Altoona Tribune, September 4.—Bert Hodges of Millers station, returns to his home Saturday after 37 years' absence. In 1862 he left his wife and family and went west to seek his fortune. For a time he wrote letters home, but these suddenly ceased. His wife, believing him dead, married again. Her second husband died two months ago. Hodges had been mining in Mexico. His wife received him with open arms and the couple are happily united again.

The Probationists of Juniata County are hereby notified to meet in Convention at Millintown, Pa., in the Orphans' Court Room, Sep'r 19th at 1.30 p. m., to nominate a county ticket, elect a county committee and transact such other business as may come before the Convention.

All who are interested in the party are urged to attend.

JOHN F. DIENER, Co. Chairman.

S. E. KOONTZ, Co. Secretary.

Bloomfield Advocate, Sept. 6.—Tuesday evening, of last week, in attempting to string the wires of the long distance telephone across the square, in this place, the wires crossed the electric light wires, and in pulling them apart the insulation of live wires was worn through, causing the telephone wires to be heavily charged with electricity, the result was that five men were more or less seriously shocked.

One man was thrown to the ground, falling on a stone and breaking a rib. Another man was on top of a pole when shocked, but fortunately recovered himself in time to avoid pitched headlong to the ground. The men were warned before they commenced work, but did not heed the warning.

"A turnpike sailor," came this way a day ago and stopped long enough to relate a new snake story. He declared it to be a true story. The thing took place a few miles from the valley a few miles. He was coming along the road by a house. The man of the house was by the roadside. The sailor stopped and asked the way to Millintown. While they talked a large copper-head snake began to cross the road. The landlort took a piece of fence rail and delivered a stroke on the snake. In an instant the snake disgorged about 30 little snakes from her mouth and they wriggled about in the road. A dozen or more got themselves into a wagon rut. A road away, a dog, a pup, was an earnest spectator of what was going on. He had laid down in the wagon rut. The dog was warm, he was panting and laid his head with his mouth open and tongue out by the rut ahead of him in the direction that the little snakes ran. The snakes saw the opening and before the dog understood it, they were down his throat. The sailor said when he left, the dog was the wildest animal he had ever seen.

David B. McDonald of Harrisburg was stricken with paralysis. When taken into his house at Harrisburg, his wife died of shock. They were both buried at Harrisburg on Saturday, September 9.

Moess A. Foltz, who has been editor and proprietor of the Chambersburg Public Opinion the past 30 years sold the paper to J. M. Bunk on cash terms. Editor Foltz is post master at Chambersburg.

If scarlet fever and diphtheria is of so serious a nature as to justify the quarantine of a man's family shuting the family in from all intercourse with the outside public, why not shut up the public schools till the disease has run its course in the community.

The public schools were not opened on Monday on account of the diphtheria and scarlet fever scare.

The daily average number of freight cars run over the Middle Division of the Pennsylvania Central during the month of August was five thousand.

Wayne Caveny, who not many years since lived in this town came from his new home in Newton, Kansas, to visit his old-time friends in Juniata.

The letters uncalled for in the Millintown post office at the close of business, Saturday evening, September 9, 1899, were for L. Ross, Juniata Stove Company, Hellen Fronk.

James Horning, who years ago was well known as one of the efficient hands of the business firm of Solouff and Stambaugh, is the guest of Mr. Henry Scholl. Mrs. Horning accompanies her husband. They were in from their home in Indiana, visiting in Philadelphia.

A Wilmington, Delaware preacher was made to smile profusely when a groom presented him with a nice fat check for $10, but the next hour the preacher was wont to moralize and sermonize over the smiling, double-dealing depravity of some people, when told at the bank the check is worthless. The groom has no account at the bank.

Reading, Pa., Sept. 9.—"May God grant that my brother and I die together!" were the words often uttered by Mrs. Catharine Goodhart, aged 72 years, of this city, and the wish, which was also expressed by her brother, Isaac B. Adams, aged 76 years, has been fulfilled.

Mr. Adams died at noon yesterday, while his sister lingered until 7 o'clock.

John Sample, who lived in this town a half century ago, has been a visitor among his old time friends within the past week. He was on his way to Marietta, Lancaster Co., from which place he came to Millintown. His home is in western Illinois. There are a few men in town who knew him. Among them were Squire C. B. Horning, John Etko, John Copeland, Elias Horning, George Goshen and Daniel Pannabaker.

The sheriffs have been notified to destroy fish baskets. Perhaps the best way to secure the repeal of a bad law is to enforce it. The fish law is a bad law. It discriminates in favor of classes. The coal miner and manufacturer empties his poisonous stuffs into streams and depopulates them of fish and he is unmolested in his wholesale destruction of the finny tribes of the waters, but when a man living on the banks of a stream in which the fish are living sets a net or basket and catches a few fish, he is pounced upon by the minions of the law. Repeal the fish law.

Wm. Wright the efficient street lamp lighter of Port Royal was in town on Friday and told some of his friends how long ago a well was drilled to find salt. The well was drilled along Licking Creek somewhere between McCulloch's Mill and what is now Leonard's Mill. Wright knows the spot. The well was sunk 60 feet. Salt water was found. Unfortunately the drill got fast in the well and at that early day they had not the means of extracting it, and the enterprise was abandoned. The place where the drilling was done is a natural salt lick to this day, he says.

Last Friday evening when the lightning was scaring nervous people in Millintown, it was playing havoc in other parts of the State. It was particularly destructive in Lancaster and Lebanon counties, barns and houses were struck. Near Lebanon, George and John Fox, and Mohn, were fishing when the storm came they hastened to shelter in a near by barn. A bolt of lightning struck the barn, killed two horses, and severely shocked the men. The barn was set on fire. Two daughters of Jacob Brubaker started to go to the fire, before they reached the building they were knocked down in the road by lightning, and lay unconscious and unscathed in the mud and ruin several hours.

