A NUMBER of journalists are writing dolefully of the boasted civilization of the United States and England and are pointing to Borelend and the Phillipine Islands as acts illustrative of the true inwardness of what is declared to be the best civilization of these times. Just so, they may do well by hanging their harps on the willows and reflecting on the old statement that "there is nothing new under the sun," that the boasted civilization is only a thin coat so thin indeed that it is like that of the time of Pontius Pilate when he earnestly asked, "what is truth!"

Beaver Herald, November 22: About five weeks ago a bicycle was stolen from J. D. Haines and no trace of it could be found until last Wednesday, when Reuben Felker found the missing wheel near the peach orchard leased by W. H. Felker, along the road leading from Adamsburg to McAlisterville, and close to Shade mountain. It is supposed that the party who stole it got tired pushing his prize up the mountain and left it at the place mentioned.

From the Altoona Tribune: Mrs. Frank A. Garrison of Williamsport, was operated on in that city Friday for appendicitis. When the appendix was cut open a badly corroded pin was found therein. It is supposed that Mrs. Garrison swallowed the pin a long time ago. It had entered the appendix at the opening and had started to work its way out at the other end, when the point of the pin caused the irritation that made the operation

Heat Radiation. The tendency of heat to diffuse Itself is effected by radiation, conduction and convection. Nearly all dull and dark substances are good radiators, while bright, polished surfaces radiate badly. ne substances conduct heat more freely-than others, silver among the metals being the best conductor, and as a unit of measurement is taken at 1,000. Compared with silver as a conductor, gold is 981, copper 845, zinc 641, tin 422, steel 397 and wrought from 436. Glass, wood, gases, liquids and resinous substances are bad conductors. Water is such a poor conducto that if heat is applied to the tep it will boil at the top, while the bottom will remain cold. - Newcastle (England

An interesting little anecdote is tole about how "David Harum" came to be written. It is rather pathetic. It seems that Mr. Wescott, the author, was the kind of man who could do pretty much anything-paint a picture, plan a house or compose a sonata—but he had never made much money, so when he became ill and realized that he might not live long and would leave his family with little or no money he was desperate.

"Write a book," suggested a friend and neighbor to him one day when they were talking over the situation. "I did make an attempt at it once," answered Mr. Wescott. "I tried a love story, but I couldn't make it go." "Add a little local color to it," said the first speaker. "Take one of the people about here that you know and work him up-old -, for instance," mentioning a character familiar to them both. "He'd be first rate."

"That's a good idea!" exclaimed Mr Wescott, and the result of this conversation was "David Harum," and ye "David" was never in the story at all as it was first conceived .- Anna Wentworth in Woman's Home Companion.

New York's Slaveship. When New York city owned a slave ship is told in an article in Pearson's Magazine. The greatest impetus was given to the slave trade by the act of slavery in the North American colonies. This does not mean that slavers was unknown in what is now the United States before that time, because as early as 1620 a Dutch man-of war landed and sold 20 African ne-

In 1626 the West India company im-New York city, then New Amsterdam The city itself owned shares in a slaveship, advanced money for its-fitting out and shared in the profits of its voyages. This recognition and encou agement may account for the astound ing fact that in 1750 slaves formed one-sixth of the entire population of New York. The general prevalence of slavery is shown by the fact that at this time there were 67 slaves in New York's small suburb of Brooklyn, and that in London itself there were resident 20,000 slaves.

Slaves were at that time publicly dealt in on the London exchange. No wonder the traffic in human flesh was a recognized commerce, and that in Sept. 4, 1900. 102 ships equipped for the trade and with a carrying capacity of 47,146 slaves per trip.
