make it up to you, poor child. We will be married again to-morrow, that we may feel it as sacred and real and I will keep all the promises; love only me—put your arms about my neck, Nora—love me always; God bless you for being so good to my poor mother.
And on the morrow they were married—married more truly, making their sacred vows before the minister of God; and, loving each other, their lives henceforth were beautiful through all the trials and hardships of their humble lot.

Farm and Household.

Raising Chickens "by hand".

Mr. T. B. Rogers, the famous poultry raiser at Wethersfield, Conn., has "sounded the precise thing," and has invented what he calls an "artificial mother," for the rearing of young chickens. He estimates that at least fifty per cent. of chickens hatched are lost by suffering from cold, by being stepped on by their mother, and by cats and other animals, and in various other ways. He also finds that chickens to be profitable, should be hatched in the winter. He hatched three broods in nine weeks with one hen—that is, he takes away the chickens as soon as hatched, and places fresh eggs under the hen, and in this way keeps her busy propagating chickens. Mr. Rogers's next move was to get some invention that would take care of the chickens when hatched, and he has constructed what he calls an "artificial mother." This is a box with two compartments, and about three feet long by two and a half wide. In the rear is a lid covered with wool, shutting within three inches of the bottom; this is cut off from the front part by a strip that can be raised on hinges. The front is protected by lattice work, giving plenty of air and light and on the outside are tin troughs, in which gravel food and water are placed. The chickens can easily get their bills into these, and when they have got their fill they can run under the wool-covered lid, which is so soft and comfortable that they imagine they are under the old hen's wings. Mr. Rogers had in one of these boxes a brood of twenty-one chickens. They were as lively as crickets, and seemed perfectly at ease. Mr. Rogers deals exclusively in Light Brahmas, and thinks they are the best layers, as well as the most profitable fowls for the table.

Over-doctoring Hogs.

G. E. Meheery of Shawnee Mound, Indiana, writes to the Cincinnati Gazette: "I must speak out in defense of the over-much medicated hog. Farmers, don't make drug stores of your hogs. If they have a cough it is because they have been misused in some way. Give a hog half a chance and he will get fat, and keep in the best of humor. I think I can go on a man's farm, and if his hogs cough, and have to lean up against his corn-crib to sneeze, I can soon tell him what is the cause of it. First, his hogs have not got a good bed, being either wet or dusty. If you want to kill a hog, put him in dust. Let him sleep with his nose in the dust so he can get enough into his lungs to make a good potato-patch of them. Feed him in the dust also, if you think the dust bed will not do the job up soon enough.
"Then in the second place, I think you will find he is trying to see how little corn his hogs will consume and still sustain life."
"Give a hog plenty of range, plenty of water, all the corn he can eat, and a good, dry, clean bed, and you will not need any sulphur and burned cobs, or any other drugs. I speak from experience, as I have raised and fed, and seen raised and fed, hogs by the thousand here on this Shawnee Prairie, the garden spot of Indiana."

Fighting Rams.

A correspondent of the Ohio Farmer says: "At certain seasons of the year, rams are apt to develop their combative propensities, and those who keep several of them together often have trouble on account of their injuring each other. It is well known that they always 'back up' to get a start to butt. Stop their backing up and you disconcert them entirely. To do this, take a light stick (a piece of broom handle will do) about two and one-half feet long. Sharpen one end and lash the other end securely to his tail; the sharpened end will then draw harmlessly on the ground behind as long as his majesty goes straight ahead about his business, but on the attempt to 'back up' he is astonished to find an actual brake in the rear. Don't laugh and call this 'all gammon,' but if you have a butting ram, try it, and the time to laugh will be when you see him jump out sideways, and whirl round and round trying to inspect the machine, which will keep behind him.
One thousand shingles laid four inches to the weather will cover one hundred square feet of surface, and five pounds of shingle nails will fasten them, one-fifth more siding and flooring is needed than the number of square feet of surface to be covered, because of the lap in the siding and matching in the floor.
One thousand laths will cover seventy yards of surface, and eleven pounds of lath nails will nail them on.
Eight bushels of good lime, sixteen bushels of sand, and one bushel of hair, will be enough good mortar to plaster one hundred square yards.
