SENTINEL & REPUBLICAN

MIFFLINTOWN, PA.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 17, 1900.

B. F. SCHWEIER,

EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

CONGRESSMAN MAHON is a candidate for re-election.

JOHANESBURG in South Africa is where the gold is and the Boers hold the place.

KIMBERLY in south Africa is where the diamonds are and the British hold the place.

THE withdrawal of troops from Canada to fight the Boers has made the Indian restless.

THIS Wednesday Quay's case comes up in the United States Senate. His is not the only case for admission before the senate.

SIXTEEN to one and opposition to the Filipino war are to be issues for the next Presidential campaign by the democrats if Bryanism is to prevail.

IF Quay is not given a seat in the United States Senate upon the appointment of Governor Stone, will Quay become a candidate before the people in the respective districts of the State? is a question asked every day and as often as asked remains unanswered.

DIAMONDS have increased in price since the opening of the British and Boer war. But that only effects the pocket-book of those who want diamonds. The majority of people do not want diamonds and the question of high or low price is of no importance to them.

WE hear a great deal these days of the integrity and capability of the revolutionary fathers of 1776 all of which may be true, but a shadow of doubt is cast over it all by the recital of the plain truth that they never redeemed their promises to pay that they made in continental money.

AMERICANS owning passenger ships can make money by the transportation of Americans for the Paris Exposition for the Boer war will engage all the ships of the British to furnish taoops and supplies for the war in South Africa. The fare across the ocean will not be as low as if the British could take a hand in the transportation of passengers.

THE unexpected fighting ability of the Boers is a great surprise and has laid off some seven or eight of high rank officers with nervous [illegible]. They all thought the Boer would not prove himself more of a fighter than the Egyptian and the inhabitants of India. From present appearance, if all things were equal the British could not be a match for the Boer. But the British have almost unlimited resources to draw from and if the gold mines of Johannesburg and the diamond mines of Kimberly have influence enough to keep the British up to the fighting point they can win by and by.

A STRANGE INFIRMITY has developed among members of the 10th Pennsylvania volunteer regiment since their return from the Filipino war. Eight of the members have met death in a violent form. One was killed by the explosion of a gun. The other seven were killed by getting in one way or another under the wheels of running cars. The latest one to be thus killed was Charles Jones of Company E of Mt. Pleasant, Westmoreland county. He had called at the home of his fiance last Sunday evening and she accompanied him to the railroad station. He turned to say farewell, stepped on the track in time to be struck by a shifting engine and killed instantly.

IF anyone is looking for the millenial dawn they will have to wait till the people grow better. In the last 50 years the Christian nations have averaged a war every six years. With such a state of affairs going on in the world there does'nt seem to be room for so fine a state of society as the millenial dawn. The old woman who pulled a man out of the ditch into which he had fallen while walking bothering his head about the millenial dawn, said to him: "How much more sensible you would be if you would bother yourself about something that you have knowledge of than about things you cannot possibly find out. If the millenial dawn is to come it will come it will come at the right time without your bothering." The old lady was the wiser of the two.

NEW ENGLAND FOREFATHERS.

In early days the New Englander colonist did not spend enough money in a year to keep a modern Chicago girl in chocolates for a month according to the account of his life given in Self-Culture. One farmer of those days wrote a letter which has been preserved and in which he says that his farm yielded him an average of $150 a year in money, and of this he did not spend more than $10, which went for salt and nails and such things for everything eaten or worn was produced on the farm. This was how the men of those days raised large and happy families, educated them and provided them with the necessities of life, besides laying up a little money on an income which would be beggarly to-day.

In clothing the New England was most economical. On Sunday and state occasions he might possibly wear a suit of broad-cloth or corduroy which lasted him a lifetime and at his death descended with the farm to his eldest son. For ordinary wear he donned linsey-woolsey, which was second only to leather itself in wearing qualities.

Food was of slimplest and coarsest beef, beef, coarsest beef, pork, salt fish, dried apples, bread and vegetables composed the staple diet. Tea was drunk but much was home-made from "pumpkins, parsnips and walnut tree chips." Bread was of rye and Indian meal. Only the minister ate white bread.

MCALISTERVILLE ITEMS.

Austin Sieber of Philadelphia spent a few days with his parents at Bunkertown.

William Sprout spent Sunday with his parents. He is employed in Lewistown.

Mrs. Sarah Watt is improving some since Dr. Rothrock of Freemont is treating her.

Young Americans are out in full, coasting and sledding.

Charley Benner is home from Steelton where he is employed in the Iron Works.

Palmer Kaufman, wife and child from Alliance, O., are here visiting his mother Sue Kaufman.

Isaac Benner an aged citizen died on Sunday morning at the home of his son Crist Benner. He was sitting on his chair and talked some when he fell over on the lounge and died. He is aged about 72 years. Five sons and two daughters survive him. Funeral on Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

LEARNING TO SMILE.

One of the Hardest Things For the Gymnast to Do.

"The thing I found hardest to learn in my business was to smile," said a professional gymnast who did a very clever specialty recently at one of the local theaters. "I started out in acrobatic work when I was only 15 years old as one of a 'family' of five. My instructor was Charles McDonald, an old time circus performer and one of the best of his day. While he was putting me through my paces he was continually yelling: 'Look pleasant! Look pleasant!' And my main trouble for years was in following that same order.

