THE END OF A BANDIT

HOW SAM BASS MET A VIOLENT DEATH IN A TEXAS TOWN.

The shooting of the notorious desperado was the outcome of a deliberate murder committed by one of his gang of outlaws.

"In the little town of Round Rock, in Williamson county, Tex., not more than 20 miles distant from Austin, repose the remains of one of the most desperate highwaymen that ever operated in our section," said Mr. I. S. Crocker of the Lone Star State to a reporter.

"It was in the spring of 1878 that Sam Bass met his fate in this sleepy little town, and when he died with his boots on the southwest was rid of a criminal who was easily the peer of Jesse James, though he hadn't quite as long a run as that noted outlaw. Bass was a product of Michigan—at least, his sister, a gentle girl, came down from some town in that state to see that his body was decently interred.

"Bass had collected about him a company of as hardened thieves as ever engineered a hold up. The gang had robbed a number of trains in Missouri, Arkansas and concluded they would make one more good haul in Texas before riding across the border into Mexico, where they proposed to stay in retirement for a season.

"Bass had planned the looting of the only bank at Round Rock as an easier job and doubtless a better paying one than tackling a train, which feat had been performed too often to be thoroughly safe. By changing his programme to raiding a village bank there might be more here and less risk.

"So on that lovely morning in May when he and his fellow thieves rode into the unsuspecting town they chuckled to think what an easy job it would be to transfer the bank's cash to their pockets. So thoroughly certain were they of getting off with the plunder that they were in no haste about the matter. One wanted to get a shave, another went into a restaurant and so they scattered singly over the place, but there was an understanding among them to get together at a rendezvous was fixed upon.

"Meanwhile, unknown to the bandits, a squad of mounted Texas rangers had been pressing hard upon the trail of the bad men, and within an hour after the bank outburst entered Round Rock Sergeant Dick Ware, with eight or ten rangers, also reached the scene. He wasn't aware of the presence of the robbers, nor did they dream that the officers of the law were so close at hand.

"Upon this the robber rushed out of the store, and immediately his comrades came running to the spot, but no faster than did the rangers with their Winchester ready for action. In a second it seemed as if both sides had the situation revealed, and the robbers turned to run to where their horses stood tied, a block from where the murder of the marshal occurred. But Ware had sent a bullet into the head of Barnes, Bass' lieutenant, which laid the highwayman low.

"Bass, mortally wounded, managed to get upon his horse, which he urged to breakneck speed. The animal ran for about three miles till he reached the open prairie and stopped to graze. As he did so his rider, unable to sit longer in the saddle from loss of blood, fell to the ground.

"When they found him a few hours later, he was dying. He recognized Sergeant Ware as the man who had killed him and said he wanted Ware to have his horse. He regretted their prostration in robbing the bank, for if they had only known the rangers were so near they could have finished the job and escaped."—Washington Post.

Watering the Milk. The milkmen of Naples have a way of carrying concealed in their waist-coats bladders full of water.

From these bladders India rubber tubing stretches down their arms, and by simply pressing their sides while they are drawing the milk they are able to squirt water from the bladder into the jug or basin simultaneously with the milk. So it is quite a common plan for a woman who is getting her jug filled with milk to hold the milkman's wrists while he milks his cow or goat. Until the stranger has the reason explained to him he thinks it very odd to see women crouching down by the milkman, keeping a tight hold on to each of his wrists.—San Francisco Call.

Sunny People. Christianity was nothing so much in the world as sunny people. The old are hungrier for love than bread, and the old of joy is very cheap, and if you can help the poor old with a garment of prayer, it will be better for them than blankets. Lewis Foreman.

Her Borrowed Plunage. A Syracuse woman was in Boston some time ago, and she had occasion to get a check cashed, being without ready money. She had no friend who was easily available, but she went to a bank and presented her check. Of course she was told she would have to be identified. The cashier of the bank suggested that she might have one of her cards.

SYMPATHY

I looked into the baby eyes of him, "What my Gumples was the answer—into beautiful eyes in whose light I felt some a life that was bound by play.

How We Get Our Teeth. It is an interesting and somewhat complicated operation. An eminent dentist is authority for the following interesting explanation:

It would take too long to describe the formation of the teeth, but it may interest you to know that the enamel is derived in the first place from the epithelium, or scarf skin, and is in fact modified skin, while the dentine, of which the bulk of the teeth is composed, is derived from the mucous layer below the epithelium.

One would naturally suppose that the advancing permanent teeth was a powerful factor in the absorption of its temporary predecessor, but we have many facts to prove that it has no influence whatever. Indeed, the interesting phenomena of the eruption and recession of the teeth are very little understood.

How They Dress in Paris. Walk along the streets of Paris, and you will see 100 simple citizens tricked out in such a guise as in no other London would make them ridiculous.

Is a man a poet? Then his hair is instantly long, his clothes are shabby and fantastic, his hat, with its flat brim, recalls the fashion of 1830. Is a man a painter? Then his clothes proclaim that he inhabits Montmartre and that he wanders up and down the dusty streets of the Boulevard Rochechouart.

Is a man a deputy? Then the imagination of the Texas law against carrying guns was strict, and it so happened that the man who saw the weapon was none other than the town marshal, as brave a fellow as ever lived. He walked up to the desperado and said quite courteously: "My friend, I'll have to relieve you of that six shooter."

Is a man a genius? Then he is constantly making his love of his art. He is a wisely accustomed to his art that a man who would be mobbed in London untraced up and down Paris unobserved.—London Standard.

Stating on Water. According to Professor J. Joly of Trinity college, Dublin, a skater really glides about on a narrow film of water continually forming under the skate and resuming the solid form when relieved of pressure. He shows that the pressure under the sharp edge of the skate, along the short portion of the steel curve which is at any moment in contact, is great enough to liquefy a thin line of ice, and this gives the skate its "bite." When the ice is very cold, the pressure is sometimes inadequate to reduce the melting to a minimum, and then, as all skaters know, it is difficult to make the skates bite. For very cold ice Professor Joly recommends "hollow ground" skates, because the effective pressure increases with the thinness of the edge.

Not Exactly Growing. "Is your town growing?" asked the Pittsburg man of a fellow traveler on the cars. "Well, no; I can't say it's growing," was the reply, "not growing to speak of, but it is improving in its taste right along."

Irresistible Attraction. "What are you stopping for, John? If we don't hurry we'll miss our train!" "You can go on if you want to, Maria. I'm going to see how they get that balky horse started."—Chicago Tribune.

Resolving too often not to worry makes the resolution serve to remind you that you have something to worry about.—Acheson Globe.

A BUREAU OF COURTESY

"A curious innovation," says the Boston Transcript, "at the coming Omaha exposition will be a bureau of courtesy. Not only is the idea novel, but it is surprising to learn that nearly all the people of the city will be enrolled in the committee. Every member will wear a badge, and visitors will be at liberty to ask any one who wears the badge and ask for information just as much as he likes. The member, on the other hand, will be pledged to treat the visitor courteously and answer his questions, or put him in the way of getting them answered."

My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continuing in back and sides, no appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying 'Electric Bitters,' and to my great joy and surprise, the brain trouble decided improvement was made. I used them for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim. No one should fail to try them. Only 50c, guaranteed, at M. P. Crawford's Drug Store.
