THE WAR IN THE PHILIPPINES.

The war with the Philippine islanders began on the 5th day of February. A despatch received at Washington, D. C., on the 30th of March, last Friday, says, of the beginning of the fighting on February 15th...

"Just one week ago to day the fighting actually commenced, and the past week has brought about changes little dreamed of. The insurgents have been pushed back on all sides, until our circle and outposts have advanced in some directions as much as twelve miles...

"I never saw such execution in my life, and hope never to see such sights as met me on all sides when our little corps passed over the field, during the week-end. Many men were totally decapitated, and some had horrible wounds, showing the determination of our soldiers to kill every native in sight...

"I witnessed many daring deeds of individual soldiers and officers. They absolutely defied death under a perfect shower of bullets. This kind of fighting and pushing forward completely paralyzed the natives. A Spanish officer surveying the field, made the remark that the Americans had no etiquette on the war, not allowing the troops to stop for any rest after an attack...

Since the beginning of the war with the Filipinos, on the date above stated, the enemy have been pushed steadily away from Manila. Skirmishing, if not regular pitched battles have been fought every day from that time, February 5, to April 5, 1899, resulting in the driving of the Filipinos away from Manila, back step by step to the sea...

From the beginning of the fight on February 4th to March 28th in Cebu, the Americans lost 1057 men, 169 of whom were killed and 888 wounded. On the 30th of March 4 Americans were killed and 24 wounded in the drive of the enemy to Malolos. The following Pennsylvanians were wounded on the 30th:

Private Patrick Cummings, Company D, Tenth Pennsylvania; head, moderate. Private Ralph Downs, Company C, Tenth Pennsylvania; thigh; severe. Private William H. West, Company E, Tenth Pennsylvania; leg; slight. Private Alexander Young, Company H, Tenth Pennsylvania; arm; slight. Private Archibald Powell, Company I, Tenth Pennsylvania; elbow; severe. Private Alexander Conlton, Company A, Tenth Pennsylvania; groin; slight. Malolos, the capital city, was reached at 7 o'clock on the morning of March 31, last Friday. At 20 minutes past 7 o'clock the American line of attack advanced. The Pennsylvanians and Nebraska troops led the fight. Aganoldo and all the insurgent army fled leaving the city on fire in many places. The Americans at the fire cut off, firing, saving about half the city from the flames. Lieutenant Greig, of the Fourth Infantry was killed, and fifteen were wounded. Of the Pennsylvanians, Company I, Naiel was killed, and G. F. Genuine of Company C was killed, and B. B. Ambrust of Company I, was killed. The Pennsylvanians wounded.—Company I, First Sergeant Augustus Remay, thigh, severe. William Mengelbrot, foot, severe. Roy J. D. Fox, foot, severe. The effort to capture the insurgent army at the capital city has not been a success. The enemy seem to be fighting along the line of "He who fights and runs away, May live to fight another day." Since the capture of the Capital city of the insurgents the American army has been resting.

Another War. Samoa is an island in the Pacific ocean some forty-three hundred miles from San Francisco, California. A trouble arose there between several kings for the government of the island. The American and the English consuls favored one faction of the Samoans, and unfortunately the German consul favored another faction and by his influence the Samoan government became antagonistic to both England and America, which resulted in the two nations sending their United States and English forces. The result was, the English and the United States fleets bombarded the towns along the Samoan coast. The Germans did not resent the attack, and it is hoped that the trouble may settle so that a war does not take place between the United States and England on one side, and Germany and the little insignificant island on the other side.
