STAND UP FOR THE GOVERNOR.

ACQUAVALLO'S head-quarters are in his heels.

QUAY has been elected a delegate to the State Convention from Beaver county.

The Cuban soldiers are willing to take $75 a piece from the United States government for their service against Spain, during the war with the United States, but they don't want to give up their guns to the government as the American soldier does when he leaves the army.

It was the insurgents that urged the adjournment of the Legislature. They claimed it as a great exhibition of political virtue to urge an adjournment of the Legislature. Now they want the Legislature convened, and claim it as an exhibition of undying love for the constitution of the State to threaten Governor Stone with a Supreme Court mandamus, and in impeachment, and almost everything they can think of, if he does not call an extra session of the Legislature.

A peace conference such as European nations are now holding in Europe says peace for all the world, but what a farce: The same powers are pretentiously for peace, while at the same time they have China by the throat and are dividing her property among themselves. President McKinley sent a despatch of congratulation to the conference when it convened on the 17th of May. The czar of Russia, who has been the chief instrument in calling the conference, replied to the despatch of the President.

The Cuban army was to receive three million dollars from the United States for their service against the Spaniards during the war. That will give each Cuban soldier seventy odd dollars. The money was sent by the United States to Cuba for distribution. The Cuban soldiers stopped the distribution by refusing to hand over their arms. They wanted to take their arms with them, and that is now the trouble in Cuba. How much better is a Cuban soldier than an American soldier, who gives up his gun when he steps out of the military service.

The insurgents made the court an instrument of torture for Quay. They propose the same thing for Governor Stone. The rights and privileges of courts can be changed by the people, and the time is not far distant when the whole court system will be drastically overhauled if courts are to be made the instruments through which to harass and persecute people. The proposal of the Insurgents to recon-struct the courts was but a note of public warning that the courts may well heed. The courts may be changed through the forms of law just as they have been organized through the forms of law.

The late Legislature insurgents are talking about appealing to the Supreme Court for a mandamus—an order of court—upon Governor Stone to compel him to call an extra session of the Legislature for the purpose of electing a United States Senator. It is not so long since the Legislature adjourned that it has been forgotten that it was the insurgents that were in a hurry to adjourn. They were playing horse reformer, and thought it would be a popular act to talk adjournment. They walk into their own trap. Now they want the Supreme Court to do its best to make Governor Stone call an extra session of the Legislature. Their position is the old, old story, set in a verse by a talented poetical writer thus:

He dugged a pit,
He digged it for his brother,
But by his sin,
He fell in it,
The pit he digged for other."

Executed for Ten Dollars.

The appetite of a pet goat was excited to a high degree by Charles Wagner of Frackville Pa., who tickled the animal's nose with a $10 bill. The goat suddenly lunged forward, snatched the greenback, chewed it up and swallowed it. This was a fatal move for him, for he was promptly killed and the bits of the bill were taken from his stomach. They will be sent to Washington to be redeemed.

Created a Discussion.

Rev. J. B. Markward, formerly of Scotland, Franklin county, now pastor of the Wilkensburg Church, created a lively discussion in the Southern Conference of the Pittsburgh Lutheran Synod a few days ago by a paper on "The Relation of the Church to Amusements," in which he said there is nothing specially wrong in dancing, card playing and theatre-going, if they are indulged in moderately. He drew a comparison of pleasures to a kingdom, and said that Christians should try to deliver that kingdom—as all others to Christ. He thought that it was the duty of Christians to indulge in amusements for the glory of God. Every member of Conference had something to say on this question. The consensus of opinion was that base-ball and football are not wrong, but that it is not seemly for a minister or any other professional Christian to go to see matches of that kind, any more than it is well for them to dance or attend theatres. At the same time it is not for the church to legislate against them. The business of the church is to preach the gospel, not to interfere with worldly amusements that are not in direct conflict with Christianity.

SMART SCHOOL GIRL.

