STAY IN THE COUNTRY.

Altoona Tribune.—The man who lives in presence of the forests and the mountains, and who is confronted by the verdure of the grass and the beauty of the flowers in their season, should take a trip to some village in the anthracite coal regions, if he has become careless and non-appreciative concerning his blessings. There are men and women and children whose sole outlook throughout life is upon a black and dreary landscape, a landscape that looks as if it had been blasted and smitten of God.

WHEN TULIPS NEARLY OVERTURNED HOLLAND.

The ancestral bulbs of the tulips, which give our flower-gardens of to-day such graceful form and superb color, once came near overturning the little kingdom of Holland.

The national fad for tulips reached the stage of madness, and nearly all other business was neglected in consequence. Everybody was frenzied with the fever to speculate in tulips, and as much as three thousand dollars was paid for a single bulb—the equivalent of many times that sum to-day.

"The Flower that set a nation mad," recalling the tulip craze in Holland, will be one of the features in the May Ladies' Home Journal.

"Say," a man somewhere near the door called out, "you're teaching school here to the cross-roads, ain't you?"

"Yes, sir," the orator answered, wiping his brow and doubling up his fists for a resumption of the argument. "I have the honor to be the teacher of the largest school in this township. Now, as I was saying, I—"

"But hold on. Do you obtain the consent of the governed before you try to do any governing in your school? I've just been appointed a director for this district and I'm rather anxious to find out about—"

The meeting then broke up in a row.

Lynch him! Lynch him! was the cry of several hundred men who had assembled at the railroad station at Tyrone, when the fiend Toner Hastings a local vagabond was taken to Hollidaysburg jail for committing an assault upon a 17 year old girl named Lottie Burkel, who he caught in a lonely road while she was going home from Glenhope school. The child is in a critical condition and may die.

"There's a run-off and a woman will be killed sure. Can't someone ride and catch that runaway horse?" and other exclamations were excitedly uttered by people along Bridge street as a horse hitched to a buggy dashed up the street. If the buggy had been empty the scene would have been exciting, but there was a woman in it and that made it doubly alarming. Men fairly danced with excitement and grew pale. The woman was good looking and sat upright and seemed less excited than the spectators. To the close observer she seemed to enjoy the wild ride. Talk about a circus hippodrome ride such rides were tame when compared to the flight of the horse and buggy up Fridge street to disappear like a phantom on Washington street and on by East Point where the pretty driver shouted stop the horse! to men who had their mouths open in wonderment. Faster than you can say it, she had gone out through the east extension and disappeared like a bird on the wing in the direction of McAlisterville. When she was out of sight she was out of mind. Then the men began to talk. They began to pity her; "she'll be killed," said one; "I bet she'll never get up and down the hill at Irvin Bashore's alive!" "she'll not get half that far till the buggy will be knocked into kindling wood!" "Let's go out in the name of humanity and love for the sex of our mothers and find her dead in a lane corner and bring her in." While that talk was going on the eyes of the talkers were turned in the direction whence she had gone. Suddenly some one shouted, "well I'll be blamed, there she comes and the horse down to a nice trot. She was coming up over the rise at the East End. It was she. On she came like a handsome ship into port under full sail. The further she came into town the faster the horse sped along. At Squire Horning's house she passed the left hand line into her right hand. Then she had both lines in her right hand. Then she braced herself for an increase of speed, flipped the line over the back of the horse and the beast was off like an arrow in its flight. He was going hipity clip on a dead run. She had the right of way. Everything got off to the side. She was down Washington street before the people who ran out of their houses had time to shut their doors and so fast was she going when the curve at the Lutheran parsonage was made that the buggy made the turn running on two wheels. The street there is not sloped for such fast curve riding as railroad curves are. But the two wheel turn on the curve did not in the least abate the speed. It seemed rather to increase the abandon of the horse. He fairly flew down bridge street as if he had league boots on his hoofs. She disappeared across the river bridge and set the structure in a state of vibration equal to the agitation of the people, who witnessed the exciting drive. Whence she came and whither she went has not been reported in this office.

work as being among the Dakotan pilgrims, but such is not the case. He is yet in Mifflintown as actively engaged in the drayman business as ever.

Ralph McMeen had a leg broken between the knee and ankle the other day while playing base-ball. In the run for first-base he stepped on a rolling stone and that so leaved his leg that the bone snapped off like a pipe stem. The young man is doing as well as can be considering the nature of the case.

A party of Gipsies in wagons passed through town going in the direction of Lewistown on Monday. They keep house by the road-side and in their wagons, plant not, reap not, are of no account in the keeping up of schools, roads, churches or any of the other departments of civilized government.

William Ellis was painfully burned on right hand and forearm and face by an explosion of gunpowder. He had carried a lot of waste paper from the house to the garden and there stooped to fire the pile of paper. A paper of gunpowder was among the paper and by unseen by him just where he applied the match. An explosion took place in the twinkling of an eye with the above mentioned result. The burn is painful.
