BUSINESS LODALS. Quarterly Meeting. Lecture by Rev. F. A. Dony. Clairvoyant Examinations. Beyond doubt a Fact—A. N. Bullard.

-We can endorse the following from an exchange: "A gentleman met us yesterday with a bitter complaint that the clergymen of our city refuse to read notices of various entertainments, charitable and otherwise, in their pulpits. We presume it is with clergymen, as with newspapers. The grumbler has no knowledge of the immense number of this kind of calls on our pastors or our papers, and what a to seeing the great World's Fair itself. We church service would become it prefaced with advise our readers to examine the book carehalf an hour's reading of benevolent candypulls and pious pop-corn festivals. It is only a dodge for stealing advertisements and the pul pit is wise to be free from the infliction. Pastors and papers are liberal in these particulars, but object decidedly to being imposed upon."

A large per centage of the tramps now roaming over the county are unprincipled and wicked, and many of them are professional thieves. A day or two since Officers Ringler and Weiss, of Lebanon, caught two suspicious characters in the house of Charles Smith, on Tenth street, near the Union canal. They gave their names, as Conrad: Myers, and Frederick Stumberger, and they had in their possession two large bundles of clothing. Upon being examined, one bungle was found to contain five overshirts, two curtains, three aprons, fourteen pairs ladies' drawers, seven chemises, a towel, girl's dress body, two quilts, four pairs cuffs, and two ladies' collars. The other bundle panned out a man's linen coat, a quilt, a woolen blanket, three pairs ladies' drawers, two undershirts, undershirt trimmings, five ladies' overskirts, a ledies' dress body, six chemises, one bed sheet and five aprons. Squire Houck committed them to prison after a hearing, Saturday morning.—Patriot.

-As Thanksgiving day comes to-morrow, the following article on carving a turkey will be appreciable: There is nothing a young unmarried man likes better than to go to a dinner at the house of a friend and to be asked to carve the turkey. He never carved a turkey in his life, and with an old maid on one side of him watching him closely; and on the other side a fair girl for whom he has a tenderness, he feels embarassed when he begins .-First he pushes the knife down toward one of the thigh joints. He can't find the joint, and he plunges the knife around in search of it until he makes mince meat of the whole quarter of the fowl. Then he sharpens the knife and tackles it again. At last, while making a terrible dig he hits the joint suddenly, and the leg flies into the maiden lady's lap, while her dress front is covered with a shower of stuffing. Then he goes for the other leg, and when the young lady tells him he looks warm, the weather seems suddenly to become four handred degrees warmer. This lep he finally pulls loose with his fingers. He lays it on the edge of the plate, and while he is hacking at the wing he gradually pushes the leg over on the clean tablecloth, and when he picks it up it slips from his hand into the gravy dish and splashes the gravy around for six square yards. Just as he makes up his mind that the turkey has no joints to its wings, the host asks him if he thinks the Indians can really be civilized .will explain his views on the subject after dinner. Then he sops his brow with his handkarfork that it slides off the dish and upsets a gobasks him why he don't help out the turkey. Bewildered, he puts both legs on a plate and while taking her plate in return, knocks over a gravy dish. Then he sits down with the calm ness of despair and fans himself with a nap-suicide or to take lessons in carving.

THE GREAT EXPOSITION.—We have received from the publishers, Messrs. Hubbard Bros., of Philadelphia, advance sheets of a forthcoming volume, which will greatly interest every American. It is entitled "The Centennial Exposition Described and Illustrated," and is a complete history and pictorial representation of this grandest world's fair the world has ever known: 1. Grant Frankling to the

Every intelligent and thoughtful person who has visited the Exposition and comprehended not only its vast proportions but its wide significance, will be glad to find it photographed and preserved in permanent form in this beautiful and carefully prepared volume.

The great Exposition is really a representation of all that the human race has accomplished during its career of six thousand years. The nations of the earth of every clime selected their highest achievements in every department of human effort, and bringing them together, invited the world to behold the last and most perfect result of all that man has accomplished in every field of thought, industry and skill. Of the millions of our citizens who have expended from $50 to $200 each in viewing and studying this wonderful display, we have never heard of one who did not feel amply repaid for the expense of time and money involved .-These millions desire to study more at leisure what they could then examine but hurriedly, and many millions who could not visit and see it, desire to possess a work which shall give them a full and adequate representation of this grand and wonderful exhibition. To supply this urgent demand is the object of this work. It has been prepared from material gathered on the grounds, by the most careful, patient and laborious research, and from official sources, and though it does not claim, as some do, to be by official authority, it commands confidence thereby, Gen. Hawley having announce ed that no book has any right to such a claim. It describes briefly the inception and growth of this grand enterprise, but mainly the wonderful exhibits of the Nations of the New and Old World, showing their different peculiarities, values, curiosities of mechanism, &c., and contrasting them one with the other.

But the interest and value of the book lie largely in its profuse and brilliant illustrations. In this multitude of finely executed engravings, the main features of the Exhibition are vividly impressed on the mind of the reader in a way that words cannot do. It is next thing fully should they have an opportunity. We presume the publishers want agents in this vicinity, and we hope some of our energetic young men will improve what seems to us an extraordinary opportunity to serve our citizens and do a handsome paying business

The body of a little boy named Grant, about twelve years old, was found buried in a sand bank at Scranton on Sunday morning of last week. He had been missed from home since the preceeding. Thursday, when he started for school. It is supposed be had taken shelter from a storm urder the overhanging bank. The little fellow, says the Republican, was found gathered up in a heap, the agony of his last great struggle for life depicted on his childish

A successful series of revival meetings are being held at the Parish street M. E church of Scranton under the pastorate of Rev. O. L. Severson. Over one hundred souls have expressed their determination to lead a new life.

The very singular death in the mines from the rebounding of a pick, which struck its wielder in the temple, is going the rounds. It would be a good thing if it were true, but there isn't the slightest ground for the story; it's a pure fabrication; the man was killed from a fall of what is known as "bony coal." The Republican has been bamboozled by some invent or, of a novel means of an exit from life. Scranton Times.

It may seem scarcely credible that two young women of this city should so far forget the respect due to themselves as to imbibe so much liquor that their arrest became a necessity, but such was the fact, and they were yesterday ar raigned before Alderman Roesler upon a charge of drunkenness upon the public streets. The fact was not denied, and the usual fine was imposed and paid.-Times, Nov. 24th.

Scranton with a population of nearly fifty thousand, cannot boast of a town clock.

Rev. Thomas P. Hunt lies dangerously ill at the residence of his daughter in Philadelphia. His condition is so critical that his relatives have been summoned to his bedside.

The question of candidates for Judge in place of Judge Dana, whose term of office expires in about a year, is already engrossing the attention of the Wilkes-Barre bar. Among, the Democrats the names of John Lynch and D.L.O'Neill are prominent, while upon the Republican side H. W. Palmer seems to lead.