The North American says: Isaiah Stud of Calhoun county, living near Parkersburg, West Virginia, had a narrow escape from losing five hundred dollars to a pair of shell game shippers on the 23rd day of May. Through the aid of his daughter Nellie, who had just returned from boarding school for a vacation, and who has learned to read the news-papers, Isaiah still has his $500 and the girl has $500.

The shippers showed up just before noon, and talked Stud into the notion of leasing his farm for oil developments. After dinner the trio walked out, and later the shell game made its appearance, being manipulated in the usual way. The farmer grew confident of his ability to keep track of the little ball, and went to the house to get $500 to bet with the "city chaps."

Miss Nellie smelled a mouse, and followed the old man to the woods. There she found $1000 spread out on a board and the father in the act of admitting that he had lost. Nellie acted quickly. She had brought a revolver, and before the sharks could grab even their own money she poked the pistol into their faces and pocketed the cash. She gave them five minutes to leave the farm, and they left.

Nellie drove to Glenville with the money, put it in bank, and started the police after the shippers. She says she will have $500 for school money.

CLEMMER HUNG.

By due process of law James A. Clemmer was hung in the Mount gomery county jail yard on the 18th of May.

Clemmer's crime committed in conjunction with Charles O. Kaiser and Lizzie DeKalb, occurred October 28, 1896. It was premeditated. Kaiser's wife, Emma, at her husband's prompting, had her life insured for $10,000. The policy was in favor of Kaiser.

According to agreement, Kaiser took his wife driving in the twilight. They drove along Crooked lane, about two miles from Norristown, on the west side of the Schuylkill river. Clemmer and Lizzie DeKalb followed in another carriage. Over taking the Kaisers, Clemmer alighted, ran up to their carriage and shot Mrs. Kaiser dead. Then Kaiser held out his arm and Clemmer shot a ball through the fleshy part. Rejoining the De Kalb woman, the murderer drove back to Norristown, stopping half way along the road to wash the blood stains from his hands in a brook.

Kaiser raised a hue and cry, and when people came he told a wild story of murderous highway robbers. But the $10,000 insurance policy came to light, and this, with other suspicious circumstances, caused him to be clapped into jail, charged with the murder of his wife. Under a racking examination by Chief of Police Rodenbush, Kaiser got rattled and shouted: "I know who did it, and you know him, but I won't tell."

That started the police on the track of Clemmer and Lizzie De Kalb.

But they were not arrested until after Kaiser had been tried, convicted and sentenced to death for the murder of his wife. The trial occurred in March 1897. In November Lizzie De Kalb was captured in Trenton, and three weeks later clever detective work put Clemmer behind the bars. He was arrested in Newark.

Lizzie De Kalb turned State's evidence and told of the whole wicked plot to murder Mrs. Kaiser. Her evidence sent Clemmer to the gallows. From the time of his arrest he stoutly denied having shot Mrs. Kaiser, and has never since confessed. The De Kalb woman escaped with a sentence of two-and-a-half years, half of which is now served.

Kaiser cheated the gallows by committing suicide on the night of August 18, 1898. In some mysterious way he secured a clock spring and severed veins in his wrists, throat and limbs, bleeding to death. He was to have been hanged on September 6.

LIVING YOUNG FOREVER.

