HILL AND THE DRED SCOTT DECISION.
Ex-Governor Hill of New York has resurrected the famous Dred Scott decision in a strained effort to show that the United States Supreme Court under President Buchanan's administration gives its opinion against territorial expansion. It is presumed that Mr. Hill knows the whole purpose of the democratic slave-holders' supreme court that rendered the Dred Scott decision was in the interest of human slavery. The whole purpose was to rule that the negro had no standing in the courts as a citizen. That he had no standing except as a piece of property such as a mule or horse, and he could not sue or be sued in the courts any more than a mule or a horse can sue. His standing was that of a property standing to be dealt in and disposed of by the owners of such property. All questions but the standing of the negro in the courts of the country was literary and learned filling for appearance sake in the opinion. Stripped of all literary embellishment and effort at display of learning on the question of territorial expansion and the government of territories acquired by treaty or by force of arms the case stands thus:
Dred Scott was a slave in Missouri and he was taken by his master an army surgeon into the free state of Illinois and into the free territory of Minnesota and thence back into Missouri. Upon his return he conceived the idea of trying for his freedom in the courts. He declared that by his long residence in the free state of Illinois and the free territory of Minnesota he was entitled to his freedom. For making that declaration he was tied to a post and mercilessly whipped. He found a lawyer who had the courage to bring a suit against his master for assault and battery. The case went up from one court to another into the Supreme Court of the United States and when it was handed down the decision was:
"Dred Scott is a slave, not a citizen of the United States and therefore cannot sue in the courts."
The decision was handed down a few days before the election of Mr. Buchanan to the presidency, but it was not made known to the general public till a few days after Mr. Buchanan's inauguration. The whole purpose was to put the negro on a property basis on the records of the democratic Supreme Court just as horses and cattle and hogs are considered and sold at private sale and at public sale to the highest and best bidder. By the Dred Scott decision a negro had not more standing in court than a hog. The owner of a hog could sue for the value of the hog if deprived of the swine. The owner of the negro could sue for the value of the negro if deprived of the negro. Such is the point in the Dred Scott decision of the democratic slave-holders United States Supreme Court of the time of President Buchanan's administration, and when Mr. Hill of New York tries to warp the decision to some other purpose, he shows that he either does not understand what the decision was for or he distorts the decision to a purpose best known to himself. The Dred Scott decision went down with Mr. Buchanan's administration and rebellion and is no more applicable in these times than the fugitive slave laws under which the slave-holders of the south came into the north to catch and return to slavery such runaways that they might trace into the free states. It is within the memory of living men and women that the slave master came into Mifflintown to catch and return to slavery slaves that had come as far north as Mifflintown.
In a recent conversation on this point with Captain Cornelius McClellan, he said, "You remember Samuel McWilliams when he kept hotel on the corner where the Juniata National Bank is located. McWilliams had a negro woman employed in the hotel in the dining room. One day she hastened to the landlady and said excitedly, 'Missus, I's guin to go, my old Virginia Massa has come for me, I heard his voice in the bar room.' She gathered her bundle and fled from the place by the back-yard and never returned.

IT WAS TRUE SHE HAD HEARD THE VOICE of the slave master. He had traced her from Virginia to Mifflintown and she only escaped him by hearing his voice before he caught sight of her. The captain continued: "Do you remember Bill Jones?" We said, "Yes." "Well," perhaps you remember Bill left suddenly and fled to the West Branch of the Susquehanna river somewhere about Danville because his old master from the south had come for him." How many other citizens of Mifflintown can recall the advent of the southern slave-holder to catch men and women that the Dred Scott decision of the U. S. Supreme Court declared to have no standing in the courts and could have no rights, but those extended to them by their masters, such as are extended to horses and cattle. When Mr. Hill quotes the Dred Scott decision he shows how close he stands to the lost cause of rebellion and should be a lesson for every lover of the common rights and civil rights of man to profit by, for it proves that if Hilliam and Bryanism get the control of the government what may be expected to take place. Everything will be given a turn in the direction of the old order of affairs. When brought home to the republican people and the democratic people too, they should see in it a pointer that their highest interest lies in the direction of casting their ballots for Mahon for Congress; McKee for Senate and Beaver for Assembly, for the candidates just named will vote for anything and everything else than a restoration of affairs that existed when the Dred Scott decision was made.
If you vote for Keller for Senate and for Hackendorf for Assembly when they get to Harrisburg they will vote for a United States Senator who will be hand in glove with Hill and Bryan to reorganize the present Supreme Court and engage in other Revolutionary measures through the forms of law. Vote the whole republican ticket.
Honorable J. N. Keller, the farmers' friend voted for a double pointed back-act when he was in the Legislature to take from dear farmer friends in Juniata county over eighty-seven thousand dollars, principal and interest, which would be enough money to give every voter in Juniata county $22 if distributed to every man alike. The lien claims are several generations old and are against innocent parties. Most of the farms are clear of all William Penn King George land liens. Those against whom the bill was directed that Mr. Keller voted for would in many cases have been bankrupted by the act. An effort was begun in the eastern part of the state to collect the liens, but the effort was attended with such a general up-rising protest that the collection was dropped, and when the next Legislature met the act was repealed. Mr. Keller was not in the Legislature that repealed the outrageous act that he helped to pass. If the Legislature following the one in which Mr. Keller voted had not repealed the tax lien bill he voted for, he would be a witness to the ripping up process on dear farmer friends, who could not pay the claims that he voted to fore close on them. It was not Mr. Keller's fault if they were not ripped to pieces financially. He had voted for the obnoxious bill. Mr. Keller was not in the next Legislature. The next Legislature repealed the outrageous bill he voted for. Bryanism is wrecking enough in its tendency, but it is not made known to the general public till a few days after Mr. Buchanan's inauguration. The whole purpose was to put the negro on a property basis on the records of the democratic Supreme Court just as horses and cattle and hogs are considered and sold at private sale and at public sale to the highest and best bidder. By the Dred Scott decision a negro had not more standing in court than a hog. The owner of a hog could sue for the value of the hog if deprived of the swine. The owner of the negro could sue for the value of the negro if deprived of the negro. Such is the point in the Dred Scott decision of the democratic slave-holders United States Supreme Court of the time of President Buchanan's administration, and when Mr. Hill of New York tries to warp the decision to some other purpose, he shows that he either does not understand what the decision was for or he distorts the decision to a purpose best known to himself. THEY BOUTED THE REVENUE MEN WHO WERE HUNTING WHISKY.
Rob White Tells How the Peckys Varmints Sampled His Moonshine Juice and the Revenue Men, Who Were a Week to Buy About Peckys.

"I've bin makin' moonshine whisky over in the big ravine fur about three weeks," said the old possut hunter of Tennessee, "when a thumpin' big 'cum down over on the thickest one day and acted in a mighty curious way. It was in the summer, and he was sheddin' his fur, and I didn't know I had my rifle handy, I didn't keer to shoot him. That 'bar snuffed the whisky, and he sniffed and snuffed and seemed to want a taste. I holered at him and driv him off two or three miles up, and he come back. My ole woman had come over with my supper, and arter watchin' the 'bar fur awhile she said:
"Zeb, that 'bar wants a drink of 'cum juice sush 'y'or 'bo'n, and I'm fer givin' it to him."
"I laughed at the idea, but as he continued to hang around the place the ole woman pored about a pint of the stuff into a pan and set it on a stone 30 yards away. She had shandy turned her back befo' the 'bar was appin' it up, and he come back. My ole woman had come over with my supper, and arter watchin' the 'bar fur awhile she said:
