CAPTAIN GRANT.

Att—"Captain Jinks."

I'm Captain Grant of the cavalry, The people all look up to me, And the party loves me well, you see.

For I'm the boss of the army, I've got a fight against Sitting Bull, And yet my hands are not quite full.

My deputy boss is Cameron, Old Simon's smart and secret son, And you may bet we'll have our fun.

Now I can find some work to do For Belknap, Bab, and Orvil, too, And they will fight till all is blue.

Of votes my side is getting short, And we can hardly hold the fort Unless we soon begin the sport.

We'll drag the darkies to the polls, And make the Democrats hunt their holes, And haul the white men over the coals.

Our plea is thin, but better than none, Enough for me and Cameron, And when the work is once begun,

So Terry may grumble and Crook complain, And brave men's blood the snow may stain; No matter if I point my gun.

The Call to Arms.

CHAIRMAN MCCLELLAN ORDERS THE DEMOCRACY INTO LINE—A SHARP CONFLICT FOR THE KEYSTONE STATE.

Hon. William McClellan, chairman of the Democratic State Committee, has issued the following address to the people of Pennsylvania.

MCCLELLAN'S ADDRESS. COMMITTEE ROOM, HARRISBURG, OCTOBER 12, 1876.

To the people of Pennsylvania: We congratulate you on the victory won by the people in the great States of Ohio, Indiana, and West Virginia.

We have carried the States of Indiana and West Virginia by decided majorities and have substantially a victory in Ohio.

All who have desired purity of administration and loved constitutional government have united with us in this desperate struggle with official patronage money and power.

Hate, money and fraud have been found unable to cope with sincere desire for reform and constitutional government.

The prestige of success is with "Tilden Hendricks, and Reform." We have beaten the enemy upon a field of their own choosing.

Pennsylvania is to be won. Our fight is it to be an aggressive one. The township and county organizations will press the contest in every locality with vigor and determination.

Attack the enemy. Demand an answer for the wrongs of the past and the ills of the present. Arraign them for business depression, for dishonest government, for extravagance in administration, for broken law and delayed reconstruction.

The issue of the campaign are sharply defined. The people demand and they will have honest government and an end of Grantism. They demand and they will have reduction of taxation and decrease of expenditure. They demand and they will have a change of financial policy through which a sound basis will be reached by an easier road than that of universal bankruptcy, which those in power persist in following.

We ask the aid of all who believe that the hour for change has come. The questions are those of country and not of party, and in the coming struggle in November we believe that every patriot will be with us in the final victory over the corrupt practices and official power of an universally detested Federal administration.

By order of the State committee, WILLIAM MCCLELLAN, Chairman.

REPUBLICAN GERRYMANDERING.

The New York Times professes to be unable to understand how it can be that the Republicans failed to carry the State of Indiana in view of the assumption that they have elected nine out of thirteen Congressmen, and a majority of each branch of the Legislature.

At the time of the apportionment of the State the Republicans had control of both branches of the Legislature and instead of dividing the State into districts in such manner as to place the two parties upon an equal footing, they so framed the districts as practically to disfranchise seven thousand voters.

The returns from Indiana as we gather them both from Democratic and Republican sources show the election of nine Republican candidates by an aggregate majority of eleven thousand, and four Democratic candidates by an aggregate majority of eighteen thousand.

Thus we see that while the Democratic congressional majorities exceed those of the Republicans by seven thousand, the Democrats get but four Congressmen out of thirteen to which that State is entitled; and yet a fair and honest division of the State would have more than reversed the result.

The average majority in each of the Republican districts is 1,222; while the average in the Democratic districts is 4,500. Thus a Democratic majority of 4,500 counts no more in the election of a congressman than a Republican majority of 1,222.

Precisely the same fraud upon the people was perpetrated by the party of great moral ideas in the division of that State into Senatorial and Representative districts. So in Ohio and in Pennsylvania, the same shapeless fraud was perpetrated, practically disfranchising a very large percentage of the Democratic voters of these States.

In the Indiana Congressional vote the average Republican majorities were a little over one-fourth as large as the average Democratic majorities. It therefore requires, under the infamous apportionment of that State, 3,278 more votes to elect a Democrat to Congress than are required to elect a Republican. Of course, the result of that wicked legislation is just what was anticipated. The Democrats knew that it could not fail to cheat them out of at least five members of Congress.

It has probably done just that. This infamous disregard of common honesty in the performance of a high and responsible public duty of providing for fair and equal representation in Congress, is another of the grand achievements of the party of great moral ideas. It fairly takes rank with reconstruction of the South, and brings to the surface a class of men who are fit associates for wretched carpet-baggers who, by means of legislation of this sort, have been enabled to encourage that fair section of the country until little but desolation remains.

The vote in the West shows that the Germans are deaf to the appeals of the bloody-shirt orators, that Carl Schurz has lost power with them, and that they discern that the overmastering issue of this campaign is the reform of the abuses which sixteen years of Republican dominance has established in the administration of the Government.

The Republican orators, released by the close of the canvass in Ohio and Indiana, will be brought hither to wave the bloody shirt; but they will find that it is not a standard which will stir the enthusiasm of our voters. The citizens of New York know Gov. Tilden. They personally benefit by his reduction of the taxes and the reforms he has introduced at Albany; and they will stand by him now that the people propose to give him a larger field for the exercise of his great executive abilities, and to carry out his sound theories of finance and taxation, and his statesmanlike conception of the duties of the Government.