The longing among men for immortality comes down the line of the past from time out of date. Adam and Eve were to live in the garden of Eden forever. But everything was changed and death or change came into the world, and from that time to this men have been longing to live forever. The people are taught through the Christian clergy that immortality comes through the grave. That a man after death becomes an immortal being. But man does not live like the graveyard method of reaching immortality. In almost every century men have come forward and declared that a medicine will be discovered that imparts a life of immortality here among men. A Chinese Emperor long ago, announced that he had almost completed the distillation of a liquid, that if taken should impart immortality and youth to those who drink it, but alas for those who want to remain in this world, he died before he had completed the distillation of the liquid. Belief in immortality is another form has existed in the minds of many people. They believed in a fountain of youth "which if one bathes in their youth will be renewed, and they can live on and on forever. The Spaniards and other Europeans when the North American continent was discovered believed that a fountain of youth existed in America somewhere, and many expeditions were fitted out to find it. Ponce de Leon camped at a fine spring one year in Florida under the belief that he had found the fountain of youth, but after bathing in the spring every day during the period of a year, he realized that he had not found the fountain of youth. Scientists express the belief that immortality is not lying about loose, but that if there are such things as immortal beings there must be some means by which they have immortality imparted to them, and some of them are experimenting with natural ingredients to bring about a state of immortality. Dr. Joseph R. Hawley and Dr. Alexander C. Weiner of Chicago have been experimenting in that direction: The discovery, if such it may be called, was made by a physician from Green City, Mo., Dr. B. F. Roberts and to his large herd of goats on the Missouri farm is due the introduction of a compound lymph which it is claimed, will keep away the things that bring senility and premature age.

"The new elixir is simply the life cells taken from the lymphatic glands of young goats and put into the human system by means of hypodermic injections."

"Dr. Hawley administered some of this fluid from the lymphatic glands of a goat to a dog known to be 14 years old."

A portion of a bone was taken from the dog's leg. The bone was found to contain large deposits of phosphate, carbonate and soda. The dog for a period of two months was frequently injected with the lymph compound. Then another piece of dog bone was chemically analyzed. The dog was as lively as a puppy. His bones had been completely renewed by the medicine. The mineral deposits in the bones had been removed. It was a wonderful revelation.

"Dr. Wiener stated that he did not claim anything sensational for lymph, and that it would take many years of hard scientific work before its possibilities would become thoroughly known. Dr. Roberts is a man experimenting with it for thirty years and has created successfully, he claims, over 200 cases in the past few years."

Dr. Hawley was soon convinced by him that the fluid was full of wonderful possibilities in the treatment of certain diseases and his experiments have led to the discovery of his faith. It is said to also act as a powerful general stimulant and that marked increase of muscular power is one of its most pronounced results from its use. And now men are expressing the belief that the wonderful discovery is to lead to the making of a medicine that will keep one living young forever.

HE STILL LIVES.

A Case Where the Medicine Made a Little Misaculation.

"Medical science occasionally makes a grand miscalculation," said an old citizen. "I never pass a certain house on lower Prospect street without remembering that 24 years ago a certain noted doctor of this town, he died recently—condemned me to death. 'You have but a week to live,' he said. 'This was information of somewhat serious import to me, although, at that time, I didn't much care whether it was a week or a month. But I went to another doctor. 'Are you really frightened?' he asked. 'No,' I said; 'I've got beyond that.' Then he remarked, 'You can't last a month.' Somehow this corroborative testimony didn't satisfy me. Before I got through my search for information I consulted eight doctors. And, by the way, I was hunting through the second week before I made the rounds. Of course they all agreed pretty well. The most liberal man of the lot said I might pull through for a year, but he greatly doubted it. The other medical gaves me from a week to three months."

"Well, sir, I've attended the funerals of five of those doctors, and, please God, I'll see the other three under the sod before I quit."

"Understand me—I was a pretty tough object at that time. A bronchial trouble had worn me to skin and bone. I walked with a crutch and a cane. I could scarcely talk. All the doctors agreed that my lungs were past mending. Five of them said I had but one lung left, and that, they claimed, was on its last legs."

