Doleful sing thy song at evening, When the quiet has filled the air: Near my door with earnest pleading While my heart is full of care. Lonesome then my life seeme rendered, While the night was still and free; But that music long has centered, All my thoughts and care on Thee. Silence fills the very breezes! And my heart it ever eases, And my soul is free from fear. Leave thou not my threshold, never, Be thou near my open door! For the love my heart can sever, Thou canst all my heart restore. Thou who carest for the cricket, Small it must to thee appear, But our lives the low and wicked, Thou canst guide us tho we fear.

Need I fear thy name to cherish. Shall my faith in accents fall; Thou hast placed us here to flourish May Thy name be praised by all! Beautiful the lesson teaching, Constant joy along the way, Wake the mind as tho in pleading,
