

THE WEEK.

The most startling event of the week has been the burning of the Southern Hotel at St. Louis, the largest Hotel in the city, and one of the largest in the country.

The hotel was filled with guests, many of whom in their efforts to escape, jumped from the fourth, fifth and sixth story windows.

The engines got to work promptly, but the location of the fire placed them at a disadvantage, the streams having to be thrown entirely over the building to reach the flames.

Several others overcome by fright and driven by the flames, threw themselves from the windows and were either killed or seriously injured.

Miss Kate Claxton, the actress, was an inmate, and made another wonderful escape. She had sufficient presence of mind to wrap her head and face with wetted towels and walked and rolled down stairs and except having a few bruises, she is safe.

In speaking of the surrender of the State House at Columbus, by Chamberlain, immediately after the withdrawal of the troops last Tuesday, the Pittsburg Post remarks that "Ex-Governor Chamberlain appears to have behaved very sensibly in surrendering the contest.

Associated Press dispatches from Washington dated yesterday, say that but few dispatches have been received from New Orleans to-day and these do not indicate that any settlement has yet been reached.

Later dispatches say there is no doubt that the troops will be withdrawn from New Orleans, as it is not to be expected that he will pursue in Louisiana a course different from that in South Carolina; but it is an open question when it will be best to act, therefore no time is fixed for the issuance of an order for the withdrawal of troops.

Tweed.

Harpers Weekly of last week contains a carefully compiled account of Tweed's flight and exile, written from a diary kept by Tweed. It sets forth that the unfounded announcement of the death of Charles O'Connor, who was conducting the case against him, was a severe blow to the prisoner, as he felt there was no other person with whom he could settle his case.

No member of his family, his counsel or his friends knew of the plan. It was arranged that the escape was to be made from his home, and accordingly he made several visits there before an opportunity was presented, which occurred, when, after his keepers had eaten and drunk at his expense, one of them rose to wash his hands.

The wagon soon started and drove zig-zag across the city to the North river, where he was taken into a row boat and landed in a lonely part of the Palisades, not far from the well-known spot where Aaron Burr killed Hamilton. After a ride of about three-quarters of an hour the wagon was stopped in front of a dilapidated old homestead where Tweed was met by another of his new-found friends, who greeted him quietly with assurances of safety.

Tweed watched the progress of the proceedings against him after his flight and kept himself thoroughly posted. He saw the defeat of the motion for the dismissal of proceedings and scorned with wonder the proceedings of the "struck jury." Upon the reappearance of Mr. O'Connor in the case, Tweed became uneasy and moved to a deserted fisherman's hut near the narrows on Staten Island, his two companions accompanying him.

Tweed was here joined by Hunt, who was a practical hunter and guide. His chief resource of profit was to pilot pleasure parties who seek Florida during the winter months. Hunt led Tweed into the interior, where they remained hunting and fishing until the climate became too hot, when he proceeded to the neighborhood of St. Augustine, whence he sailed in a fishing smack for Cuba, arriving at midnight within ten miles of Santiago de Cuba.

On their arrival there they were met by Custom House officers, who demanded passports. Not being able to comply, they were arrested and placed on board the man-of-war Cherucca. This was on the 12th of June, 1876, and he was released on the 23d.

The remainder of the article is devoted to a description of his experiences in Spain, his conveyance to the Franklin and subsequent return to the United States, all of which is known.

Infantile Nuptials.

A case arising under a law of 1730, subjecting magistrates or ministers to a penalty of £50 who marry minors without their parents' consent was concluded in the common pleas court yesterday. John and Mary Griffin sued Alderman Joseph Butler for the penalty, he having united their infant son of seventeen years to the lady of his choice. The defense was that defendant had not knowingly and willfully married the young man against his parents' wishes and therefore was not liable.

and knowingly on the part of the magistrate. Therefore, if the jury believed that the magistrate received in good faith the message which purported to come from the mother, and believed it to be true, they should find for the defendant. Under this charge they found for defendant.

As the amendment of 1871 virtually repeals the act of 1730, no Gretina Green is needed in this state as a refuge for distressed lovers. All they need to secure perfect felicity is to stretch their consciences so as to be able to tell a little fib to some sympathising magistrate, and cruel parents may tear their hair in vain.

NEW SPRING —S-T-O-C-K! O. M. HAWLEY, NEW MILFORD, PA. Having located in the BRICK STORE formerly occupied by H. & W. T. Dickerman, I would say to my friends and the public generally that I am now receiving direct from New York one of the largest stocks of goods ever offered in this county, (and will be sold at lower prices), consisting of DRY GOODS, NOTIONS, HATS, CAPS, BOOTS, SHOES, WALL-PAPER, READY-MADE CLOTHING, Etc.

These goods were bought for cash, with all possible discount off, and are to be sold on the same terms. SPECIALTY—I have just received a $4,000.00 SPECIALTY—Bankrupt stock of Clothing, purchased at a nominal price, which SPECIALTY will be sold for about one-half its SPECIALTY—value, (guaranteed to be 25 per cent. lower than the same goods SPECIALTY—can be bought in Binghamton.) This is not wind, but a fact, and you can be convinced by examining the goods. MY MOTTO IS READY-PAY! In looking the matter over I see that the credit system still continues to increase its victims of buyers and sellers, while the ready-pay system is growing in favor. There is no other way for a merchant to sell goods for a small profit than to demand pay when delivered. If there had been no credit system there would be no hard times to complain of. Try it for a year and you will never go backward, but be convinced of its benefit. I am agent for Mm'e Demorest's patterns; also, take orders for Hannan & Radish's custom shoes. "The price tells and everybody tells the price. [Ap. 18, 77.] O. M. HAWLEY.
