ADVICE TO OAK BARK PEEL

Bark, immediately after being peeled, should be placed up-right against the logs and allowed to remain thus for twenty-four hours in favorable weather. If weather unfavorable then forty-eight hours. after which it should be piled If the ross and sap side of bark isdry better pile it up not over twenty four hours after peeling.

Never turn the flesh side of bark toward the weather. Bark should be piled on logs raised at least eighteen inches from the ground facing west and having a sharp pitch or slope to shed the water that falls upon it and the twigs and undergrowth cut entirely away from around it. Any number of tons may be placed in a pile when bark is stacked up in this manner. These piles must be well propped on all sides to prevent falling over. When loading wagons in the woods for hauling to the railroad, any portion of piles left should be carefully covered. One good soaking rain falling upon the flesh of fresh peeled bark will take out fully one-third of the tannic acid in twenty-four hours.

The Experience of One Ranche Who, Instead of Doing His Butchering Out In the Hills, Attempt

While it is generally accounted that now be in the deplorable plight he is most of the revenues to the rancher in the broken and wooded country south of the Staked plains and west of the Colorado river, it is nevertheless a fact that the rasorback hog contributes a full share. Probably there is no country anywhere better adapted to the production of cheap pork. The hills are covered with cedar and a great variety of scrub oak trees, and the canyons and river valleys are heavily wooded with pecan and Spanish wal-nut, so that there is always an abundance of excellent mast, and it might be mentioned that the cedar berries are considered equal to corn in lard prolucing qualities. With this sort of feed, which is always abundant, the expense of care and feeding is removed, the animals simply running at large over the country, so that the only outlay required is that of the first cost of a few head details of the fate of their loved ones .for a start. Running loose in this way they are not subject to the diseases common to the hog in the sty or feed lot, and, being excellent fighters, they hold their own with the wolves and other wild animals which prey on the sheep and goats. Thus they multiply very rapidly. In order to get the benefit of the in crease in his stock, however, it is necessary for the rancher to get his mark on the pigs. As this, owing to the roughness of the country and the wildness of the sows, is no small task, it is generally the custom for all the hog owners in a given section to turn out together with their dogs and prac-

Compared with one of these "ho nunts" a cattle "round up" is a quiet and commonplace affair. On the morn ing appointed the dogs are turned loos and started out on a hog trall, and the men ride after them just as on a wolf chase. As the pigs cannot hold out very long one of them is soon caught, and his squeaks bring back the rest of the bunch to his aid. As soon as the plg is free the sows form a circle around the pigs, from which they now and then dash out at their tormentors and all the while grunting like the rattling of a hundred old wagons. By the time the uproar has reached its full height the hunters ride up and hiss the dogs on to seize the sows. When one is caught, two men go to the assistance of the dog, one with a club to beat off the other hogs, the other with a bit of rope to tie the one seized. When all the way of fighting, the pigs are caught and marked. Then the sows are given their liberty, and the dogs when the man asked for his mail he was at once arrested."—Indianapolis pens that there are hogs belonging

This would mean that all geological time from the beginning of the Cambrian epoch