"No matter how hard I tried I would forget myself, and when I was doing an extra hard 'turn' I was certain to make horrible faces, screw up my eyes and grit my teeth. It took all the effect out of my act and must have seemed very funny to the people in the audience. Often, after performing some difficult feat, I have been mortified to hear a roar of laughter, and at last I determined to either learn how to smile or quit the business. I got the knack at last, and now it has become a sort of second nature.

"The point is a great deal more important than one would suppose. I know an equilibrist, for instance, who is very popular on the vaudeville circuit, not so much on account of the difficulty of his act as the smiling ease with which it is apparently done. You would never suppose from his face that he was making any special exertion, and that of itself gives remarkable grace and finish to his work.

"I am not the only one in the business, however, who has found it hard to smile at the right time. Almost every ballet dancer, eccentric character dancer and skirt dancer has had trouble on the same score. Most of them finally acquire a horrible fixed grimace that is supposed to be a smile, but has no more suggestion of merriment than a brick wall. It is produced by cultivating a certain set of muscles and made to appear and disappear on the principle of pulling a string."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

MANAGING SMALL BOYS.

How Some Mothers Take All the Spirit Out of Them.

"I am always made sorry when I ride in the cars, through the shopping districts particularly," said the woman to a newspaper man, "to see the mothers ill treat small boys. It is ethical cruelty, but quite as disastrous as physical ill treatment might be, it seems to me.

"I see poor little fellows of 7 and 8, nice little men who would be manly if they were allowed to be, pushed into that seat and out of it into another as if they were so many little dummies. They usually are very nearly that, for seven or eight years of such pushing and pulling is enough to take all the spirit out of a small boy unless he has unusual vigor of character.

"A boy of that age ought to be beginning to look out for his mother and finding seats for her. Occasionally a sensible mother, who treats her boy like a human being, is to be found, and it is a pleasure to see the two together.

"The boy who is dragged around like a little muff during the early part of his life is apt to come to himself after a time if he is not entirely ruined, and then he goes to an opposite extreme, is rude and self asserting, while he is trying to establish an equilibrium, and the mother can't imagine what the trouble is."—New York Times.

"Yep" or "Yup."

A curious American colloquialism, of which I certainly cannot see the advantage, writes William Archer in Pall Mall Gazette, is the substitution of "yep" or "yup" for "yes" and of "nope" for "no." No doubt we have in England the coster's "yuss," but one hears even educated Americans now and then using "yep" or some other corruption of "yes," scarcely to be indicated by the ordinary alphabetical symbols. It seems to me a pity.

Educated Americans, too, will often say "somewheres" and "a long ways." I have little doubt that this "s" has a grammatical history of its own. Probably it is an old case ending, just as "he goes out nights," on which Mr. Andrew Lang is so severe, is a survival of the "o'nights" which Shakespeare puts in the mouth of Julius Cesar ("Sleek headed men and such as sleep o'nights").

At the same time, as "somewheres" has become irremediably a vulgarism in England, it would, I think, be a graceful concession on the part of educated Americans to drop the "s." After all, "somewhere" does not jar in America, and "somewheres" very distinctly jars in England.

The Limit.

"Put your tongue out," said the doctor to 4-year-old Gilbert.

Little Gilbert protruded the tip of his tongue.

"No, no; put it right out," said the doctor.

The little fellow shook his head weakly, and the tears gathered in his eyes.

"I can't, doctor," he ventured at last. "It's fastened on to me."

Reading.

Read not much at a time, but meditate as much as your time and capacity and disposition will give you leave, ever remembering that little reading and much thinking, little speaking and much hearing, is the best way to become wise.

Golden.

Judge—Was the stolen jewelry gold or silver? Well, why don't you answer?

Prisoner—Don't you know, Judge, what silence is? Fliegende Blatter.

Messrs. Macmillan, the great London booksellers, in their spacious premises have, it is stated, shelf room for 4,500,000 books.

Let every one turn himself round and look at home, and he will find enough to do.

A Bargain.

"Arthur, dear," she said, "I do wish you would not use cigarettes."

"Why?"

"Because you don't know what is in them."

"Oh, yes, I do! Why, for the trifling sum that cigarette costs you get nicotine, valerian, possibly a little morphia and any quantity of carbon."

She looked up into his eyes and murmured, "Arthur, dear, it does seem like a bargain, doesn't it?"—Brisbane Review.

WE HAVE IT.

The Douglass Shoe is another of their specialities. It talks for itself. We carry twice as many dress overcoats as any other house. We have the largest and best Line of Men's, Boy's and Children's Suits—The very latest out—We are agents for the Sweet Orr Overalls. We buy by the case from Sweet Orr Co, not by the dozen pairs from second hand. We are head quarters for those goods. The other fellow is Hind-quarters.—Selah!

All we ask is a comparison of Our Line, and if the line is not superior in price, in finish, in Quality of Material and in fit, we won't ask you to buy. We take pleasure in showing our goods, because we have them to show—all new, all up to date.
