

B. F. SCHWEIER, EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

The Election.

You are happy that the country is safe. The erring brethren have been given a dose of first rate continuing prosperity medicine and when they get over the dislike of taking such a dose, they too will feel all the better. They were saved from rushing head-long into reactionary Congressional legislation that would bring wide-spread business panic. They may not thank the republican party for thus saving them, but all the same when the republicans kept them selves out of business distress, they carried the democrats with them. The erring brethren will have ample time within the next four years to unlearn a great deal that leaders of that party taught them. On the question of trusts they will learn that the trust is a business organization and not a political organization and whatever wrongs they inflict are business wrongs. They will learn that imperialism is a phantom play gotten up to scare the conscientious voter into voting the democrat ticket. They will have the privilege of enjoying undisturbed revenue law sufficiently large to pay pensions to democrats as well as republicans so diars; pay the running expenses of the government with some to spare to meet maturing obligations. They will enjoy the privilege of being secured from a threatened influx of wild cat State banks that were hanging on the horizon of Bryanism. The list of ills could be multiplied that they have escaped by the victory of the republican party. In their voyage up Salt river they will have ample time to give thanks that they are safe from the business wreck that a victory for the democracy would have brought upon the country. McKinley for President; Mahon for Congress; McKee for Senate; Beaver for Assembly is everything obtainable in the National, the congressional, the Senatorial and Legislative districts. There is nothing left of the brethren except the Sheriff and the Register and Recorder. McKee's majority over Keller in Mifflin county is 87 votes; McKee's majority over Keller in Perry county is 400 votes; Keller's majority over McKee in Juniata is 453 votes, which gives McKee 34 of a majority in the district, which is a great victory considering the fact that Keller's friends in this county claimed to be able to give him eight to nine hundred majority. But look at the grand column of states that wheeled into line for McKinley:

Pennsylvania 250,000; New York 175,000; Indiana 20,000; Maryland 15,000; New Jersey 10,000; Illinois 150,000; Ohio 75,000; West Virginia 20,000; Iowa 100,000; Wisconsin 100,000; Massachusetts 75,000; Kansas 30,000; Delaware 1,500; Michigan 65,000; California 10,000; Rhode Island 17,000; Connecticut 20,000. It looks as if McKinley had swept in to the republican fold all of the northern states. Only four democratic Congressmen in Pennsylvania have been elected as far as heard from. One of the strongest fights in the State was made by the machine of both parties to defeat the regularly nominated candidate for State Senate in the 31st Senatorial district J. W. McKee, but he won the election by less than 100 votes. There are 447 votes in the electoral college, 287 of which are for McKinley, which is 16 electoral votes more than he received in 1896.

Before the Official Returns from Black Log, Juniata Co., Pa., election district had reached the Court House at Mifflintown, several parties from that district were at the Court House protesting against the counting of the votes. They charged the election board was not a legal one and that the election was not lawfully conducted. The board that held the election was composed of John Bilger, Judge; James K. Buchanan and Herman A. Ople, Inspectors and two clerks. Bilger and Buchanan were elected Judge and Inspector at the last February election. At that election Samuel Emory was chosen minority inspector and the election certificate was given to him. On the morning of the late election Emory appeared at the Black Log polling place with his certificate for the purpose of helping hold the election. Ople then told him his election was illegal and that he, Ople, would act as inspector. Ople, then swore the Judge and served on the Election Board while Mr. Emory cracked his heels on the outside. Judge Bilger said on Wednesday that he was afraid of Ople and was afraid to object to Ople acting as Inspector. The County Commissioners refused to pay Ople or his clerk for serving on the election board. Further developments are awaited.

Twice Hanged. A former police sergeant of this city interests his friends occasionally with reminiscences of his career on the force. One of his stories is that of a man who was hanged twice. The old man had become weary of life and determined to end his earthly existence by hanging himself. He arose one night after the other members of the family had retired. Procurring a rope, he fastened one end carefully around his neck and the other to the stair rail, and then threw himself over the balustrade.

His sons awakened at the usual hour in the morning, but upon starting down stairs were horrified to see their old father hanging at the end of a rope. They cut down the body and then hastened to apprise the neighbors of the tragedy. Some of the neighbors, being great respecters of the law, advised the sons that in cutting down the body before obtaining permission from the police or coroner made them liable to imprisonment in the penitentiary. Frightened by this information, the sons hurriedly returned home and, obtaining another rope, fastened it about the neck of their father and let the body down in the position in which they had found it.

