper. A supply of white paper is exported from Hong Kong, China. Reading matter and advertisements are chiefly confined to Manila interests. An American paper, from the other side of the globe, from a place that most people in the United States had not heard of a year ago, is both a prize and a curiosity.

Letter from a Woman

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy frequently cures several members of a family. While it is considered by many to be a Kidney and Bladder Medicine, it is just as certain to cure Dyspepsia, Constipation, Rheumatism, Scrofula and Eczema. This is because it first puts the Kidneys in a healthy condition, so they can sift all impurities from the blood. Healthy blood practically means a completely healthy body. Hudson, and suffered took Dr.

Here is a letter from Mrs. Capt. PETER RACE, of N. Y.: "My husband was troubled with his kidneys, fearfully with shooting pains through his back. He David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and is now well and strong. Although seventy years of age, he is as hearty as a man many years younger. I was so troubled with Dyspepsia that it was painful for me to walk. My food did me no good, as my stomach could not digest it. Somebody recommended Favorite Remedy to me, and after taking two bottles of it I was completely cured, and am feeling splendid now. We both attribute our good health to Favorite Remedy."

It is prescribed with unfailing success for Nerve Troubles, and for the Liver and Blood it is a specific. It has cured many that were beyond the aid of other medicine. Ask your druggist for it, and insist upon getting it. Don't take a substitute. It will cost you $1.00 for a regular full-sized bottle.

Sample Bottle Free

If you want to try Favorite Remedy before buying, send your full post office address to the Dr. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Roadout, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will send you a free trial bottle, all charges prepaid. This genuine offer is made to prove to everybody what a wonderful medicine it is.

Will continue UNTIL SATURDAY EVENING, MARCH 18.
