A correspondent sends us the following: Last Saturday Mr. Jesse Gardner, a young farmer residing in Greenfield, met with an accident worthy of mention. While crossing the large bridge near Lenoxville with a heavily loaded wagon, and just before he had reached the opposite side, the bridge gave way and himself and wagon went to the bottom of the stream, while his horses hung by their hind feet to a portion of the bridge above. He had the presence of mind to jump from the wagon when he saw it was going down, or he would have been buri ed beneath it or drowned. As it was, he escaped with comparatively little nejury. Heip came, but before they could do anything the horses had struggled themselves loose from the bridge, and had fallen into the water, where they would have been drowned in a very short time, had not o her assistance arrived. It was a very narrow escape for both Mr. Gardner and his horses. The supervisors of that town should look more carefully at the condition of the bridges,-Carbondale Lead-

Among the bills signed by the governor on Wednesday was one withdrawing Providence, a borough containing 6,000 to 8,000 inhabitants, from Scranton. When the news reached Providence the people of that town celebrated the separation in the most hilarous manner. Bonfires were built, gongs sounded, bells | personally or by letter, can do so at his prin rung, fireworks set off and fire companies paraded. The constitutionality of the law will be tested in the courts on the ground that it establishes a new classification of cities.

There are a number of soldiers of the war of 1812 still living. They will be interested to know that the last Legislature of this State has increased the annuities, pensions, &c., of the soldiers of the war of 1812. The act takes effect from January 1st, 1877, and the sum is increased to $75 per annum, payable to the soldier or his widow, but only so long payable to the widows as they remain widows of the deceased soldiers of the war of 18I2.