There was an ear piercing peal of thunder and a blinding flash of lightning during the down-pour of rain on Friday evening. Where the bolt came down is not known. It seemed to be all over the town at one and the same time, on both sides of the river. Alton Sobell was driving to town on the hill toward Paterson. It seemed by sight and sound to be all about him—and seemed to be in his buggy and gave his fingers and hands and arms a stinging sensation as if he had hold of a battery. W. H. Zeiders in Patterson felt much like Sobell on the subject. The bolt, the lightning and feeling seemed to be everywhere. On Washington street a mile from where Sobell was, the experience of people was much the same and the telephone wires rattled as if boys were striking them with clubs. It is believed a bolt ran down the ground wire on the pole opposite Ed. Bartley's stable. The incandescent lamps were burnt out in many places, and the cracking hissing noise in the houses scared people of weak nerves, but amidst it all people were not hurt and little or no damage was done to property.

A death by lightning is recorded by the Mount Joy Herald thus—Doctor Andrew Martin was struck by lightning and instantly killed in the cellar of his home, during the storm on Saturday evening.

Doctor Martin lived with his sister Mrs. Fanny Lindemuth on the cemetery road at the edge of town. The Doctor always assisted his sister with such work about the house as he could do, and as was his usual custom proceeded her with a lamp, while she carried some things left over from supper to the cellar.

They were standing only a few feet apart when there came a blinding flash and the doctor sank slowly to the ground. The lamp dropped between his legs and was extinguished in the fall. His hair and eyebrows seemed to be ablaze and Mrs. Lindemuth brushed her hand over his head to extinguish the flames. She did not at first realize that her brother was dead as she had not felt the slightest effect of the stroke. She hurriedly got another lamp and descended to the cellar again. Horror struck her when she found her brother a corpse, she hurried to the home of Mr. Leonard Frank, her nearest neighbor, and they returned to the house where other neighbors and friends soon followed.

The current entered at the chimney and it followed to the stove-pipe and the doors of which were thrown open, and through one of the stove feet to the roof. It passed through the floor between a crevice in the boards to the cellar where the Dr. and his sister were, and did not even singe the carpet. Doctor Martin was standing directly under the stove and the current struck him on the head and passed along one side of his body to his shoes, but it is nowhere any evidence that it entered the ground. His face and one side of his body were scarred as if with a hot iron. Death must have been instantaneous.

There was a wreck of a freight train going west, at noon on Saturday, at Port Royal. The axle broke under the fifth freight car back of the engine, and before the train stopped twelve cars were piled, crushed, and tumbled over the four tracks at that place, thus completely obstructing all freight and travel by rail. During the number of hours that were required to clear the wreck from the tracks, this community became still.

When everything is running there is a constant rumbling noise in the air caused by the constant running of cars. A dead stillness prevailed several hours on Saturday. It is not said that the road in the vicinity of the tower at Port Royal is hoodooed, but accidents do take place. A few years ago a freight train loaded with a nice herd of hornless cattle from the west, bound for Liverport, England, was wrecked at or near the upper end of the tower. The train upset the tower, and the telegraph operator ran for his life, as he never ran before and as he has not since run, and as he hopes never to run in the future. Colonel Wilson Cramer, deceased, was the railroad official in charge, the wreck righting crews were under his supervision. He was making an effort to keep the cattle from straying away, and was telling the men what to do. His position was on the top of a freight car and he was caught in the crush. The animals were without horns, but they could bump hard, and some of the men had been bumped and were beginning to be a little shy of close quarters with the steers. The steers ran to a certain place along the line for more freedom, Cramer detected the break, and he noticed that John Fasick, a veteran railroadman, was the nearest man, and he shouted John, "run around them, run." "Yes," he shouted Fasick I am running, but they run faster than I can." "No, you are a good runner, you can beat them." "I, I," answered Fasick, "if Delamater had run half as well as the black 'moolies," he would have won the election." There was a laugh all round and the steers went on with the stampede.

Letter from a Woman

Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy frequently cures several members of a family. While it is considered by many to be a Kidney and Bladder Medicine, it is just as certain to cure Dyspepsia, Constipation, Rheumatism, Sciatica and Eczema. This is because it first puts the Kidneys in a healthy condition, so they can sift all impurities from the blood. Healthy blood practically means a completely healthy body. Here is a letter from Mrs. Capt. FERRIS KACZ, of N. Y.: "My husband was troubled with his kidneys, fearfully with shooting pains through his back. He took David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy, and in new well and strong. Although seventy years of age, he is as hearty as a man many years younger. I was so troubled with Dyspepsia that it was painful for me to walk. My food did me no good, as my stomach could not digest it. Somebody recommended Favorite Remedy to me, and after taking two bottles of it I was completely cured, and am feeling splendid now. We both attribute our good health to Favorite Remedy."

It is prescribed with unflinching success for Nerve Troubles, and for the Liver and Blood it is a specific. It has cured many that were beyond the aid of other medicine. Ask your druggist for it, and insist upon getting it. Don't take a substitute. It will cost you $1.00 for a regular full-sized bottle.

Sample Bottle Free

If you want to try Favorite Remedy before buying, send your full post-office address to the Dr. DAVID KENNEDY CORPORATION, Roseland, N. Y., and mention this paper. They will send you a free trial bottle, all charges prepaid. This genuine offer is made to prove to everybody what a wonderful medicine it is.