They then hunted up the police sergeant and told him of the suicide of their father. When the police sergeant reached the house, he cut down the body, but was quite surprised to find that there were two ridges around the throat. He asked for an explanation. The sons hesitated for a time, but finally confessed to the whole affair—Baltimore Sun.

The Philadelphia Times says—The telephone is a great modern convenience and telephone poles may be a necessity, although this has not been conclusively demonstrated. Those who don't want telephone poles planted in front of their premises, according to Judge Simonton of the Dauphin County Court, who has just decided that setting a telephone pole in front of a man's house in spite of his protest is an offense punishable by a fine of $50 and costs. This is a righteous decision and it may be hoped that it is a good enough law to command the concurrence of the courts of last resort. Electrical corporations have of late assumed to own the earth by divine or other right and it is refreshing to learn that ordinary mortals have still some rights on their own purchased and paid for premises, which can be successfully defended in court.

Judge Simonton's decision will have the effect of compelling the electric corporations to go about the stretching of their wires in an orderly and legal way instead of riding rough-shod over property owners as they have been too much disposed to do in the past.

NOTICE: I wish to inform the people that I will have on hand, and will be ready to fill all orders big or small for cabbage, beets and turnips at very reasonable prices. Your orders shall receive my prompt attention. I Remain, Very Respt., O. G. DETRA, Thompsontown, Pa.

DIED: JACKMAN.—On the 5th inst., at his home on Third street, Mifflintown, after a long mental and physical illness, aged 63 years, 1 month and 15 days. Interment in the Presbyterian cemetery at Mifflintown. Mr. Jackman was a man of kind heart and tender sympathy. Years ago after he came from a trip of the Southern States before the days of rebellion, he related to the writer of these lines how his sympathy was aroused in seeing men, women and children sold from the auction block as horses and cattle are sold in the northern states to the highest and best bidder. He said his heart and mind was in revolt against a system of government that so systematically practiced such outrages upon human rights. Once we met him at Newport with Captain B. F. Miller. The Captain said: "Jackman's father was a father to me when I was most in need of a father." "Yes," answered Jackman, "and you Captain were a true guardian to me when I most needed a guardian." He was born at Liverpool, Perry county on the banks of the broad but shallow Susquehanna river and he a number of times mentioned in our hearing how he had been told that his grand mother who lived at Fort Hunter was so skillful in poeing a skiff that she did not consider it much of an achievement to pole a boat across the Big River to the western shore which then was Indian territory. His father was James Jackman, a native of England, an early settler in Liverpool where he engaged in Merchantile pursuits. His mother was Eliza Louisa Mitchell of Millersburg, Dauphin county, Pa. Both his parents died when he was about nine years old. He was educated in the public and private schools in the Bloomfield Academy, Perry county, and learned printing during an apprenticeship of four years—1851, '52, '53 and '54 with Hon. John A. Magee then as now editor and proprietor of the Perry County Democrat. After that he taught school and worked at printing and when the war of the rebellion was inaugurated he became a soldier against disunion and slavery in Company A. First Regiment Pennsylvania Reserve Cavalry and served to the end of his term of enlistment, a period of three years. He then came to Mifflintown and purchased the Juniata True Democrat from his brother-in-law Dr. E. Darwin Crawford and later formed a consolidation with the Democrat and Register. Upon the death of Mr. Bessall, he became the sole owner of the Democrat and Register and conducted it with ability up to the time when disease laid its blighting hand upon him. His daughters the Misses Gertrude and Louisa Jackman conducted the paper during the long illness of their father. Mrs. Jackman his wife and four daughters survive him.

Paul Bowler. Below is a story found in a recent book, "Talks with the Old English Cricketers," which prompts the reflection that "there were giants in those days" of the "old" cricketers. A man who did a private business in athletic requisites at his home in Blackpool was one day approached by a man who asked him if he kept a full supply of cricket requisites. "Certainly," was the response. "Then," said the man gravely, "wrap me up a bottle of arnica, a paper of court plaster and an arm sling. I am going to play in a cricket match this afternoon against Jack Crossland."

Keeping His Promise. Mrs. Synnex—When Tom asked me to have him, he promised me that my lightest wish would always be law with him. Mrs. Bauer—And of course that was the promise amounted to—merely empty words. Mrs. Synnex—No, I won't say that. Tom always respects my lightest wishes. It is in matters of importance where he is bound to have his own way.—Boston Transcript.
