Zumorous.

THE REASON WHY.

An impertinent youth at Saratoga amused himself by exhibiting the following lines to some of the ladies at a hotel.

Men scorn to kiss among themsetves, And scarce would kiss a brother ;. But women want to kiss so bad, They kiss and kiss each other.

Whereupon a young lady penciled this retort on the back of an envelope, and left it for the fool's instruction :

Men do not kiss among themselves, And it's well that they retrain ; The bitter dose would vex them so, They would never, kiss again.

As sometimes on poor woman's lip Is applied this nauseous lotion, We have to kiss among ourselves As a counteracting potion.

DAMP.

He was a tramp, bound Chicagoward, and as he boarded the couplers at the rear of an incoming engine, just across the line in Indiana, one recent dark and chilly night, he had faith to believe that he had a "soft thing" of it for a cheap ride. But the conductor, with his eagle eye and railway lantern, soon espied the moncyless passenger on his uncushioned and comtortless seat. Did he order him off? No. He had a deeper plot. He let him remain, while on and on went the train, from station to station, until it reached a great tank where the engines stop to "water up."

"Now for him," groaned the heartless conductor, as he passed to the front.

"Now for him," he maliciously continued, as he grasped the water-trough from the fireman's hands and directed it over the back end of the engine.

"Now for him," he fiendishly grunted, as he heard a Noah's deluge pouring over the head and down the back of the luckless tramp.

All grew still, and the conductor ordered his train on its way, convinced that the he had drowned the tramp, or at least flooded him so far away, that he could never get back again. But when that conductor drove into the depot in the early morning there was a surprise in store for him.

"Be you the conductor ?" inquired a shivering voice at his elbow, as he stepped on the platform.

"Yes," said he, looking around and gazing