"Well, when I went to the ninth doctor, I was mad as clear through. I knew he didn't have a solid idea concerning my case. But he tried hard to look knowing and went back to his little drug tank and presently returned with a neat package wrapped in white paper. I handed him the $3 he demanded and walked away. 'Here,' he said; 'your forgotten 'your medicine.' I turned back. 'No, I haven't,' I said hotly; 'I left it there purposely. Give it to the next credulous fool whose case you don't understand.' Say, it did me good to get mad. I went home, checked every drug into the ash barrel, staid over in a open air camp, and, wasn't the least bit careful about myself. Worked about the house every day until six o'clock and began to get better. By George! Inside of a year I was in tiptop condition! Look at me now! Sound as a dollar! Yes, sir, science does occasionally slip up with considerable unanimity."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Elephants Hate Camels. Elephants have the bitterest enmity to camels. When the camel sneezes the elephant, it stops still, trembles in all directions and utters an interminable cry of terror and affliction. No persuasion, no blows, can induce it to rise. It moves its head backward and forward, and its whole frame is shaken with mortal anguish. The elephant, on the contrary, as soon as he perceives the camel, elevates his trunk, stamps with his feet, and with his trunk thrown backward, snorting with a noise like the sound of a trumpet, he rushes toward the camel, which with its neck outstretched and utterly defenseless awaits with the most patient resignation the approach of its enemy. The elephant, with its enormous shaggy limbs, tramples on the unfortunate animal in such a manner that in a few minutes it is scattered around in small fragments. The population of England at the time of the Conqueror did not exceed 2,000,000 all told.

At a Georgia camp meeting a good brother continually repeated in the course of a long prayer: "Lord, send the mourners up higher! Send 'em up higher right away!" A storm was brewing outside, and as the hurricane swept down on them the brother qualified his closing petition with: "But not through the roof, Lord! Don't send 'em through the roof! That would be too high!"—Atlanta Constitution.

Self Knowledge. It is difficult for a man to know himself. If he thinks he's not a fool, he's certainly mistaken, and if he thinks he's a fool he's no fool.—Detroit Journal.

THE MUSES.

Of old the muses sat on high and sang the songs of men. On one they smiled who loitered by: Of tulling ten they slighted ten. "They lightly serve who serve us best, 'Nor know they how the task was done. We unseen love a soul at rest. But violence and toll we doom."

If men say true, the muses now have changed their ancient habitude. And would be served with knitted brows. And stress and toll each day renewed. So each one with the other vies Of those who weave romance or song. "On us, O muse, bestow thy prize. For thou art queen and we are throng."

And yet methinks I hear the best. Come murmuring down from Helicon. "They lightly serve who serve us best, 'Nor know they how the task was done." —Edith M. Thomas in Dial.

Saved from the Surgeon's Knife

No organs are of greater importance to the human body than the kidneys. Their duty is to sift and strain the poisonous and waste matter from the blood, and if they fail to do this, the trouble shows in the nervous system, and even in the brain. Your life is at stake when there are pains in the small of your back—when you are compelled to get up at night to urinate—when the passing of waste causes aching pain—when there is a sediment in the urine in the vessel, or when it appears white or milky. When so afflicted, you can conquer the trouble with Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, the greatest medicine that civilization has ever known for curing Kidney, Bladder, Blood and Liver Diseases.

James Litter, of Canajoharie, N. Y., tells of his wonderful cure: "Some years ago I was attacked with pains in my back and sides that were fearful. I could not control my kidneys, and what came from me was filled with mucus and blood. An Albany doctor was to perform an operation upon me, and said my home doctor could take care of me after. I saw an advertisement of Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, which seemed to fit my case, so I decided to try that before I submitted to the operation. I began its use. When I had taken about two bottles the flow from the bladder grew clearer, and the pain stopped, and in a short time I was saved from the surgeon's knife, and am now well."

Favorite Remedy also cures Eczema, Scrofula, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia and Constipation. For Female Troubles it is unequalled. It is sold for $1.00 a bottle at all drug stores.

Sample Bottle Free! In order that sufferers may be convinced of the curative virtues of Favorite Remedy, a free sample bottle will be sent, prepaid, to those who send their full postoffice address to the Dr. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Rondout, N.
