

Well done, General Newton! The rocks at the bottom of Hell Gate have been blown up, the threatened danger to persons and property has not been sustained, and our advices encourage the belief that the long troublesome obstruction to navigation will soon be among the things of the past. Thus is accomplished the greatest feat of modern submarine engineering. General Newton, the able officer to whom the important work was entrusted, has devoted seven years of severe mental labor to the work, and the expenditure of a million and a half of dollars has been required for the execution of his plans. He has served his country with distinction on many fields of battle, but we may be sure that none of the blood-bought victories in which he has participated has given him half the satisfaction that will be afforded by the peaceful triumph now apparently within his grasp. With all our heart we hope he may have the satisfaction and all the glory justly due his achievement. Some days must elapse, however, before the results of all these years of anxious labor may be definitely ascertained. A thorough submarine survey is necessary to determine these results. If the contemplated object has been attained a new field will be opened for the commercial and manufacturing enterprise of New York, and the whole country will share in the benefits thus derived from the science and skill of the engineer. Meantime there is cause for congratulation in the fact that, despite the dangerous forces enlisted for the great work, the forebodings of the timid, the predictions of croakers and the undefined apprehensions of its conductors have been alike unfulfilled.

Tilden's Income Tax.
CRUSHING REPLY TO HIS DEFAMERS.
 NEW YORK, September 20.—The following statement is given for publication by the Hon. Abram S. Hewitt, chairman of the national Democratic committee: To the Public.
 The New York Times, which for years prior to 1875 had been the enologist of Governor Tilden immediately after he became a formidable candidate for the Presidency began a series of assaults upon his private character. At length these assaults culminated in the charge of making a false statement of his income in 1862. By dint of reiteration and fabricated specifications of items and details having the semblance of actual accounts some well-meaning persons were disturbed. It therefore occurred to me to apply to the Secretary of the Treasury for certified copies of the income returns of Governor Tilden and of Governor Hayes, and on the second day of September I made such an application. The copies applied for have not been furnished, nor indeed has my letter received the courtesy of acknowledgment. Meanwhile the adversaries of Governor Tilden have apparently had free access to these returns, and have even been permitted to photolithograph so much of them as suited their purposes. I submit this fact to the American people without comment. Meanwhile, receiving no reply from the public authorities, who seem to regard the documents in their custody as held in trust for the Republican party and not for the people, I addressed a note to Judge James P. Sinnott, who was the confidential law clerk of Governor Tilden during the whole period in which the law imposing an income tax was in force, asking him to examine the pretended account of Governor Tilden's income during the year 1862, published by the Times, and furnish me such explanations in regard thereto as his necessary familiarity with the details would enable him to supply. I have this day received his reply, presenting a full and entirely satisfactory refutation of the charges of the Times.
 His answer, here with submitted to the public, shows that out of thirteen pretended items of income amounting to $110,000, eleven items amounting to $84,000 are wholly fictitious, while of the other two only one of $1,000 is entirely true and the second of $25,000 is only partially true.
 There is therefore no ground for the assertion that the sworn returns were not a just and accurate statement of the net income of Governor Tilden, after making such deductions for losses, interest paid and other charges as the law authorized him to make.
 If exception be taken to Judge Sinnott's letter on the ground that it does not contain a detail statement of the several items upon which the return of 1862 was made, it is proper to state that the regulations of the department did not require such detail statements, and very few professional men made such statements, or could now recall the items or have kept the memoranda upon which their returns were made.
 If Governor Tilden were not in nomination for the Presidency, I do not know of any man in this community whose mere statement of a fact would have been more generally accepted as the truth and I fail to see why the eminent position in which he has been placed by a large body of his fellow-citizens should be held to detract from the sanctity of his oath.
