

Harrowing Wheat in Spring.

The advantage of harrowing wheat lands thoroughly in the spring as soon as the ground becomes dry enough to prevent the horses from sinking into it, is known to many farmers who have practiced it, but is unknown to the majority. Wheat is usually sown in September, upon well prepared land. This land is left there subject to all the storms of rain and snow and the dry weather in succeeding spring until after the wheat is harvested. In consequence, the land becomes in May and June nearly as hard as a meadow. At a season of the year when the plants are in the greatest vigor of growth, the land is so hard as not to give one-half the nourishment it would if kept mellow by any process. Suppose, for instance, corn should be planted in the fall, under similar conditions with wheat, and that the winter did not injure it, and that it were left without cultivation of any sort until harvested; it is evident that the yield would be diminished over one-half; in fact, the yield would probably be so light and poor as to be almost worthless.

Now, wheat, from many experiments in its cultivation by hand in England, shows as great sensitiveness to cultivation as corn; the yield by careful hand cultivation, being increased to 60, and in some instances, 80 bushels per acre. Now a thorough harrowing of wheat in the spring in a very expensive manner, performs the cultivation nearly as well as when done by hand. If the crust formed by the winter snows and spring rains is thoroughly broken and the ground to the depth of two or more inches well pulverized, the effect upon the wheat is almost like magic. It starts into the most vigorous growth and in a few weeks has nearly or quite double in size the wheat not harrowed. In pieces of wheat which have come under the writer's observation which were harrowed in strips that is one strip not harrowed at all and other strips on each side thoroughly harrowed in the early part of June, the harrowed wheat stood fully one foot higher than the unharrowed at each side, and in every way was strikingly ranker and more vigorous. Mr. Robert J. Swan of Rose Hill farm Geneva, N. Y., who has heavy clay land says he has harrowed his wheat for four years with the Thomas harrow and finds the yield to be increased fully ten bushels per acre. Byrali Moulton of Alexander Geneese county, New York harvested from fifty acres 1,600 bushels of wheat. His neighbors only obtained about ten bushels per acre. The only difference in land or treatment was that Moulton's wheat was thoroughly harrowed with the same implement in the spring and his neighbor's was not. The effect produced by harrowing barley and oats after they have obtained a growth of four or five inches is equally as marked. I have observed many instances where fully twenty bushels per acre increases in consequence of thorough harrowing was obtained.

These facts and many others of similar character show clearly the great profit which farmers may derive from thorough cultivation by harrowing of wheat, oats, barley and other sown crops.

How to Know the age of Horses.

The colt is born with twelve grinders; when four front teeth have made their appearance, the colt is twelve days old, and when the next four come forth it is four weeks old. When the corner teeth appear, the colt is eight months old; when the latter have attained to the height of the front teeth, it is one year old. The two-year-old colt has the kernel (the substance in the middle of the tooth's crown) ground out in all the front teeth. In the third year the middle front teeth are being shifted, and when three years old, these are substituted by the horse teeth. The next four teeth are shifted in the fourth year, and the corner teeth in the fifth. At six years, the kernel is worn out of the lower middle front teeth, and the bridle teeth have now attained to their full growth. At seven years, a hook has been formed in the corner teeth of the upper jaw, the kernel of the teeth next to the middle is worn out, and the bridle teeth begin to wear off. At eight years, the kernel is worn out of the lower front teeth, and begins to decrease in the middle upper front. In the ninth year, the kernel has wholly worn out from the upper middle front teeth; the hook on the corner has increased in size, and the bridle teeth lose their points. In the tenth year, the kernel is worn out of the teeth next to the middle front of the upper jaw; and in the eleventh year the kernel has entirely disappeared from the corner teeth of the same jaw. At twelve years old the crown of all the front teeth in the lower jaw has become triangular, and the bridle teeth is much worn down. As the horse advances in age, the gums shrink away from the teeth, which consequently receive a long, narrow appearance, and their kernels have become metamorphosed into a darkish point, gray hairs increase in the forehead and over the eyes, and the chin assumes the form of an angle.

It is worth while for all farmers everywhere to remember that thorough culture is better than three mortgages on the farm.

That an offensive war against weeds is five times less expensive than a defensive one.

That a horse that lays his ears back and looks lightning when anyone approaches him is vicious. Don't buy him.
